FULTON HOSPITAL
MAIN BUILDING
RAZED BY FIRE,
720 RESCUED

105-Year-Old Structure
Long Considered Fire
Trap — Funds to Replace It Sought Under Bond Issue.

By ROY J. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., March 15—Fire destroyed the 105-year-old administration section of Missouri State Hospital No. 1 here early today, causing damage estimated at more than $2,500,000, but 720 mental patients were moved out of two adjoining wings without injury to any of them.

The fire was discovered shortly before midnight near the roof of the four-story brick building, and was brought under control about 3:30 a.m., with the help of fire departments from Jefferson City, Columbia and Mexico, and about 100 students from Westminster College here.

Smolders Hours Later.
It was still smoldering several hours later, having burned through the wooden interior of the central section and the roofs of the north and south wings, which had been fireproofed about 20 years ago.

Water damage was extensive in the wings, and the superintendent, Dr. Alfred K. Baur, said they should be considered ruined.

The administration section of the hospital long has been considered a "fire trap" and funds have been sought to remove or replace it. Superintendent Baur has asked for $3,450,000 from the recent $75,000,000 state bond issue and $2,450,000 was included in a suggested allotment submitted to the Legislature by William B. McGregor, assistant budget director.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, who came here to inspect the fire-damaged institution, announced that he will ask the Legislature to vote an emergency appropriation for Hospital No. 1. The Governor said he has not yet decided whether he will recommend that the appropriation come from bond issue funds or from general revenue, or both.

Elderly Patients.
The patients were elderly men and women. The fact that the fire started at the top and burned down, and was not whipped by a high wind, enabled the attendants to take them to safety in other buildings in an orderly manner.

Only one, a 73-year-old man, got away from the institution in the confusion, and he was found shortly near a Fulton motel.

Two persons were injured slightly. Mrs. Rhoda Ferris, a member of the staff, suffered a slight foot burn, and Dale Hartig, a Westminster student, suffered an arm bruise when he fell while helping fight the flames. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Hartig, 410 Dover place, St. Louis.

The weather was above freezing when the fire started, so that firemen were not hampered by ice as they directed hoses from the ground up to the fourth floor and roofs.

No Panic or Disorder.
Altogether the hospital has approximately 2500 patients, in several buildings. The flames could be seen from the other buildings, but there was no panic or disorder.

Fulton has two fire trucks but only two full-time firemen, and depends on volunteers.

Neither truck has an extension ladder. Until equipment arrived from other cities at 12:45 a.m., there was no way to get hoses up to the roof.

The cause of the fire was not known at the time of the report.

BELL DISCLOSES BILLION DOLLAR
EXPANSION PLAN

Phone Company Sets Forth Five-State Program If Business
Stays Good.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. expects to spend $1,000,000,000 in the next five years to expand and improve its telephone service in five states in the Southwest, provided business conditions remain unchanged, the firm announced today.

Bell estimated it would be called upon in that period to furnish 25 per cent more telephones than at present and to provide individual-line service to present customers. This would require, it explained, 50 per cent more cable mileage and 45 per cent more central office equipment.

"Barring unforeseen economic changes within that period, we expect to spend a billion dollars on gross construction in the Southwest," the annual report said.

Net earnings after taxes and fixed charges last year were $78,222,163 as compared with $65,334,007 in 1954. The 1955 earnings represented $8.74 per share on the 8,950,000 shares outstanding at the end of the year. The 1954 earnings came to $8.09 a share on the stock outstanding in that year. The company's postwar peak of $9.50 a share was realized in 1946. All common stock is held by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

With $194,286,000 spent on gross construction last year, total plant investment at the end of the year stood at $1,539,387,000, the report said. This was $314 of plant investment behind each of the 4,771,000 telephones at year's end, a gain of 271,000 installations.

Wage and related payments to the 58,821 employees came to $256,983,000 for the year, almost $9,000,000 more than the $248,125,000 paid in the previous year.

Total operating revenues were $537,380,015 as against $492,894,335 in 1954. In the same period, operating expenses rose from $317,364,568 to $332,228,765.

IRISH PREMIER IN MIDDLE OF SPEECH; OOPS! WRONG ONE

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Irish Prime Minister John A. Costello was well into a luncheon speech to the National Press Club today. Suddenly he stopped, conferred with an aid.

He had been reading the wrong speech—one he was to deliver later to the United States Senate.

"I'm sorry, gentlemen," he said. "I sensed that something was wrong."

Then he went back and read from the beginning of the correct speech.

PENGUIN CATCHES
BASEBALL FEVER,
'UMPIRES' GAME

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—Penguins in the Antarctic are catching the baseball fever.

A staff writer for the National Geographic Society, who accompanied R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd on his recent Antarctic expedition Operation Deepfreeze, told of one penguin who "umped" a game.

Andrew H. Brown of Wood Acres, Md., said the penguin, a "particularly friendly and inquisitive fellow," wandered over during a softball game being played on the ice by expedition members.

The penguin found the most advantageous place to watch—behind the pitcher—and "there he stood, waving his flippers and craning his neck, exactly as if he were calling balls and strikes," reported Brown.

"Finally one batter hit a skidding ground ball across the infield and dashed for first base. Whereupon our white-shirted umpire waddled just as fast to see what the play would be at the bag."

CHURCHILL TELLS OF PALMY BRITISH
ERA UNDER ROMANS

NEW YORK, March 15 (UP)—Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill says that in many respects Britons never have had it so good as they did 1600 years ago. From 100 to 400 A.D., he says, they lived comfortably under the Romans.

"For nearly 300 years Britain... enjoyed in many respects the happiest, most comfortable, and most enlightened times its inhabitants have had," Churchill said yesterday in the first installment of his "A History of the English-Speaking Peoples" in Life magazine.

In the period of the Roman occupation, he said, a well-to-do person in Britain lived better than his descendants ever did until late Victorian times.

"For 1500 years his descendants lived in the cold of unheated dwellings, mitigated by occasional roastings at gigantic wasteful fires," Churchill wrote.

"As for baths, they were completely lost until the middle of the nineteenth century. In all this long, bleak intervening gap cold and dirt clung to the most fortunate, and highest in the land."

STOCK MARKET CLIMBS
FIFTH TIME IN 6 DAYS

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—The stock market breezed into new high ground today for the fifth time in the last six sessions. Volume was large and final prices were close to the best of the day. Brokers described the leadership as going to chemicals, metals and oils.

The final range on the upside reached to around $5 a share. There were only scattered losers. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended up 90 cents at $148.60. Yesterday's net advance was $1.50.

Sales exceeded 3,000,000 shares—close in line with yesterday's 3,140,000 shares. Again, as yesterday, bullish news buoyed the list.

Painting That Artist Turned Upside Down Comes Out on Top

CLEVELAND, March 15 (AP)—The artist's signature is upside down, but the winning painting at the Chicago Art Institute's annual exhibition is hanging right side up.

"It's hanging the way I wanted it to hang," said the artist, 28-year-old Miss Anna P. Baker of Cleveland.

Two students laughed when they noticed the upside-down signature on Miss Baker's "High Frequency Ping," which took the show's top prize of $1500, her first big award.

"When I started painting it, I signed it the second day," explained the young artist. "I painted on it for nearly a year, and as it progressed I decided it looked better the other way around. The other way there is a big area that gives it a certain amount of depth, and I didn't want that."

$3,000,000 OK'D
FOR RIVERFRONT
MEMORIAL HERE

House Committee Approves Fund for Start on Project — Action Due Tuesday.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 15—A supplemental appropriation of $3,000,000 for a start on the St. Louis riverfront memorial project was approved today by the House Appropriations Committee.

The measure, submitted by President Eisenhower on March 1, now goes to the House, which is expected to act on the St. Louis request next Tuesday.

The request for funds was included in an omnibus $795,743,823 supplemental appropriation bill to finance miscellaneous Government activities during the current fiscal year ending June 30.

The $3,000,000 would be the federal contribution for relocating railroad tracks on the St. Louis levee and grading the riverfront site, steps toward ultimate development of the area as the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial. The railroad tracks would be placed in a 3000-foot tunnel paralleling the river and the eastern boundary of the park.

It has been estimated that relocating the tracks will cost $2,000,000 to $7,000,000. In authorizing federal participation in the memorial, Congress in 1954 set $1,875,000 as the amount the Government would contribute for the tunnel. The city, putting up $1 for every $3 in federal aid, would provide $625,000 from bond funds.

The remainder of the tunnel cost presumably would have to be defrayed by the Terminal and Missouri Pacific railroads. These railroads have expressed a willingness to pay part of the expense of track relocation, but the extent of their participation has never been finally decided.

Supporters of the memorial believe chances are good that the House will approve the supplemental appropriation and the Senate will concur. In this event, the money could be made available by summer.

Mrs. Sullivan Pleased.
Representative Leonor K. Sullivan (Dem., St. Louis), called the committee approval "a major step forward in the city's long fight to make its riverfront a worthy national monument."

She urged city officials and representatives of the railroads to "get together immediately" on plans for relocating the tracks.

Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), said he would press for early Senate consideration of the measure, if it is passed by the House.

A committee spokesman said the St. Louis request was approved by all members present. Representative George H. Mahon (Dem., Texas), was acting chairman in the absence of Chairman Clarence Cannon (Dem., Missouri).

The House already has passed and sent to the Senate a bill appropriating a separate fund of $150,000 to be used to fence and landscape the immediate area around the Old Court-house on the riverfront in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1957.

BOYKIN HELPED MITCHELL GET
U.S. PROSECUTION OF NEUBAUER

House Member Says He Called on U.S. Attorney, Justice Dept. — Case Pressed on Washington Orders.

By THEODORE C. LINK
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 15—Representative Frank W. Boykin (Dem., Alabama), told the Post-Dispatch today he played an active role in obtaining prosecution of Vernon F. Neubaum, former president of Jefferson Loan Co. of St. Louis.

Boykin said he made calls at the request of income-tax evader Joseph Mitchell, owner of the loan firm, for whom the Congressman interceded with Government officials when Mitchell was trying to avoid prosecution several years ago.

Neubaum was convicted March 2 in United States District Court in St. Louis of using the mails to defraud by sending out false audits of Jefferson Loan Co. to two banks. Unless an appeal is taken, he is to report to the United States marshal March 23 to begin a two-year prison term.

Call From Mitchell.
Boykin, telling of his efforts to get Neubaum prosecuted, said: "I received a telephone call last spring from Joe Mitchell from his home in Mobile, Ala. He was protesting that he could not get a proper audience with the United States Attorney in St. Louis in securing an investigation and prosecution of Neubaum."

Boykin went to the Justice Department and obtained a promise from Attorney General Herbert Brownell that the Justice Department would look into the case, Mitchell said. He subsequently instructed the Justice Department to do so.

Describing the handling of the case by the United States Attorney's office in St. Louis, Richards said:

"We had declined to act, but the criminal division of the Justice Department instructed us to go ahead and prosecute. The insisted on it, saying the case was an important one."

About one month previously, Boykin had called requesting that prosecution be started against Neubaum, Richards stated.

"I told him we were investigating the case," the United States Attorney said.

Insistence by Accountants.
He explained that the investigation had been reopened at the insistence of an accountants' organization in St. Louis, Marion F. Langenberg, who had been accountant for Jefferson Loan Co., was involved in the inquiry and was subsequently convicted with Neubaum. He has not been sentenced yet.

Richards said the prior to Boykin's call, Mitchell had appeared at his office several times, accompanied by an attorney.

WIRELESS SIGNALS
BLACKED OUT BY SUNSPOT EFFECT

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Wireless communications circuits throughout the world were blacked out for 30 to 40 minutes today by what experts term a "Dellinger fade-out."

The experts explained that it was a sudden ionospheric disturbance caused by a flare associated with a sunspot. They said all wireless signals are absorbed in the ionosphere during the disturbance.

The blackout began in New York at 11:25 a.m. RCA Communications said it hit San Francisco three minutes before the effect was felt in New York, indicating the disturbance was moving from west to east.

The Associated Press wireless circuits to London and Tokyo were blacked out from 11:25 to about 11:55 a.m.

RCA Communications and Mackay Radio said its circuits were blacked out at the same hour, and the ship-to-shore service of both was affected. Some stations reported the blackout lasted 30 minutes, others 40 minutes and a few up to an hour.

EDEN HINTS WEST BIG 3
PLAN MILITARY ACTION TO KEEP MIDEAST PEACESENATE VOTES
DUAL PARITY; SETBACK FOR ADMINISTRATION

Use of Old or New Formula, Whichever Is Higher, in Fixing Crop Price Supports Wins 45 to 44.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The Administration lost a major farm bill battle by one vote today when the Senate approved, 45 to 44, use of a dual parity system in computing crop price supports.

The vote kept in the omnibus soil bank farm bill a provision allowing use of either an old or new parity formula, whichever is higher, in calculating the level of price supports.

The new formula for computing parity became effective this year. It raised the level for some crops and lowered it for others—among them corn and wheat.

The Senate Agriculture Committee wrote the "dual parity" provision into the bill. This would allow farmers to use either the old or the new parity system—whichever was higher—in determining the level of price supports.

It could mean more than 10 cents a bushel on the wheat crop of nearly a billion bushels and somewhat less on the corn crop that sometimes is above three billion bushels.

First Major Setback.
The United Press said today's vote to use the dual parity system was the first major Administration setback in the Senate fight over a new farm bill.

Senator George Aiken (Rep., Vermont), who led an unsuccessful effort to strike out the section, said its retention would "be a fatal blow to our hope for a good farm bill this year."

Senator Clinton Anderson (Dem., New Mexico), former Secretary of Agriculture, who also opposed the dual parity, said "let's make this bill realistic so you don't ask the man down the White House to veto it."

But Democrats and Republicans from western wheat states combined to engineer the Administration setback.

Voting for the single parity formula were 35 Republicans and nine Democrats. Voting against single parity were 10 Republicans and 35 Democrats.

The one-vote margin of victory was aided by Senator William B. Laird (Dem., West Virginia), who was sworn in only about an hour before the roll call. He was appointed to succeed the late Senator Harley Kilgore (Dem.).

Both Sides Maneuver.
The roll call was marked by maneuvering on both sides. Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), first voted against Aiken's amendment. Republican leaders got him to agree to pair with Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire), and thus withhold his vote.

Democratic leaders countered by persuading Senator Albert Gore (Dem., Tennessee), to pair with Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire), and thus withhold his vote.

Democratic leaders countered by persuading Senator Albert Gore (Dem., Tennessee), to pair with Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire), and thus withhold his vote.

The victory for advocates of high price supports was locked up immediately when the winners made a motion to reconsider and then tabled the motion 49 to 12. This parliamentary maneuver meant the decision could not be reversed except by a two-thirds majority vote.

One Major Issue Left.
The vote on the parity formula amendment, the United Press said, left only one major issue in the farm bill fight. It involved an administration attempt to eliminate from the bill a provision for an increase in dairy price supports.

TEAMSTERS TRY TO DELAY STATE
LABOR MERGER

Union Here Acting Under Orders From Beck—Rollings Calls Meeting.

Local representatives of the AFL-CIO Teamsters Union are attempting to delay merger of state and city labor bodies under instructions from Dave Beck, international president of the union, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Beck, it was learned, has written locals all over the country advising their officers to exercise influence with other labor leaders to delay merger moves in the various states until at least the end of a two-year grace period agreed upon by officers of the newly-merged national labor body.

His action reflects and widens the breach between Beck, head of the largest union, and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

As a result of Beck's action, John I. Rollings, president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor (AFL) has called an executive committee meeting at Jefferson City tomorrow to give teamsters' an opportunity to express their views, although Rollings already has turned down their request for a delay.

The unit committee representing the AFL body and the Missouri State Industrial Union Council (CIO) also will meet at the same time.

The Post-Dispatch learned that upon receipt of Beck's official letter, which was dated Feb. 20, St. Louis representatives of the Teamsters arranged a meeting with Rollings and demanded that merger conventions of the state bodies, scheduled to be held in Kansas City April 9, be canceled.

When Rollings refused to disrupt plans already approved unanimously by committees representing both state labor bodies, as well as national AFL-CIO headquarters, it was indicated that the Teamsters might oppose the state unification move at the convention.

Beck, it was learned, took the position that the teamsters' jurisdiction had not been satisfactorily determined on the national level, and it would be better not to "live together" on either national or state levels than to separate later.

In attempting to delay state and local merger action, Beck took a position opposite to that of Meany, who has urged that such mergers be expedited, although conceding that a period of two years has been allowed for their consummation.

Action of the Teamsters' head follows a recent loan negotiated by his lieutenant, James R. Hoffa, of Detroit, to the independent International Longshoremen's Association.

Meany, upon learning of the $400,000 loan, announced he would institute an investigation which might mean that the Teamsters would be subject to expulsion at the next AFL-CIO convention on constitutional grounds.

Lloyd's New Plan.
Lloyd told airport reporters he believes he has found a policy for insuring the peace of the Middle East. He did not give a clue to what he has in mind, he said.

"I certainly do not think war is inevitable there. I have got some very clear ideas about the events and the course we should take in that area. I think we have to take certain action to try to preserve peace."

In the House of Lords, former Labor Prime Minister Earl Attlee criticized American policy in the Middle East in his first parliamentary speech as a peer.

"I sometimes feel, with all friendliness to our American friends, that they are a little apt to stand on the sidelines and leave us to carry on the fight," said Attlee.

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, in a radio interview in Paris, said the Western nations and the United Nations must try to guarantee both the Arab lands and Israel against attack.

He said a "fear of aggression now completely dominates policy in the Middle East" and the West must do everything it can to create "a climate of relaxation."

CONSTITUTIONAL

American, British, French Envoys Meet at Parley Arranged by Eisenhower, Prime Minister.

LONDON, March 15 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden gave a strong hint today the Big Three Western allies have drawn up new military and political plans aimed at guarding present Middle Eastern frontiers against sudden attack.

Eden told the House of Commons that some results of American, British and French discussions in Washington have to be kept secret "because of the constitutional differences" between the countries.

The Eisenhower Administration would need Congressional approval for taking any military action that might be needed to protect peace in the Middle East.

Eden's statement was prompted by Hugh Gaitskill, leader of the opposition Laborites, who asked the Prime Minister to disclose the outcome of the Washington exchanges.

Envoys' Conference.
These had been arranged by President Eisenhower and Eden after their Washington conference last month. Envoys of the three countries were assigned to figure precise ways of implementing the 1950 declaration which bound the United States, Britain and France to resist any aggressor in the Middle East.

"Discussions have taken place. I cannot give public details of the military decisions, if any. As regards political matters if the (Gaitskill) will put a question down I will see if I am in a position to make a detailed announcement."

Gaitskill suggested that if the three-power decisions were to be publicized they would have a deterrent effect on any would-be attacker who might be tempted otherwise to break the uneasy Arab-Israeli armistice.

Eden said he is well aware of this but added there were some announcements which could not be made public because of the constitutional differences between the countries.

Eden spoke shortly after the return of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd from a 16-day swing through the Orient.

Lloyd's New Plan.
Lloyd told airport reporters he believes he has found a policy for insuring the peace of the Middle East. He did not give a clue to what he has in mind, he said.

U.S. PLANNING NEW

STEVENSON AND KEFAUVER RENEW MINNESOTA FIGHT FOR DELEGATES

Both Attack G.O.P. on Farm Issue as They Intensify Efforts to Win Support for Nomination.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 15—Adlai Stevenson was back on the Minnesota battleground today in his contest with Senator Estes Kefauver for the state's delegates to the Democratic national convention. However, the Republican party was the target of both candidates as they fought in sub-zero temperatures to maintain schedules by airplane and automobile that would have challenged the mythical Paul Bunyan and his blue ox.

Stevenson, 1952 Democratic nominee, was not to be drawn into any discussion of Tuesday's New Hampshire primary which was swept by Kefauver's state of 12 delegates who will cast eight votes at the Chicago convention which convenes Aug. 13. Although a slate of delegates "favorable" to him was defeated, Stevenson had not entered his name in the "popularity" contest and had not campaigned in the state as Kefauver had done both in 1952 and 1956.

Kefauver, on the other hand, continued to express, in his characteristically reserved fashion, elation at his New Hampshire success, suggesting that a reappraisal of his prospects both in the Minnesota primary next Tuesday, and in the nation, might be indicated.

Stevenson Speech.
"The stock market is rising to new highs and farm prices are dropping to new lows," Stevenson said at Grand Rapids, the first of 11 appearances he was to make before flying most of the length of the state to Mankato tonight.

"This is precisely what we saw in 1929 on the eve of the most acute economic distress this country has ever suffered. I don't think the situation is anywhere near as bad now as then because we have built defenses into our economy—security regulation, bank deposit insurance, social security, farm supports, public spending, among others.

"And it is well to remember that they were all built in during 20 years of Democratic administration; and every one of them was opposed every step of the way by the Republicans.

"I say that all these things are symptoms of the Republicans' largest failure," Stevenson continued. "They have thrown the Government out of balance by giving too much weight—indeed virtually exclusive weight—to the interests of a single segment of our economy. Big business is in the saddle in the Cabinet, in the White House, in the Congress, in the courts, in the press, in the pulpit, in the schools, in the churches, in the homes, in the hearts of the people."

"Only One Voice Heard."
"Now, we Democrats have never argued that big business shouldn't be represented in the Government. What we object to is a government in which there is no room for anyone else—the farmer, labor, the consumer, the educator, the small business man. We say that only one voice is heard at the council tables in Washington; it is a special interest government and it bodes no good either for the people or their system of democratic government."

As Kefauver has been doing since his return to Minnesota for a last round in the second state to hold a presidential primary, Stevenson made the most of the plight of the farmer in talks at Coleraine, Calumet, Nashua, Keewauqua, Hibbing, Chisholm, Virginia, Buhl Mountain, Iron and Eveleth, all in the iron range but still affected by farm prices.

"Just the other day," Stevenson said, "Republican Chairman (Leonard) Hall jumped on me about the things I had said about the conditions I had found in Minnesota. I had said the bank deposits were declining in Minnesota for the first time in years and Mr. Hall said it wasn't so."

Source of Figures.
"Well, I got my figures from the latest reports of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minnesota. I can only assume that Mr. Hall got his out of his hat—and it is no farmer's hat, I can tell you."

"Mr. Hall also challenged my statement that the farm depression is spreading, as evidence by the fact that a Minneapolis farm implement factory had just laid off some 1100 of its 1300 employees. The Republican chairman said that, on the contrary, the farm implement business had never had it so good."

"I don't know where he got those figures, either, but I know where he didn't get them. He didn't get them from the Wall Street Journal, which has never been described as a Democratic house organ. On Feb. 29, the Journal reported that international Harvester was cutting production by 20 per cent at two of its tractor plants and added that the whole farm equipment industry is undergoing a production trimming because of rising inventories."

Cites Drop in Income.
"Frankly, for the life of me, I can't see how the Republicans could expect it to be any different. How could the farmers of this country be buying as much equipment this year as they did even last year when they have just suffered another billion dollar cut in their net annual income? And that's a

"And I suggest," Stevenson went on, "that it is not only a tractor the farmer can't buy today, it's shoes, and television sets, and automobiles. If the present shrinking of farm economy continues, the whole of our economy is bound to be affected."

"It seems to me that the Republicans refuse to recognize the first truth about the farm problem. They insist on treating it as a thing apart, when, in fact, it is part of the larger problem of keeping a firm base under American business."

13-Billion-Dollar Customer.
"Main street can't prosper when the back country is in trouble. The problem isn't just the farmer's. It is the small business man, the retailer, the merchant, the small service firm. After all, agriculture is a 13-billion-dollar-a-year customer of industry and labor. And agriculture employs 10,000,000 people in processing and marketing agricultural commodities, 6,000,000 in plants directly occupied with providing agricultural needs."

Senator Kefauver was following closely the trail which Stevenson blazed last week and was getting turnouts nearly as large as those of Stevenson. Tomorrow, Kefauver planned to follow Stevenson through the iron range.

"Secretary of Agriculture Benson," Kefauver said today at Elk River, as he traveled eastward toward Duluth for a television appearance tonight, "is still fighting for the program that brought disaster to the farmer for three and a half years."

The Secretary of Agriculture, he said, "doesn't understand the problems of agriculture and the farm situation, and I don't think they deserve the support of Democrats, Republicans or independents."

And it is well to remember that they were all built in during 20 years of Democratic administration; and every one of them was opposed every step of the way by the Republicans.

"I say that all these things are symptoms of the Republicans' largest failure," Stevenson continued. "They have thrown the Government out of balance by giving too much weight—indeed virtually exclusive weight—to the interests of a single segment of our economy. Big business is in the saddle in the Cabinet, in the White House, in the Congress, in the courts, in the press, in the pulpit, in the schools, in the churches, in the homes, in the hearts of the people."

"Only One Voice Heard."
"Now, we Democrats have never argued that big business shouldn't be represented in the Government. What we object to is a government in which there is no room for anyone else—the farmer, labor, the consumer, the educator, the small business man. We say that only one voice is heard at the council tables in Washington; it is a special interest government and it bodes no good either for the people or their system of democratic government."

As Kefauver has been doing since his return to Minnesota for a last round in the second state to hold a presidential primary, Stevenson made the most of the plight of the farmer in talks at Coleraine, Calumet, Nashua, Keewauqua, Hibbing, Chisholm, Virginia, Buhl Mountain, Iron and Eveleth, all in the iron range but still affected by farm prices.

"Just the other day," Stevenson said, "Republican Chairman (Leonard) Hall jumped on me about the things I had said about the conditions I had found in Minnesota. I had said the bank deposits were declining in Minnesota for the first time in years and Mr. Hall said it wasn't so."

Source of Figures.
"Well, I got my figures from the latest reports of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minnesota. I can only assume that Mr. Hall got his out of his hat—and it is no farmer's hat, I can tell you."

"Mr. Hall also challenged my statement that the farm depression is spreading, as evidence by the fact that a Minneapolis farm implement factory had just laid off some 1100 of its 1300 employees. The Republican chairman said that, on the contrary, the farm implement business had never had it so good."

"I don't know where he got those figures, either, but I know where he didn't get them. He didn't get them from the Wall Street Journal, which has never been described as a Democratic house organ. On Feb. 29, the Journal reported that international Harvester was cutting production by 20 per cent at two of its tractor plants and added that the whole farm equipment industry is undergoing a production trimming because of rising inventories."

WILSON 'HOPES' REDS WILL YIELD ON DISARMING

But Makes It Clear That U.S. Insists on Prior Accord on Plan of Safe Control.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson said today he holds a "reasonable hope" that Russia ultimately will negotiate with this country on disarmament.

Wilson told a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee that there are "some realists" in the Kremlin who know, as the United States knows, that there can be no winner in an atomic or hydrogen war. He said he is sure there must be "some men of good will in Russia just like there are in this country."

But Wilson made it clear the United States does not propose to disarm until there is agreement on a plan for safe control. He said the aerial inspection and exchange of military blueprints proposed by President Eisenhower would be a "good start" and added that "any system" would have to include ground inspection.

Wilson testified before a subcommittee headed by Senator Humphrey (Dem., Minnesota), which is hunting for means to promote disarmament. He was accompanied by Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Stockpile Question.
Humphrey wanted to know "How you can have an effective inspection system if you cannot be sure as to what 'nuclear stockpiles' is hidden away?"

Previous testimony has brought out that hidden stockpiles cannot be detected 100 yards away.

Wilson said he appreciates the difficulties but he does not consider the ultimate development of detection devices impossible.

In his prepared testimony Wilson said no safe atomic disarmament control plans is "in immediate prospect" and added: "Until science evolves a satisfactory method for the detection of hidden stockpiles, no disarmament program undertaken in the interim can provide a control system for nuclear weapons which would preclude risks to security interests of the United States."

Humphrey asked how any agreement for aerial inspection and exchange of military blueprints could be effective unless it applied also to Red China. He said the Red Chinese are "well stockpiled by Russia."

"It will have to be a later step," Wilson replied.

He agreed that the matter presents a "problem," but said that if an inspection system applied only to Russia at first that would be better than no progress.

Secretary of State Dulles and Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament, have previously testified to the subcommittee.

Wilson said the chances of making realistic progress on disarmament with the Russians are enhanced if "both parties feel they are dealing from strength." The recognition of a balance of military power, he said, will produce best results.

Radford told the subcommittee that Mr. Eisenhower's "open skies" proposal would not stop any and all surprise attacks. But he said it would block any surprise blow. That, he added, is the main thing in the atomic age. He said a surprise attack which did not knock out the victim would "only bring retaliation and self-destruction."

Senator Symington (Dem., Missouri), drew from Radford a "freeze" on nuclear stockpiles does not mean a bar on nuclear weapons.

HOUSE UNIT SAYS TVA SHOULD PAY FOR EXPANSION

Turns Down Request for New Money—Minority Challenges Legality.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee held today that the Tennessee Valley Authority should pay for new construction with its own money and turned down a request for $3,500,000.

The money had been requested by the Administration to start building a new generating unit at TVA's John Sevier steam plant.

A minority of the committee disagrees with the action on grounds that use of TVA revenues for the construction would violate the intent of Congress.

The question of congressional intent prohibiting use of TVA revenues for "new power producing projects" had been argued at length at committee hearings.

Involved in the argument was the interpretation to be given to the word "project"—did it include a complete power plant, but not apply to a new unit in an existing plant?

Majority View.
The committee majority took the latter view—that construction of a new unit at an existing plant is not prohibited by the Government Corporations Control Act.

The minority group, however, wrote in the committee report that "to us the language is a definite prohibition" of such use of TVA funds.

The minority cited an opinion of Joseph C. Swidler, TVA counsel, that such use of revenue or corporate funds is permissible.

The two reports were prepared by a subcommittee which conducted hearings on the House action next week. $182,000,000 for veterans' readjustment benefits, $25,000,000 for payments to school districts where population has been boosted by federal activities, and $9,900,000 for construction of schools in such districts.

These were among the major recommendations in an omnibus $795,743,823 supplemental appropriation bill to finance miscellaneous activities during the current fiscal year ending June 30.

The total was $40,159,100 less than President Eisenhower had requested. The biggest cut was $15,351,500 lopped from the $129,051,500 requested for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The bill includes $26,000,000 for scientific work in connection with the International Geophysical Year. This program includes plans to send a manned satellite around the world within the next two years.

A large portion of the bill's total, $266,771,471, was to meet federal pay increases voted last year by Congress but not financed in last year's appropriation bills.

Other allotments included $300,000 to pay operating subsidies to shanty operators; $100,000,000 to reimburse states for the Government's share of the cost of highway construction projects and $3,000,000 for forest highway work; $47,000,000 for grants to states for public assistance; $200,000 for expenses of the special commission studying Government security programs; $56,000 to start work on a war memorial on Corregidor island; and $300,000 for expenses of special House committees.

It approved also, subject to House action next week, $182,000,000 for veterans' readjustment benefits, $25,000,000 for payments to school districts where population has been boosted by federal activities, and $9,900,000 for construction of schools in such districts.

Cyprus Strike Goes On, British Question Friend of Makarios

Two Policemen Wounded in Nicosia as Violence Erupts—Commons Backs Eden's Policy.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 15 (AP)—British authorities pressed their clampdown on strife-torn Cyprus today as a general strike protesting against the ouster of Archbishop Makarios went into its fourth day.

The British, striving to put a tight lid on the smoldering island, arrested a close friend of Makarios, Abbot Chrysostomos, head of the wealthy Kykkos monastery, was whisked off to a secret destination.

After four hours of questioning, the abbot was allowed to return to the monastery. A spokesman there declined to comment on the detention.

Makarios, Greek Orthodox leader of the Cypriot movement for union with Greece, began his religious career at Kykkos. The monastery financed his education here and abroad.

Scattered violence sputtered again across the island. Gunmen wounded two policemen in Nicosia, the island capital where a British police sergeant was killed 24 hours earlier. Two other policemen were shot at on the edge of town, but their assailants missed and was nabbed.

The new violence came on the heels of Prime Minister Eden's pledge to restore order in Cyprus before making concessions to the islanders.

Support for Eden.
Eden was bolstered by a 317-to-252 vote of confidence in the House of Commons last night after making clear his government intended to keep control over the Mediterranean island colony which is Britain's last bastion in the Middle East.

British troops and police sealed off with barbed wire a block of downtown Nicosia where the police sergeant was killed yesterday. The British made a thorough search for "a secret hideout for arms and possibly terrorists" in the region, where nine British service men have been killed by backers of the union-with-Greece movement since last August.

In Larnaca a 7-year-old Greek Cypriot boy who was stoning military vehicles with other children was shot and killed.

Pakhsia village, which refused to pay a collective fine of $1680 for attacking the local police station, was put under curfew until the fine was paid.

Strike Paralyzes Island.
The general strike paralyzed the island's business. Only a few Turkish shops remained open. There appeared to be a further stiffening of the Greek Cypriot determination to continue the walkout which has caused heavy losses for merchants, laborers and clerks.

Big British military construction projects to expand the Middle East base on the island were halted by the strike.

BOYKIN HELPED GET PROSECUTION OF NEUBAUER

torney, to ask that Neubauer be prosecuted.

"At the time we had only a mail fraud case, and only a weak one at that," Richards declared. "We couldn't charge Neubauer and Langenberg with taking any of the firm's money."

"There were a number of charges pending against the two men in the circuit court, and we believed the state had the strongest case. That seemed to be the place to prosecute them, but the circuit attorney's office hadn't done anything about it."

Further Evidence Found. Richards said that, originally, his office had proof of only one false audit of Jefferson Loan Co. being mailed by Neubauer and Langenberg. Later, when the case was being prepared for prosecution, the mailing of another false audit was discovered, he explained.

Herbert H. Freer, an assistant United States Attorney in St. Louis, told the Post-Dispatch he originally had rejected Mitchell's request for prosecution because evidence at the time was insufficient. Freer wrote to Mitchell's attorney in St. Louis, saying: "We have concluded against undertaking prosecution in this case and the file has been closed."

Shortly after Attorney General Brownell's department ordered prosecution, the case was presented to the federal grand jury in St. Louis, which returned indictments last June 26.

Earlier Assistance. When Mitchell and his brother-in-law, Sam Rippes, found themselves deep in income tax trouble with the Government, Boykin tried to discourage prosecution, a congressional committee was told. An assistant attorney general testified before the committee in 1951 that Boykin had intervened on behalf of the two Alabama tax evaders.

Boykin acknowledged to the Post-Dispatch that he made frequent calls to T. Lamar Caudle, then head of the Justice Department's tax division, regarding the Mitchell-Rippes tax case.

John H. Mitchell not related to Joseph Mitchell, told the congressional committee, when he was heading the tax case, as an assistant attorney general, he heard rumors in Alabama that Boykin and Caudle had "fixed" the tax case.

The witness also said that he suspected there had been a "leak" to Boykin of what action the Government planned to take in the case.

Despite efforts by Mitchell and Rippes to avoid prosecution failed and they were subsequently indicted and sentenced to prison in 1950.

The Post-Dispatch has reported that Joseph Mitchell, a former St. Louisan, offered a large contribution to the Democratic National Committee and arranged for his loan firm to give $5000 to the committee's finance director at a time when Mitchell was in tax trouble.

All aspects of the Mitchell-Rippes tax case, including a report that Mitchell gave a $25000 car to the wife of a Democratic politician, will be investigated by federal authorities, it was learned. Neubauer was interviewed Tuesday on his knowledge of Mitchell's activities in attempts to avoid prosecution.

FIRE DESTROYS MAIN BUILDING AT FULTON HOSPITAL

determined. Clarence Burton, the hospital engineer and fire chief, said, however, the electrical wiring was in "bad shape."

It was believed the blaze started in one of three cupolas that jut out from the top story at the front.

The two top stories have not been used recently because of their run-down condition. The first and second floors were used for offices and waiting rooms.

Most of the patients concerned were in the wings. As it turned out, no flames got to the rooms where they were. Those quarters were fitted with concrete floors, tiled walls and ceilings and steel partitions and staircases under federal projects in the 1930s.

Two hundred fifty patients were quartered in the central section that burned, but had no difficulty in getting down the fireproof stairways of the wings.

The others were being moved back to their regular places in the water-soaked wings today, and helping sweep up a large amount of water pouring through.

The flames could be seen several miles away, and the glow was noticeable as far as Jefferson City, 25 miles from here. Hundreds of Fulton residents turned out to help or watch.

As for the patients that had to be moved, B. E. Ragland, director of the State Division of Mental Diseases, said "We are housing them in other buildings as best we can. We may have to transfer them to other hospitals. The wings were badly damaged by water."

The buildings were not insured. Gov. Donnelly said it had been assumed that fire losses could be replaced with money saved by not paying insurance premiums. "No such savings have been earmarked for such purposes, however."

At his regular press conference at Jefferson City today, the Governor noted that the hospital staff and the patients had been trained in fire drills.

The orderly manner in which the building was cleared of patients brought high praise for the staff, from Gov. Donnelly. C. Roush Gallup, director of the Department of Public Health and Welfare, and also from Ragland.

The witness, Steve Adamson of St. Louis, a former resident of Fulton, who arrived just a few minutes after the fire started, said "the patients walked out in a very orderly manner, and didn't seem to be excited at all."

"The faces were just blank as they stood and watched. I was reminded of pictures made at mine disasters in southern Illinois, showing the faces of anxious parents as they stood and waited."

"We kicked out a few windows, and moved furniture and office records out to the front, with a lot of people pitching in to help."

"I would say it was not very spectacular—just a fire. There was nothing to explode, except an occasional light bulb."

Adamson said some spectators remarked that the fire was something that "should have been expected long ago, and that in view of the fact that no lives were lost it might be considered a 'Godsend' in causing the Legislature to provide funds for improvements without further delay."

Some members of the Westminster faculty also went to the fire, and were heard telling students there on the job that they need not worry, that some examinations scheduled for today would be canceled.

Fulton is 110 miles west of St. Louis.

Doctor Loses Clothing.

Dr. G. S. Warach, a hospital psychiatrist, was one of three staff members who had living quarters in the administration building. He lost all his clothing except a pair of shorts and a robe he put on when the hospital telephone operator notified him of the fire.

"I didn't take time for anything but to throw a robe on and get to the patients," he related. He ran down the corridor and supervised attendants who were removing patients from the H-shaped structure.

Dr. Warach, who was born in India and has been on the staff at Fulton since 1948, had high praise for the telephone operator on duty, and also for off-duty attendants who quickly came to the scene from a residential area of small cottages near the grounds.

"It was amazing," the psychiatrist said, "how promptly the attendants showed up and helped get the patients out." There were about 25 attendants on duty at the time of the fire, he estimated.

"Everybody worked together and the patients were moved out without any disorder whatever," Dr. Warach said. "I thank God that we didn't lose a single patient."

Since the only part of the structure that burned was the administrative section and staff quarters, in the cross-bar of the H-shaped hospital, the patients would not have been harmed even if they had not been moved, he pointed out.

Dr. Warach said the patients were tractable, seemed to understand what was going on, and gave no trouble. He wore a shirt and trousers and topcoat that he borrowed from a friend.

Physician Asleep.

Immediately above Dr. Warach's second-floor apartment was the residence of Dr. Frank J. Nichols, 80 years old, a physician on the staff. Mrs. Ferris, the chief housekeeper and one of the two persons hurt, was across the hall from Dr. Nichols.

"I was sound asleep when the fire started," Dr. Nichols said. "They pounded on the door and practically broke it down to get me up."

The hospital business manager, Robert Seaman, said the patients were kept calm by repeated assurances that there was no great danger to them, that they would get out in good time.

A telephone switchboard in a small annex behind the central building was in operation this morning, with the women taking turns at handling emergency calls. Mrs. Howard Hayes, Mrs. Percy Langley and Mrs. Alma Miller proceeded with the work in calm fashion although the annex was near the "base of the burned-out back wall, which a strong wind might have toppled down on them."

Use of the switchboard was discontinued at mid-day, and telephone repairmen began stringing lines so there would be one usable telephone in each building.

Seaman, the business manager, said other institutions had offered to help by accepting some of the patients, but that none would be transferred at this time.

The hospital records were saved, and the office was re-established temporarily in the occupational therapy building.

EDEN HINTS WEST HAS ARMY PLAN FOR MIDDLE EAST

he can find no one in the department "who has ever heard of" a reported plan for creation of a new U.N. commission to operate in Israel and the Arab states.

(Asked whether there was any consideration of imposing new authority over Gen. E. L. Burns, present truce supervisor, White said United States policy provides for "the utmost support we can give to Gen. Burns in his effort in this area."

(White said also that "we and a lot of other people are thinking seriously of what as a practical matter could be done by the United Nations in this situation, but there has been no decision on what would be feasible and practical.")

At his press conference yesterday, referring to the Middle East, President Eisenhower said that the question as to "exactly what representation to make to the United Nations" was under intensive study.

A new approach to the United Nations, he added, is "one of the elements" of the study.

In reference to the question of supplying additional arms to Israel, Mr. Eisenhower said that the United States has not "foreclosed" on Israel's request for new weapons.

"I never said, and I am sure the Secretary of State never said, that we would not furnish arms to Israel. We were hoping for a better solution."

Middle East specialists later cautioned against concluding from the President's use of the past tense that a decision to supply arms to Israel had been made. They maintained that the decision—unless it is in the President's mind—is still pending.

The United Press said Israel renewed its plea for United States arms today. Reuven Shiloah, Israeli minister, paid what he described as a "routine call" at the State Department. He said under questioning that Israel's long-standing arms requests would be discussed.

"We never meet anybody in this department," he said, "where we do not discuss arms."

Authoritative sources said the United States' plans to ask the Security Council to form a new Middle East commission were nearly complete, but the final decisions had not yet been taken. They expected the United States to make the proposal jointly with Britain and France soon—possibly as early as next week.

An enthusiastic reception from Israel and the Arab states was not expected, since the functions of such a commission necessarily require the privilege of free movement by its members in the area concerned. Israel in particular has shown itself sensitive on this question and has insisted the members of existing United Nations observer teams be accompanied by Israeli officers.

It was pressed that the Soviet Union would want to take part in any new commission. This prospect raised hope of Soviet co-operation in the Security Council and also raised a problem for the Western powers, who would like to avoid bringing Soviet officials into the Middle East.

A problem was seen in the danger that a new commission would diminish the authority of Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada who now holds the post of chief of staff of the United Nations truce supervision organization. He is generally judged to have been highly successful in maintaining the confidence of both Arabs and Israelis.

A possible way out would be to elevate Gen. Burns' functions and make him part of the new body.

The post the Canadian general now occupies was created by the United Nations Assembly in 1948 to assist Count Folke Bernadotte as mediator in the conflict between Israelis and Arabs.

SENATE VOTES DUAL PARITY ON FARM SUPPORTS

at which a farm product has a fair purchasing power in terms of costs of things farmers must buy.

Crops are supported at a percentage of parity, so its level determines Government price supports on wheat, corn and other major crops.

Aiken, in one of several exchanges yesterday, cautioned that the Senate was loading the farm measure with provisions that President Eisenhower would have to veto.

Aiken and Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minnesota), figured in one of the biggest flare-ups of the long debate yesterday.

Humphrey's proposal called for an extra $60,000,000 for the free milk program for schools and other agencies in the next 27 months, and an extra $12,000,000 in the same period for elimination of brucellosis, a livestock disease that causes undulant fever.

The Senate unanimously adopted the addition, but not before Aiken protested that it was an effort to load the bill down with favorable provisions that would make a veto highly unpopular.

Still Much Work to Do. Between gusts of angry debate, the Senate approved or rejected a variety of amendments, but it still had a stack of 60 or more that could be offered.

Sensors Frederick G. Payne and Margaret Chase Smith (Rep., Maine), lost, 58 to 29, an effort to make white potatoes a wide variety of other crops eligible for payments under soil bank provisions for taking unneeded land out of production of surplus crops.

A voice vote defeated an amendment by McCarthy to increase milk price supports to 90 per cent of parity. Still to come is a test on increasing the present 75 per cent minimum to 80 per cent, as provided in the bill.

A voice vote wrote into the bill an amendment providing that cotton acreage allotments for 1957 and 1958 shall not be less than those in effect for this year.

Another voice vote adopted an amendment by Humphrey to increase from $300,000,000 to $300,000,000 the value of farm surpluses which may be used abroad by voluntary charitable agencies. The figure would also include commodities donated by the Government for disaster relief.

Senate Roll Call on Parity Plan

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP).

BABY BOY WHO FELL FROM UPPER BUNK DIES

Leonard Stegall, 10-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hebrew Stegall, 21 Bellair avenue, Robertson, died at St. Louis County Hospital last night of head injuries suffered in a fall from the upper tier of a bunk bed in his home.

The child's mother said she had placed him on the bunk bed, five feet above the floor, while cleaning the house yesterday morning. The Stegalls are Negroes.

A voice vote wrote into the bill an amendment providing that cotton acreage allotments for 1957 and 1958 shall not be less than those in effect for this year.

Another voice vote adopted an amendment by Humphrey to increase from $300,000,000 to $300,000,000 the value of farm surpluses which may be used abroad by voluntary charitable agencies. The figure would also include commodities donated by the Government for disaster relief.

JOHN J. M'ATEE NAMED TO COUNTY G.O.P. GROUP

John J. M'Attee, former St. Louis county counselor, was named Republican committeeman of Gravois Township last night by the St. Louis County Republican Central Committee.

McAttee will fill the unexpired term, ending next August, of Walter A. Siebert, who was found shot to death in his Webster Groves home last month. Mrs. June Joy Milton, a divorcee friend of Siebert, is being held in the killing.

McAttee, who lives at 12 Roseacre lane, Webster Groves, said he will be a candidate in the August primary for election to the committee post for a four-year term.

TINY TRANSISTOR DEVELOPED

PHILADELPHIA, March 15 (AP)—Philco Corp. announced yesterday the development of what it described as the world's smallest transistor—so tiny that it can be placed on a dime and it can operate on as little as one ten-thousandth of a watt. Philco engineers said the device will find "important" use in guided missiles, hearing aids, portable radios and amplifying equipment.

C.A.B. MEMBER DENIES AIRLINES INFLUENCED HIM

Says Talk With Industry Official Didn't Sway His Vote on Fare Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Harmar Denny of the Civil Aeronautics Board denied yesterday that a conversation with an airlines industry spokesman influenced his vote to drop a proposed CAB inquiry concerning airline fares. Questioning by Chairman Celler (Dem., New York), of a House anti-trust subcommittee set off a row as Republican members spoke up for Denny. He formerly was a Republican House member from Pennsylvania. Republicans charged the inquiry was getting into politics. Celler demanded to know what Denny told other board members about his conversation with Stuart Tipton, counsel for the Air Transport Association, and placed under oath another CAB member, Joseph P. Adams. No other witnesses at the inquiry had been sworn.

Won't Press Question. Celler finally agreed not to press the question until board members could confer and consult counsel on their contention that their conversations at board meetings are confidential and protected from inquiry by congressional committees. Denny testified he joined the board April 7, 1953, when the other members were divided evenly on a question of going ahead with an investigation to determine if airline fares were excessive.

Denny said he was not informed on the subject, but his inquiries indicated it was a good idea to have investigation. He so voted April 10.

Gap Was Narrowing.

On April 27, he said, after studying the question more thoroughly and considering information gathered by the CAB staff, he came to the conclusion the gap between airline costs and airline fares was narrowing. He voted to drop the inquiry.

Celler asked about the conversation with Tipton. Denny replied he had had such a conversation. He said he mentioned the conversation at a board meeting "and it must have been reported to you by the members of the board or staff."

Representative Keating of New York, senior Republican member of the subcommittee, interposed, saying "that has been happening, the whole line of questioning showed it."

Celler denied obtaining the information in such a manner and told Denny he would not say where he got it.

Denny told Celler that if he was informed by "your private investigation" that Denny had reported to the board information from Tipton caused him to change his vote, "it is absolutely incorrect."

ACTION DELAYED ON PAYING STATES FOR EXISTING ROADS

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—A House roads subcommittee reconsidered yesterday and voted to make a more careful study before deciding on a plan reimburse states for existing roads that may be made part of the interstate highway system. It voted to ask the Secretary of Commerce to make a study of the problem and report by Jan. 2, 1958.

The group also agreed that no funds for the proposed interstate system should go to states which allow within their boundaries trucks that are bigger and heavier than standards recommended by the American Association of State Highway Officials. Both decisions are subject to approval of the full committee.

The subcommittee is studying a bill which would set up a 13-year highway construction program costing more than $5 billion dollars.

Charges 'Brazen' Attacks by Egypt—Says Propaganda Is 'More Warlike.'

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 15 — Israel yesterday warned the United Nations Security Council of a sharp deterioration in its relations with Egypt along the Gaza strip.

A letter by Mordecai R. Kidron, Israeli delegate, told of "frequent and brazen" attacks, of increased Egyptian troop concentrations on the border, and of "propaganda against Israel that grows more warlike and more virulent with every passing day."

The Egyptian delegation denied that troops were being massed along the Israeli boundary, and said Kidron's letter was "full of inaccuracies, intended for propaganda purposes." The Israeli charges should have been made to the Mixed Armistice Commission, an Egyptian spokesman said.

In his letter, Kidron said that in the past three months, "close to 180 separate acts of aggression" by Egyptian forces have occurred in the Gaza strip area—an average of two incidents a day along a 25-mile stretch of border.

The aggressive acts include mining of tracks and roads in Israel, armed infiltration, and fire from Egyptian strong points and snipers on Israeli aircraft.

patrols and fixed positions, he stated. Attacks on Israeli fixed positions have been stepped up from about nine a month in December to 45 between Feb. 16 and March 9, he added.

Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief of the U.N. truce supervisors, has tried to stop this "indiscriminate firing, but so far has been 'wholly unsuccessful,'" Kidron said.

Israel's troubles along its Galilean border with Syria were the subject of another report received yesterday from Gen. Burns on the March 4 incident in which four Israeli patrolmen were killed.

Egyptian Raiders Accused of Penetrating Mile Into Israel. JERUSALEM, (Israeli Sector) March 15 (UP)—An Israeli military spokesman said today that an Egyptian raiding party, pretending to be Arab farmers, penetrated more than a mile into Israeli territory.

An Israeli patrol moved in to stop the infiltrators and were met by a barrage of fire, the spokesman said. He added that the raiders were provided with covering fire from machine-guns at an Egyptian position in the Gaza strip. He made no mention of casualties.

An Egyptian military spokesman at Gaza charged that an Israeli patrol fired across the demarcation line and wounded two Arab civilians working their fields.

CAPS (REMEMBER 'EM?) REGAIN TOP FASHION BILLING

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Hats off to the cap, men—it's back again.

And in high style, too. This ancient form of head covering, worn for centuries in one form or another, had all but followed the nickel cigar into oblivion.

A nifty new type of cap, called the "Ivy League" because of its first popularity on Ivy League college campuses, turned the trick.

This one is a neat, trim, jaunty little item, which doesn't overhang in the back or drape over the sides. It has a single-piece top and short visor.

Manufacturers are doing headstands of delight over its success. The caps retail at 98 cents to $2.50.

Some trade people attribute its shove-off to both the lads in the Ivy League colleges—Harvard, Yale, etc.—and sports car enthusiasts.

LOUD NOISE IN SKY SHAKES HOMES THROUGHOUT COUNTY

A loud noise in the sky over St. Louis county shortly after 10 a.m. today resulted in a number of telephone calls to county police, but they had no explanation as to whether it was a sonic boom. Many homes shook and plaster cracked in some.

The control tower at Lambert-St. Louis Field reported that a McDonnell Aircraft Corp. F-101 Voodoo jet fighter landed about that time. A McDonnell spokesman said, however, that two Voodoos being tested were not flying at supersonic speeds and were more than 50 miles from St. Louis.

Webster Groves, Kirkwood and Glendale police also received inquiries, and some came from as far as Eureka, Allenton, Lemay and Manchester.

MILITARY URGED TO AUCTION ITS SURPLUS GOODS

Senators Say Return Would Be Greater Than Under Sealed Bid Method.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee said today the military is realizing only about 7 per cent of the original cost of the billions of dollars worth of surplus goods it is selling.

Urging greater emphasis on sale by auction, the Armed Services subcommittee on preparedness headed by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem., Texas), said in a report that only a minor part of the surplus sales now are conducted that way.

Case studies conducted by subcommittee investigators showed that in some instances the return when the auction system was used was almost double that from the sealed bid method, the report said.

Much Property Unused. The subcommittee also commented that "a large percentage of property being sold as surplus was unused and in good condition," adding that:

"It is quite likely that the need for the property may have disappeared. However, the sale of unused equipment always creates doubts and uncertainty as to the wisdom of purchasing the material in the first instance."

"These doubts are difficult to resolve and to overcome." Some of the predominantly unused items in a recent Navy sale, the report said, included photographic equipment, pumps, lighting fixtures, paper, fans, cooking items and fiber-glass.

The Senators said that in 1954 the Defense Department sold for $84,305,071 property originally bought for $1,184,319,708, or a return of 7.1 per cent.

In fiscal 1955, which ended last June 30, the department was said to have sold for $103,047,320, exclusive of scrap proceeds, property bought for $1,406,907,540 or a return of 7.3 per cent.

"It is estimated that surplus property sales will continue at the same, or even a larger, volume in the next two years," the report said.

Auction Preferred. The Senators said that not only do auction sales appear to yield a greater return, but also the public "seemingly prefers" to buy in this manner and administrative expenses of auctions are no higher than other disposal methods.

The report said "disposal of surplus military equipment has reached volume proportions to such an extent that it is 'big business' in every sense. It should be dealt with as such."

The subcommittee called on Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson to order the Army, Navy and Air Force "to conduct analytical studies to ascertain the return received from property of the same type and condition through the various sales methods in order to determine the method of sale yielding the highest return."

RELIGIOUS MOTIVATIONS' TO BE SUBJECT OF INQUIRY

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—The Synagogue Council of America is planning a research project designed to explore people's underlying "religious motivations."

The study, reported yesterday, was described as the first scientific inquiry ever attempted into basic factors which turn individuals toward—or away from—the active worship of God.

The council is made up of the national associations of three branches of Judaism—Orthodox, Reform and Conservative.

OUTDOOR PHONE BOOTHS PROVE A HIT WITH PUBLIC

Outdoor telephone booths—350 now in metropolitan St. Louis—are multiplying so rapidly here that some day they may outnumber indoor pay phones, according to Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. officials.

Because of their convenience, outdoor phones stimulate new business and are used 20 per cent more than indoor phones, a company spokesman said. Two booths installed outside the old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets—where there are 15 heavily used booths inside—became two of the most used telephones in the city.

In St. Louis, development of the outside telephone booth got fully under way only two years ago. Last year 150 booths were installed and 150 more are scheduled for installation this year.

The outdoor public phone booth innovation began after World War II as an emergency measure when the demand for private telephones could not be met. The idea at that time was to tear down outdoor booths after catching up with a backlog of orders. But now they are here to stay, an official said, because people like them.

ST. LOUIS ALREADY HAS MORE THAN HALF OF THE 650 OUTDOOR BOOTHS IN MISSOURI.

40,000 AMPHIBIOUS TROOPS REPORTED OPPOSITE QUEMOY

TAIPEI, March 15 (AP)—About 40,000 Communist Chinese troops trained for amphibious warfare have arrived in the mainland area opposite the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and the Matsus, the Tatsoi news agency said today.

The agency, operated by the Interior Ministry and claiming underground contacts on the mainland, said the troops had come from the north China sea-port of Tsingtao.

It also said the Reds had installed anti-aircraft guns and searchlights on the causeway they have built between the mainland and Amoy island, six miles west of Quemoy.

U.S. Expands Satellite Program, Will Launch 12, Hopes 8 Stay Up

$28,000,000 More Sought From Congress for Geophysical Year—Base to Be in Florida.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—The United States now plans to launch 12 earth satellites in the hope at least eight will stay up as "laboratories in space."

These figures were disclosed in recent secret testimony before a House appropriations subcommittee. The testimony was released last night by the subcommittee.

The last previous official word was that this country expected to fire 10 artificial moons in the 1957-8 International Geophysical Year. The hope then was to "hang up" at least five or six.

The expanded plans were revealed in connection with a request for $28,000,000 more to finance the satellite and other phases of United States participation in I.G.Y. Congress previously appropriated $12,000,000.

I.G.Y. is a world-wide undertaking, to cost $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 in all, in which 55 nations will join in searches for new information about the earth and space.

Dr. Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation, said the satellite program means "that mankind is now seriously embarked upon the exploration of outer space."

Scientists said information gleaned by the satellites from their orbits above the atmosphere could lead to "major breakthroughs" worth billions in weather forecasting, air transportation, radio communications, and navigation.

It also could throw light on many an enigma which earth-bound man cannot study from his position at the bottom of the "ocean of atmosphere."

It might even disclose whether creation still is going on—in whether hydrogen, the "mother gas" of the universe, still is being created.

The satellites will be launched at different intervals between July 1, 1957, and June, 1959. The first one and its launching rockets are under construction. Officials hope to get it up some time before Sept. 30, next year.

The satellites will be hurled into orbits 200 to 800 miles high by three-stage rockets fired at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla. They will weave around

Excerpts From Press Conference

WASHINGTON,
March 15 (AP).

Following are excerpts from the transcript of President Eisenhower's press conference yesterday.

The President: Good morning. Sit down, please. . . .

I want to make a slight correction on my statement I made last week. . . . Someone asked me when I had my first hint of the change of Russian policy to an economic penetration of the Middle East, and I thought it was the Geneva conference. But I was questioned when I went home, and we looked up all my correspondence, and I find it was in an exchange of letters with Bulganin before the Foreign Ministers conference sometime. I would say, toward the first of October, or something of that order, rather than July.

I wanted—as you know, every week, I am saying something about the farm business. I don't want to talk about any special bill or special provision now, but I do want again to emphasize this: The planting season is rushing up on us, and we need the farm bill now, and I would—I couldn't overstate my anxiety for speed in getting a good farm bill for our farmers, because, as I say, the planting season is rushing up on us, and, indeed, in the South, it is already here.

Finally, I want to mention the Cyprus question very briefly. Here is a place where two of our very best friends are engaged in an argument with very great difficulty.

Now, we are friendly to both, not only friendly in the sense of traditional friendship with these two peoples, but on top of that, both are vitally necessary to NATO. Their co-operative effort in NATO is essential to the success of that great organization.

So we are ready to do anything that is reasonable and practicable to help in reaching some solution, but the solution itself is going to have to be reached by the people most greatly concerned.

It is a very tough problem, a very complicated problem; but I do want to emphasize that both those peoples are ones with whom we want to preserve our historic friendships.

Now, we will go to questions. Merriman Smith, United Press: Mr. President, your success in the New Hampshire primary was rather taken for granted, but we wonder what you think of the rather large write-in vote for Vice President Nixon?

The President: Well, I will make this comment: Apparently there is lots of people in New Hampshire that agree with what I have told you about Dick Nixon.

Now, because you opened that question, I am going to say one thing more about it and then, as far as I am concerned, I will never answer another question on this subject until after August.

Anyone who attempts to drive a wedge of any kind between Dick Nixon and me is—has just as much chance if he tried to drive it between my brother and me.

We are very close, as I have told you before. I want to say again what I repeated or what I said last week or a week before, I will say it in exactly the terms I mean: I am very happy that Dick Nixon is my friend. I am very happy to have him as an associate in government. I would be happy to be on any political ticket in which I was a candidate with him.

Now, if those words aren't plain, then it is merely because people can't understand the plain unvarnished truth.

I have nothing further to add. Francis M. Stephenson, New York Daily News: Mr. President, before the door is closed on the Nixon case, I wonder if—last week you said you would ask him to chart his own course; and I was wondering if he has done that.

The President: You said before the door is closed. (Laughter) You spoke about five minutes—

Stephenson: I tried to get my foot in.

The President: You spoke about five minutes to last. Maybe I—I will say this, however—(laughter)—that he knew what I was going to say this morning.

Marvin L. Arrowsmith, Associated Press: Mr. President, strictly in the interests of clarification and not to trespass on grounds that you have barred, but did we understand you correctly to say that you would be happy to have Mr. Nixon "on any political ticket on which I am a candidate?"

The President: That's exactly so. I said that last week.

Edward P. Morgan, American Broadcasting Co.: Mr. President, southern members of Congress, including a couple of Republicans, have posed a direct challenge to both the other branches of government, first, in the implied if not declared threat to block your appointments to the judiciary, which might find disfavor on the racial issue; and, second, in a manifesto which was introduced in Congress on Monday, in which some 100 members of the House and Senate commit themselves to try to overturn the Supreme Court decision on segregation.

Would you comment on those developments, sir, particularly with reference to what you think the executive responsibility is and should be?

The President: Well, you are asking a question that we are probably going to be busy on for a while.

First, I have nothing whatsoever to say about their right to confirm or not confirm. The constitutional duty of the Senate to act as it sees fit upon the nominations sent up by the President is clear.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

PARTIAL TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S PRESS MEETING

I could urge publicly, and I probably would if I thought there were unnecessary blocks, but that is their business, and that doesn't call, as I see it, for any further comment.

Now, the first thing about the manifesto is this: that they say they are going to use every legal means. No one in any responsible position anywhere has talked nullification because — and there would be a place where we get to a very bad spot for the simple reason I am sworn to defend and uphold the Constitution of the United States and, of course, I can never abandon or refuse to carry out my own duty.

But, let us remember that the Supreme Court itself talked about emotionalism in this question, and it was for that reason that it said, "Progress must be gradual."

Now, let us not forget there has been some progress. I believe there is something on the order of more than a quarter of a million of Negro children in the border and some Southern states have been integrated in the schools, and except for a certain area in which the difficulties are greatest, there has been progress.

As a matter of fact, there was not long ago a decision by the Supreme Court of Texas to the general effect that anything in the laws or in the Constitution of the State of Texas that was in defiance of the Constitution of the United States was null and void.

So, let us remember that there are people who are ready to approach this thing with the moderation, but with the determination to make progress that the Supreme Court asked for.

If ever there was a time when we must be patient without being complacent, when we must be understanding of other people's deep emotions, as well as our own, this is it.

Extremists on neither side are going to help this situation, and we can only believe that the good sense, the common sense, of Americans will bring this thing along, and the length of time I am not even going to talk about; I don't know anything about the length of time it will take.

We are not talking here about coercing, using force to, in a general way, we are simply going to uphold the Constitution of the United States, see that the progress made as ordered by them is carried out.

Now, let us remember this one thing, and it is very important: the people who have this deep emotional reaction on the other side were not acting over these past three generations in defiance of law. They were acting in compliance with the law as interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States under the decision of 1896.

Now, that has been completely reversed, and it is going to take time for them to adjust their thinking and their progress to that. But I have never yet given up my belief that the American people, faced with a great problem like this, will approach it with patience and with understanding, and we will get somewhere; and I do deplore any great extreme action on either side.

Anthony Lewis, New York Times: Mr. President, in connection with the racial troubles in the South, sir, it has been suggested that you could use your influence for moderation by calling some white and Negro leaders from the South together here to discuss ways of relieving tensions.

The President: Yes.

Lewis: Do you see any point at which that would be useful? The President: I don't think it would be useful, but if you will look at my State of the Union message, I pled for a joint commission authorized by Congress, and the reason I want it authorized by Congress is a simple one: because then they can subpoena witnesses and bring people in and compel them to testify.

Now, if I merely appoint, call in a party, and let everybody air their views, that would be one thing to do. But it is not the thing I want done.

This decision was made, as I recall, in 1954, and we are getting along now so where some real investigative body ought to be watching it and looking at it all the time.

I would like to have that body organized, bipartisan, and with every point of view represented on it, as quickly as possible.

SIX RESPOND TO INVITATION TO AID IN STORM RESEARCH

Six persons have responded to an invitation to make observations of the weather for J. Robert Stinson and Edward M. Brooks, meteorologists at St. Louis University, they reported today.

Brooks and Stinson are seeking data on tornadoes, severe thunderstorms, strong winds and hailstorms in eastern Missouri and southern Illinois as part of a severe storm research project, sponsored by the United States Weather Bureau. Brooks said some responses were from persons who had data on the tornado which swept through the area Feb. 24-25. Brooks and Stinson are currently seeking documentation of the tornado by photographs, sketches and diagrams of storm phenomena and damage descriptions.

WILLIAM J. HEDLEY ELECTED

William J. Hedley, assistant chief engineer of Wabash Railroad Co., was elected president of the American Railway Engineering Association yesterday at its annual convention in Chicago.

Hedley, 824 North Biltmore drive, Clayton, has been with the Wabash for 31 years and he has won recognition for his work on railway-highway crossing protection.

DULLES VISITS MANILA, PRAISES PACIFIC CHARTER

Calls It 'Moving Force' for Further Attaining of Independence in Asia.

MANILA, March 15 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived here today for an overnight stop in the Philippines en route home from the Southeast Asia treaty conference in Karachi.

Dulles was to confer with President Ramon Magsaysay later today and to attend a state dinner tonight.

In a statement at the airport, the Secretary paid tribute to Magsaysay for drafting the Pacific charter adopted in Manila when the Southeast Asia alliance was formed in September 1954.

Dulles said the charter had "become a moving force toward further achievement of Asia of the independence of which the Philippine republic is so ardent a champion."

The pact proclaimed the right of self-determination for Asian peoples. It was also aimed at repelling any aggression against the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines.

Progress in Malaya. Dulles cited progress toward self-rule in the Federation of Malaya, which signed an agreement with the British last month promising Malayan independence within the Commonwealth by August 1957.

He described the Philippines as "an inspiration to those elsewhere who love freedom."

Dulles, who will stop next at the Nationalist Chinese island of Formosa, came here from conferences with South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem at Saigon.

Reliable sources said the Secretary after his talk that there will be no renewal of war in Indochina even if elections to unite North and South Viet Nam are not held in July.

Elections Believed Unlikely. Dulles was reported to have agreed with Diem that present conditions will not permit free elections in both the free south and the Communist-controlled north as provided in the 1954 Geneva armistice agreement for Indochina.

Informants said Dulles reported the idea that Viet Nam should become a member of the Southeast Asia treaty group immediately advising Diem to wait for a more advantageous time and assuring him of United States aid in any crisis meanwhile.

Sources close to Dulles said he expressed great satisfaction in the "miraculous improvement" in Viet Nam since his last visit here a year ago. At that time Diem's government was battling anti-government religious sects which it later suppressed or won over.

Dutch Conference on Visit of Dulles to Indonesia. THE HAGUE, March 15 (AP)—Dutch Co-Foreign Minister Joseph Luns called in United States Ambassador H. Freeman Matthews yesterday to discuss the visit of Secretary of State Dulles to Indonesia Monday.

Reliable sources said they also discussed the case of Leon Jungschaeger, the former Dutch military intelligence chief in Jakarta who is on trial for his life in an Indonesian court.

The government is under strong pressure to ask for United States mediation to free Jungschaeger, who, the Dutch says, is not guilty of the Indonesian subversion charges.

Signal for Low Tires. CRANSTON, R.I. (AP)—A Cranston firm recently designed a device that notifies the driver of a vehicle, by means of an electric flasher mounted on the dashboard, of the loss of air in tires.

FUGITIVE CHIMP HAS A CIRCUS BUT GETS NO APPLAUSE

NEW YORK, March 15 (UP)—An anti-social chimpanzee played King Kong for 10 hours yesterday and took an unscheduled tour of the rooftops of New York.

The chimp, whose name is Mike, scampered up and down fire escapes and swung from television antenna before submitting to capture in a ladies rest room on the lower East Side.

The 80-pound Mike began his day when he broke out of a cage in the apartment of Frank Quinn, a night club entertainer. Quinn had bought Mike from the Detroit zoo to use in his act.

Mike jumped through a window. It was a 45-foot drop but a clothesline broke the chimp's fall.

He then climbed to the bedroom of Ellis Lebuson, broke in and smashed up furniture. Later he dropped in on the Michael Levinoski apartment, then was chased to the top of an elevator shaft.

A cage was put up against the door and Mike was given a basket of fruit, laced with sleep-inducing drugs. Mike ate some of the fruit but tossed most of it back, then slipped past the cage and took off again.

He finally was cornered in a ladies rest room. A barrage of foam from a fire extinguisher finally chased Mike into the cage.

CALLS FOR SHOTGUN, FOILS TEEN-AGE HOLDUP ATTEMPT

Edward Kesselring, 70-year-old proprietor of a confectionery on Creve Coeur Mill road in Vigus, western St. Louis county, foiled a teen-age holdup attempt at his store yesterday by calling to his wife for his shotgun.

Four teen-agers were arrested suspected of the holdup half an hour later after police obtained a description of their automobile from Kesselring. Sgt. Stewart Ducey and Patrolman James L. Brooks recalled having seen such a car in the vicinity of Creve Coeur Lake and made the arrests at the owner's house.

Kesselring said two teen-agers entered his store and after asking him to cash a check, one of them pulled out either a screwdriver or a switchblade knife and demanded Kesselring's money. When he called to his wife, Goldie, in the rear of the store, for his shotgun, they fled to a car where two other teen-agers were waiting, he told police.

KICKBACK FIGURE ALREADY FACING SIMILAR CHARGE

One of Seven Indicted in Jet Engine Case
Also Accused in G.M.
Affair.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 15—A man already under indictment on a charge of violating the federal kickback statute, was one of seven men indicted by a federal grand jury here yesterday in another case on charges of defrauding the Government in connection with more than $1,000,000 in contracts at the Westinghouse jet engine plant in Kansas City.

Robert Early Lukens, president of La-Corp Machine and Tool Co. here, one of those indicted yesterday, had pleaded not guilty earlier in the day at Kansas City, Kans., of the previous charge. He was one of seven men indicted in connection with a General Motors contract.

The indictments growing out of the Westinghouse contract outlined a story of alleged kickbacks, influence and gifts of cars, money and Florida vacations.

Two of the men were Westinghouse assistant buyers at the time of the alleged transactions, the other persons indicted were officials of companies doing business with Westinghouse.

No Effect on Engines.

United States Attorney Edward L. Scheidt, a spokesman for Westinghouse, both said the practices alleged in the indictment would have no effect on the performance of jet engines manufactured at the plant. A series of troubles involving the Westinghouse engine was detailed to a House subcommittee in Washington last fall.

The J-40 was installed in early models of the McDonnell F3H-1 Demon fighter plane, which was supposed to have never performed satisfactorily.

Those indicted, in addition to Lukens:

James Edward Hanis, 26 years old, of Terrace Merriam, an assistant buyer at Westinghouse.

Robert Ward Graddy, 30, formerly of Kansas City, owner of The Products Engineering Corp. of Tulsa where he now lives.

Edward Thomas McCabe, 35, an official of The Midwest Engineering Co. here.

Joseph Thomas Somers, formerly of Kansas City, whose last known address was in Los Angeles, an assistant buyer at Westinghouse.

Frank A. Nelson, president of the Repro-Tone Co., 729 Baltimore avenue.

Jesse Wilbur Berry, vice president of Repro-Tone.

Contracts With Navy.

The conspiracy indictments noted that Westinghouse was the prime contractor under fixed-price-reimbursable contracts with price-redetermination clauses under the prime contracts between Westinghouse and the Navy, the indictments said.

In one indictment Hanis, Graddy and McCabe were charged in 20 counts.

The indictment said Products Engineering was incorporated June 1, 1954 with 200 shares of stock with a par value of $300 each.

Hanis was given one third of the stock, the indictment alleged, in return for "guaranteeing that the corporation would be afforded offers to bid on Westinghouse jobs and Hanis's co-operation in obtaining such jobs."

Later, the indictment continued, Graddy bought back the stock. He allegedly gave in payment a promissory note in the amount of $40,000 made out to Hanis's mother, Mrs. John C. Hanis, and payable in monthly installments of $500 beginning July 1, 1955, for 60 months. The balance of $10,000 was to be paid on the sixty-first month, the indictment stated.

Other Charges.

The indictment also charged that Graddy gave Hanis $400 to purchase Christmas gifts for Westinghouse employees from Products Engineering; that McCabe sent $200 to a Miami Beach hotel for reservations later used by Hanis and that transportation was arranged by Graddy; that Graddy gave Hanis a Ford convertible for his personal use and later "made available" to him $837 used to trade it in on a later model.

One of the largest items alleged against the three was a transaction in November, 1954, in which Hanis approved payment of $152,691.70 by Westinghouse to Midwest Engineering for about $25,000 in items and for the packaging of them by McCabe.

Of that amount the indictment said McCabe paid $65,450.80 to Hanis and his parents. In addition, the indictment continued, packaging charges totaling $29,945.24 were retained by Midwest Engineering and $35,163.66 was retained by McCabe.

$884,519 in Orders.

The indictment said Products Engineering obtained a total of $884,519.87 in orders from Westinghouse during the period of the alleged conspiracy.

In the indictment against Somers, Nelson and Berry it was alleged that Somers was given 11 payments totaling about $5000 in "kickbacks" from Nelson and Berry from Sept. 4, 1953 to June 11, 1954.

The agreement, said the indictment, was for Nelson and Berry to pay Somers 5 per cent of invoice on work Repro-Tone performed for Westinghouse.

Lukens was charged with presenting to the Government false and fraudulent claims for work at the Westinghouse plant. Each of the 20 counts alleged a separate claim for work on the basis of time and materials used, between May 4, 1953, and Jan. 23, 1954.

Of a total of $18,533 submitted, it was charged, there were $1608 in false claims.

Lukens said that he was surprised by the indictments but that he would make a statement only in court.

TRANSIT SURVEY DELAYED PENDING FUND DECISION

Further action by the Citizens' Metropolitan Transit Committee toward a survey of mass transportation problems of the St. Louis area cannot be taken until the group knows whether state and federal aid can be obtained, James E. Crowe, chairman, said yesterday.

He said the committee reached this conclusion at a meeting held to consider proposals which have been made by engineering firms to conduct the survey.

The Missouri Highway Commission has been asked to hold a hearing on the committee's request for aid.

The state agency and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads are being requested to finance the most expensive part of the survey, a study of traffic origin and destination in the city and county, which will require extensive interviews of individuals and traffic checks at various locations.

PORTER CASHES PAY CHECKS, IS ROBBED

$1024 Belonging to 10 Employees Stolen by Holdup Man.

James Dyson, a porter for Universal Printing Co., was robbed of $1024 yesterday in the rear of the 1700 block of Lucas avenue, police reported. He was returning to the company, 1531 Washington avenue, after cashing checks for himself and nine other employees at Service Exchange Co., 1721 Washington, police said. Dyson, 1531 North Jefferson avenue, told police the man came from behind him in the 1600 block of Washington and pressed a hard object in his back. The robber, a Negro, marched him to the alley where the money was taken, he said. After ordering him to take off his shoes, the man told Dyson, also a Negro, to go west. Dyson said it was his custom to take checks of employees to be cashed on payday. He told police the robber was about 30 years old and wore khaki trousers, a trench coat and brown hat.

Siegfried Gruen, an insurance collector, was robbed of about $15 in the 2300 block of Clark avenue by two men yesterday when making collections, he told police.

Gruen, 5308 Maple avenue, said that one man knocked him down and the other held a knife at his throat. They took the money and both men, Negroes, fled through an alley.

Theft of about $115 from the United Lumber Co. store at 4008 Easton avenue was reported last night by Manager Gordon Buck who said he was interrupted while counting the day's receipts by a customer who asked to see some paint brushes.

While the customer, a Negro, waited, Buck went to the rear to get the brushes. On his return, the customer said he had changed his mind. He was gone when Buck returned from replacing the brushes. So was the money Buck had been counting.

No Action Taken on Comics Bill, 4 Quit County Council Hearing

Four Speak Against Measure to Stop Sale of 'Obscene' Books—Five Defend
It in 3½-Hour Session.

A hearing on a controversial comic book bill ended without action by the St. Louis County Council last night when four of the seven council members walked out of the meeting during the last hour of the three and one-half hours of discussion, leaving the council without a quorum.

Four speakers appeared in opposition to the bill and five urged its adoption. The proposed ordinance would prohibit exhibition or distribution to minors of obscene or crime-inciting comic books, magazines and other publications.

Paul W. Rothschild, vice president and general counsel for the World Color Printing Co., 420 East DeSoto avenue, said the ordinance was not needed because the comic book industry had adopted a morals code in 1954 and already had taken steps to clean itself up. His firm is the largest printer of comic books in the world.

Declaring the bill is loosely drawn and "probably unconstitutional," Ben Roth, a member of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, said state and federal obscenity statutes already covered the matter.

McLean Johnson, president of the Webster Publishing Co., which publishes school textbooks, warned that "once you start to use government power to shape the actions of human beings, there is no end. He pointed out that last Sunday's television production of "Richard III" portrayed such actions as murder, seduction and kidnapping, but that no one spoke of suppressing it.

Johnson, questioned by Councilman James A. Singer (Rep.), said at one time in history the Declaration of Independence, the United States Constitution and the Emancipation Proclamation could have been considered immoral and tending to incite to crime.

Speaking for the bill, Herman P. Winkelmann, chairman of the St. Louis board of review for juvenile readers, said the board acted merely as a "watchdog," and was attempting to clean up publications for minors by a process of education. He said progress has been made in St. Louis but that considerable undesirable material is still on newsstands.

Retail druggists in the city and county are forced to accept some unwanted publications from distributors because of "tie-in" sales, Herbert Speckart, chairman of the legislative committee of the Retail Druggists Association, said. He spoke for the measure, saying retailers were unable to police themselves because of the "tie-ins."

Municipal Judge Thomas R. McGinnis of University City, a leading backer of the bill, said the Municipal Judges Association of Greater St. Louis felt there was a connection between crimes by juveniles and the reading of crime-inciting publications.

Singer and Councilman Maurice Abramson (Dem.), left the meeting during the discussion. Councilmen Frank L. Martini and L. Gordon Davis, both Republicans, walked out after about three and one-half hours when their motions for adjournment failed of passage. The meeting then was adjourned automatically.

Councilman James H. McNary (Dem.), who sponsored the bill, was critical of those who left before a vote could be taken on his measure. He accused the council of "going in the wrong direction."

The bill was voted on once before. It was defeated when the four Republican councilmen voted against it at the Feb. 29 meeting.

COUNTY C. OF C. ELECTION

Alfred H. Kerth, an attorney, has been re-elected chairman of the board of directors of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce. It was announced today.

Other St. Louis county residents elected to serve as members of the board of directors are John M. Alvey, Edward L. Bakewell, Donald L. Barnes, Clark R. Gamble, T. Walter Hardy, John F. Krey, John F. Lilly and Magnus F. Peterson. They were elected for a term of three years beginning April 1.

Malenkov Arrives in Britain, To Tour Atomic, Power Plants

Heavy Security Provided for Former Premier on His First Trip to a Non-Communist Country.

LONDON, March 15 (UP)—Former Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov arrived in London today for a tour of Britain's electric and atomic power installations. It was his first trip to a non-Communist country. His arrival was cloaked by strict security arrangements. Scotland Yard and British secret service agents made it hard for anyone to get a peek at him through a thicket of elaborate safeguards as he flew in from East Berlin and landed at London airport. But Malenkov chose to crack the screen by scheduling an airport press conference immediately. A sound truck patrolled the highway outside the airport blaring, "keep the Red beasts out," when his plane landed. Invited by British.

As Soviet minister of electric power stations, Malenkov is here for a three-week tour of power facilities at the invitation of the British Central Authority.

He was met by Lord Citrine, chairman of the Central Electrical Authority, and Minister of Fuel and Power Aubrey Jones.

Malenkov waved his hat as he stepped onto British soil. He shook hands with Jones and Lord Citrine as Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik beamed.

Malenkov met eight selected newspaper men at the press conference. He told them the mission of his delegation was "to acquire knowledge of the system of public power supply and the operation of public power stations."

He added that his visit would "doubtless make for strengthening of business ties."

His itinerary includes visits to several of Britain's largest electrical manufacturing plants. These are now barred from dealing with the Soviet Union under the West's embargo on strategic trade with Iron Curtain countries.

Malenkov spoke Russian softly in a flat voice, reading what he had to say from a prepared text.

When a reporter asked him if he spoke English Malenkov turned to Malik for an interpretation, then replied: "Unfortunately not."

Malik said, "Maybe when he leaves he will speak English."

Dramatic Departure.
(The Associated Press said that Malenkov's departure from the airport was more dramatic than his arrival. As he walked through the terminal lounge, the long tail of his overcoat knocked over a vase of red tulips and yellow daffodils. Without looking around, the Russian strode to a waiting limousine which took him into London.)

Plans for his tour remained secret. Hundreds of plainclothes police and agents of M.I.-5, Britain's super-secret service, formed a security guard across London.

"Why this Malenkov visit secrecy?" the Communist Daily Worker headlined its Malenkov report today. "There was a minimum of security about his departure (from Moscow)."

"But while Moscow is informal, the Home Office has decided to turn his three-week tour of Britain into an elaborate Special Branch security exercise," it said. The special branch is Scotland Yard's security agency.

The security net not only was to protect Malenkov but to test methods for guarding Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev next month when they arrive on a 10-day state visit.

Diplomats speculated that Russia's rulers had sent Malenkov here in a pointed demonstration of the new "collective leadership" doctrine.

Candidus, columnist for the newspaper Daily Sketch, hinted that Malenkov was visiting Britain for some other reason than to see power stations.

"The official story is that he is here to study our power stations, but I would want to be given a very large number of rubles before I believed that one," Candidus wrote.

"The explanation reminds me of Talleyrand, the great French diplomat. He was told that a foreign envoy would not arrive at a conference because he had died on the way."

"No doubt," said Talleyrand, "but I wonder what was his real reason?"

"That is what I am wondering about Malenkov. All he doesn't know about power stations is all that you need to know to run a power station. He is a politician pure and simple."

NORGE DEALER
March 17th

WILLIAM FOSTER DUE TO GO ON TRIAL; DELAYED 7 YEARS

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—The Government said yesterday it will move for trial of William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist party, after a seven-year delay because of his ill health. A Smith act case against Foster was postponed in 1949 when 11 other top Communist leaders were tried for conspiracy to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the United States government. All were convicted.

United States Attorney Paul W. Williams said a court-appointed doctor examined the 76-year-old Foster recently and found he could stand trial if court session were limited to two or three hours a day. Foster suffers from a heart ailment. The government repeatedly has tried to bring him to trial, but each time judges ruled against it on the testimony of doctors.

Missouri Schools' Integration An Easy Step Because of Earlier Lifting of Some Racial Bars

Since End of World War II Segregation Barriers Have Been Tumbling in State Which Was First to Free Slaves After Civil Conflict.

By SETH S. KING

A Staff Correspondent of the New York Times.
The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)
SECOND OF A SERIES

IN EVERY CORNER of Missouri, Negro students are sitting at desks once reserved for white children.

In St. Louis, the state's largest center of Negro population, Negro teachers are presiding over mixed classes.

At Fulton, where the band still plays "Dixie" when the county fair opens, a Negro boy is president of the high school's senior class.

At Sikeston, deep in the plantation lands of southeastern Missouri, 23 Negroes began attending the white high school in 1954—the year of the Supreme Court's decision on school segregation.

Since the end of World War II, in fact, segregation barriers have been tumbling in many areas and in many phases of community life in Missouri—the first state to free its slaves after the Civil War.

Since 1948 parochial schools in St. Louis have been integrated. Missouri's Constitution prevented public schools from doing so, but placed no restrictions on privately financed church schools.

Since 1950, after a United States district court ruling, municipal swimming pools in St. Louis have been open to members of all races. A similar court order opened Kansas City's municipal pools in June 1954.

Cushioning the impact. Such preliminary steps helped cushion the impact of the Supreme Court decision and made it easier for many public school boards to start desegregation in their communities.

Most complete integration, down through the elementary levels, has taken place in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield and other cities. But many of the smaller communities are now also in complete compliance.

These actions have not been taken in complete serenity. There are a number of residents who disagree. These persons are of no particular faction or economic class. Many of their ancestors came to Missouri from North Carolina and Virginia and the attitudes toward Negroes that these settlers brought with them have been passed on to their descendants.

Nor has integration provided an issue for Missouri's politicians. The state's Negroes have been voting for many years; they are often an important factor in an election. Four Negroes are members of the Legislature. There was no attempt to promote anti-integration legislation following the court's orders.

Negroes' Distribution. The integration problem has been made easier for Missouri by the distribution of its Negro population.

The Negroes are concentrated generally in the counties that line the Missouri river across the center of the state and in those along the Mississippi to the east. There are also large groups of Negroes in Missouri's southeastern corner, known as the "Bootheel" or "Delta." In many of these places, Negroes live in tight sectors.

Forty-four of Missouri's 114 counties have no Negro pupils; many others have fewer than 20. In 1953-54, the last official school census where Negroes were counted separately, 65,000 out of 725,000 public school pupils were colored.

Missouri moved swiftly in the wake of the Supreme Court ruling in 1954.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, a Democrat, announced that the state would comply with the court's ruling.

On July 1 of that year, John M. Dalton, the Attorney General, ruled that the state's school segregation laws were no longer valid. He said that local school districts could integrate immediately if they wished to do so. He also said they could wait for the Supreme Court's second decision outlining the manner in which integration should be accomplished.

But state education officials urged the local boards to move as quickly as possible.

Some communities chose to start desegregation in all grades when school opened that fall. Some decided to move gradually, bringing Negroes into the high school grades and keeping the lower school levels segregated. Others decided to wait as long as possible before making any move.

Campaign in St. Louis. St. Louis conducted an extensive educational campaign before desegregation began. Neighborhood councils were formed to discuss the problems; Protestant ministers led church groups in getting acquainted sessions with Negro parents; St. Louis school teachers, Negro and white, received special courses in inter-group relations.

Finally, integration was effected by phases. Teachers' colleges and special schools were desegregated in September 1954. The St. Louis high schools were integrated in February 1955, and the elementary schools last September.

Kansas City, on the other hand, moved more slowly. It integrated summer school sessions immediately after the first court ruling and then merged junior college and vocational high schools in the fall of 1954. It waited until September of 1955 to integrate other schools.

As for parochial schools, they either have been ahead of the public schools or have kept pace with them in desegregating.

State colleges and the University of Missouri opened their doors to Negroes on both the graduate and undergraduate levels in the fall of 1954. Lincoln University in Jefferson, the state's Negro college, is now accepting white students, and some are attending.

Bootheel Situation. The only general area of Missouri where desegregation has been slow is the Bootheel. This section, made up of the southeastern counties that thrust down between Arkansas and Tennessee, is a flat, humid area where much of the state's cotton is grown. The Bootheel's traditions are Southern, and its proportion of Negroes is high. The eight counties in the Bootheel have about 8800 Negro students, roughly 12 per cent of the total in the state. None has a concentration as high as St. Louis, but some Bootheel cities have Negro proportions of 17 per cent and one, Charleston, has 26 per cent.

Despite the weight of tradition and the special problems confronting them, a number of Bootheel towns have integrated some part of their school systems.

Generally, though, this area has shown the greatest open antagonism toward integration that has appeared in Missouri. In Bootheel communities where there has been no integration, school officials generally concede that sooner or later they will have to make such a move or face court action.

Over all, with some reservations, Negro organization leaders in Missouri have been surprised and pleased at the course of integration.

Eisenhower Men to Shake Up Cabinet

McKay First to Go—Three Others Likely to Be Unloaded.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1956.)

WASHINGTON.

THE men around President Eisenhower have decided on a major shake-up of the Cabinet. As a start toward clearing the decks for action in the coming campaign they plan to unload four members of the Cabinet, the first having already been announced—Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay.

This column unquestionably will be denied, but the fact remains that the men who are steering the Eisenhower campaign are serious and do not intend to let any monkey business interfere with victory in November.

In addition to McKay, marked for the ax are:

Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of Commerce, who in inner White House circles is sometimes referred to as the man who stayed too long. He joined the Cabinet with the expectation of staying one year and has stayed three. He likes Washington, but the powers at the White House don't like him.

His ambitious Under Secretary, Walter Williams of Washington State, has long expected to step into his shoes. Weeks had the Big Business label so unmistakably pinned on him that it has been decided he will have to go.

Williams, who spark-plugged the Citizens-for-Eisenhower Committee and has been spending almost more time at the White House than at Commerce, will take his place.

Arthur Summerfield, Postmaster General, who is not popular on Capitol Hill, and was always frowned on by the Henry Ford forces in Michigan. Summerfield has played ball with the General Motors faction in Michigan when it was embattled with the Eisenhower wing of the G.O.P., so is not considered to be as loyal politically as he might be.

Replacing him may be Len Hall. The chairman of the G.O.P. is itching to get the job, but that does not mean he will land it.

Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense, will be a casualty also, though not a forced one. There are mixed views about Wilson inside the Eisenhower camp. He is considered a strong man as far as the Cabinet is concerned, though not strong politically, but he has put his foot in his mouth too many times and also is too closely stamped with the Big Business tar brush.

The expected successor to McKay will be ex-Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado.

The Palace Guard has given up on getting Ezra Taft Benson out as Secretary of Agriculture. Though they still consider him a political liability, they do not think his exit feasible in view of the Senate farm vote.

RHEE CHARGES U.S. HOME TOWN PAPER REJECTED PLEA FOR ARMS IN 1950

SEOUL, March 15 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee complained today the United States failed to provide South Korea with arms and ammunition adequate to prevent the Communist invasion from North Korea in June 1950.

Rhee made the complaint in a speech at ceremonies celebrating the second anniversary of the Republic of Korea's First Army. The ceremonies were held at Woni, 60 miles southeast of Seoul.

Rhee said he had asked Brig. Gen. William L. Roberts, then chief of the United States Military Advisory Group in Korea, to equip ROK troops with more arms and ammunition "so we could meet any Communist invasion from the north."

"But he (Roberts) did not listen to me," the President said.

Roberts served as the head of K.M.A.G. from July 1, 1949, to June 15, 1950. The North Koreans invaded South Korea June 25, 1950.

The 80-year-old Korean President at the same time expressed gratitude to the United States for military aid "through which the ROK army has become the biggest non-Communist Army in Asia."

Cyprus Issue

Splits British, Turks, Greeks

Dispute Even Threatens to Harm U.S. Relations With Britain.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON.

March 15 (AP).

IN THE British colony of Cyprus, violence and demands for union with Greece are straining relations among three Western allies: Britain, Greece, Turkey. The dispute has even threatened to harm United States relations with Britain.

This island, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, is Britain's last stronghold in the Middle East, a base for air and ground troops. It has had to withdraw from all other strategic posts in the area.

Of Cyprus's 500,000 people, 400,000 are of Greek descent, 100,000 Turkish. The Greek Cypriots, led by their spiritual and political head, Archbishop Makarios of the Greek Orthodox church, want self-government and eventual union with Greece.

The island, which is about 40 miles from Turkey and more than 600 from Greece, has not been held by Greece since very ancient times. The British have run it since 1878. The Greek government supports the Greek Cypriots' campaign.

The British refuse to get out. They have offered the Cypriots some measure of self-government but insist on handling its defense and foreign relations. Turkey backs Britain, knowing the Turkish Cypriots would be outnumbered for it by the Greek Cypriots if the British withdrew.

British Soldiers Killed. Nearly 20 British soldiers have been killed on Cyprus since last September when the Greek Cypriots began to back their demands with terrorism. There have been riots in Greece against the British. Ill will has developed between Greeks and Turks. The Greek government has asked the United States to intervene.

Cyprus has changed hands often since the beginning of recorded history. The Egyptians, the Persians, the Greeks, the Romans, the Arabs. The British captured it in the twelfth century and sold it.

The Venetians got it. The Turks captured it in the sixteenth century. They had trouble only do damage.

U.S. Argues Over Embargo As Reds Produce Oil, Steel

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

THE DREAMY UNREALITY of most current discussion of world problems is wonderfully well illustrated by the noisy Senate row about East-West trade.

Several Democratic Senators are in a towering rage, real or pretended, because the Eisenhower Administration has reluctantly allowed our allies to increase their trade with the Soviet bloc. In reply to the Senators' criticism, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks has chiefly mumbled that the whole subject is classified. This is a very fashionable answer nowadays.

Meanwhile, anyone who troubles to read that not very highly classified publication, The Wall Street Journal, must suspect that the Senators and Secretary Weeks are arguing about locking the barn door long after the horse has gone.

From the moment the embargo system was set up, equipment for extracting and purchasing petroleum products has always stood near the top of the list of forbidden exports to the Soviets. In this field the Western lead was believed to be very great. Since the fuel oil shortage was also believed to be one of the chief weaknesses of the Soviet economy, the strictest rules were made to perpetuate that shortage. And now The Wall Street Journal has turned these rules into an ironical joke, with a single story.

New Soviet Oil Drill. The story is about an Texas concern, the Dresser Industries of Dallas, whose vice president, J. B. O'Connor, has made a contract with the Soviet government to bring the radically new Russian turbine oil drill to America. O'Connor will certainly suffer if he is shown to be talking through his hat; yet he boldly claims that this Russian turbo-drill is up to 10 times as efficient as the conventional oil well drills in use in this country and throughout the Western world. The technicalities behind this claim have no place here. But the joke it indicates is very clear indeed.

Great efforts have been made, causing much ill-feeling among our allies, to prevent the Soviets from getting the benefit of Western "know-how" in this matter of petroleum extraction. But now it turns out, if O'Connor is right, that the people with the superior know-how are the Soviets. And there is at least one good reason for thinking that O'Connor probably is right, too.

In brief, Soviet crude oil production has increased by over

Excellent Machine Tools. Again, machine tool exports to the Soviets are mostly strictly embargoed. Yet the tough and experienced engineers of the American automation mission found that Russian machine tools were both finely designed and excellently made. These further reports have been telling Humphrey the same story for at least two years before the steel masters went to the Soviet Union.

According to Sir Robert, the big Soviet plants are about as efficient, in terms of output per worker, as the "top end" of the British steel industry. "No instrument one could think of was lacking," Sir Robert said. These and other findings of the steel masters' mission upset Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey that he is reported to have sounded the alarm on the highest level of the United States Government—which was a trifle odd, since the intelligence reports have been telling Humphrey the same story for at least two years before the steel masters went to the Soviet Union.

Oklahoma Acts for Integration Without Significant Incidents

OKLAHOMA, with a new school law and the unqualified support of its Governor, has made its first moves toward integration of Negro pupils in its public schools. These steps, in a state with long-standing traditions for segregation, have been taken calmly. There have been no significant incidents.

There were many Oklahomans who disagreed with the United States Supreme Court's ruling, and in some areas there is still reluctance to comply, but there has been no effective organized resistance and no defiance.

Last September, school districts in 47 counties desegregated some portion of their educational systems.

Fifteen other counties decided to postpone desegregation for at least another school year. The 15 other counties had no problem because they had no Negro pupils.

The acceptance of Negroes in Oklahoma's public parks and playgrounds has been slower, but a number of communities have said that they will comply this summer with the Supreme Court rulings; there are indications that others, without fanfare will do the same.

Many Oklahoma Oklahomans. Geographically, Oklahoma is a border state. In its formative years, it was firmly southern in outlook, but since the beginning of World War II there have been many changes. New industry has moved to Oklahoma, bringing people who had never practiced segregation. There is no contest with the Negro for employment. Neither is there any apparent resentment of him as another mouth the community must feed—his economic position has improved greatly.

Voting strength also is a factor. Negroes vote freely and on occasion have sought public office, though without any major success.

Church leaders have generally endorsed integration. In the fall of 1954 the Catholic education supervisor for Oklahoma decreed segregation would end in the parochial schools and in some communities the Catholic schools were integrated at that time.

Perhaps the rest of the reasons can be summed up in the general attitude of Oklahoma's officials. When the Supreme Court made its school ruling in May 1954, most of them simply said that this was the law now, and, like it or not, there

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Nomination

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: Politicians in many cases regard people as a means and not an end. In that spirit of using voters only as pawns and not as decision makers, a former St. Louis Election Board in 1952 revised the city's seven state senatorial districts without regard to population or geographical lines, for the single purpose of electing one man and defeating another.

This gerrymander was fought to a finish by a single citizen who, acting as his own attorney, last year won a complete victory for democracy in the Missouri Supreme Court.

This blow to machine-made election results was struck by Dr. Paul W. Preister. I call your attention to the leading editorial in the St. Louis Labor Tribune's current issue nominating him for this year's St. Louis award, and hope you can add this footnote to your editorial praise headed "One Man Minority," of last Nov. 11.

There you said: "Mr. Preister, a consulting engineer, biochemist and attorney who earned his law degree at night, has been fighting battles of this kind for a long while. Back in 1937, in a suit brought by him, the State Supreme Court knocked out a 1933 law making the board of education a bipartisan group. The court in effect transformed the board into a nonpartisan body on which persons other than members of the two major political parties were eligible to sit."

This is the pattern of a man worthy of the civic award. As a former teacher at Washington University, as a lieutenant colonel of World War II, yes, and as the founder of the American Federation of Teachers' chapter here, he has shown qualities of mind and action worthy of the Citizen of the Year. Let us remember that the St. Louis award performs a double function: spotlighting the individual first in community service, but also floodlighting the values held most dear in our civic life. PAUL GREER.

How to Get Work

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: In answer to Reader Kermit P. Lancy, who said he mailed a post card soliciting work to 500 employers in the St. Louis area.

I'm sure even a Democratic Administration could be of little help to you and your post card campaign. The only way you'll ever get a job is to apply in person. As far as I can see, you've wasted $10 in postage. W.E.P.

With the Apes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: As an aspiring zoologist and a student of evolution, I have some very serious objections to your editorial: "Older Than We Think."

First, all biologists agree on the fact of evolution although they may differ on the how and why. Second, the proof of the fact of evolution does not depend on a few scattered phenomena; the list of examples of demonstrated evolution is too long to include here.

Third, if this Italian "find" is what it is claimed to be, it only pushes man's origin back a few million years, and in the geologic time scale this is just a split-second.

Last, and most of all, Darwin's theory said nothing about the "survival of the fittest." This is a popular corruption.

It seems to me that if you intend to air your views publicly you might at least find out about what you are writing. LOIS MARLYN BAYLISS.

Look Who's Talking

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: While away from his desk on a barnstorming tour, Senator Kefauver says the President spends too much time away from his desk. G. H. GARRY.

Best Wishes, Margaret

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: What refreshing change from congressional backing and filling, have id Alabama, tornado and flood to read that Miss Truman will be married in the spring.

Whatever one's political inclinations may be there is no denying that she moved through trying years with dignity, good humor and integrity. An only child, she seemed to possess the poise and perspective of one who had known the give and take of a large family.

Lacking a great talent, she enhanced a modest one with genuine charm and gently persisted in her right to self-expression. In an age when there is a certain premium paid for feminine sham and pseudoglamour, she had the courage to be uniquely, steadfastly, and only Margaret Truman.

"The man she has now accepted as her future husband seems unquestionably right for her. It is unnecessary but very nice that he should be handsome as well."

Miss Truman will never be addressed as "Your Highness." No one will curtsy to her. Yet, implicitly, she bears the most honored title the modern world can bestow. Congratulations, then, and all our best wishes for your future happiness, Miss Democracy. HELEN L. KREIGH.

Glubb! Glubb!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: When the Arab lands are engulfed in the sea of Communism, young King Hussein of Jordan, as he goes down for the third time, will make a sound very like Glubb! Glubb!

Subsidy on Wheat

The "domestic parity" plan for wheat, which the Senate voted into the farm bill, carried so many conditions that it is more interesting as politics than as legislation. It still must be approved by House conferees before it can become law. Then it would have to be approved in a wheat voters' referendum. And then it would have to be approved by Secretary Benson. If it surmounted all three barriers, it would not come into effect until next year.

Having beaten off all efforts to re-establish 90-per-cent-of-parity price supports on major crops—including Senator McCarthy's move for dairy products—the Administration failed to defeat the new wheat plan because something more was involved there than the old flexible-vs.-fixed-price support debate.

The Democrats gained 5 votes for the new plan which they had not turned out for 90 per cent price supports, and the Republicans 6. So the new plan was approved 54 to 39 with virtually every wheat Senator and most of the cotton Senators behind it. The cotton Senators were not able, however, to muster the same support for applying the "domestic parity" plan to their crop.

Under the plan, which has been proposed in one form or another ever since the McNary-Haugen bills of the '20s, each wheat farmer would be allotted a share of the total amount of wheat used in domestic consumption, and would receive certificates signifying it. When he sold his wheat he would also cash his certificates, these being worth the difference between the market price and parity. The wheat buyer would pass on the cost of paying the certificates to the ultimate consumer.

This plan undoubtedly has something to be said for it, but it ought to be studied in detail before being finally adopted. Since it would be superimposed upon the present system of loans and storage, it would evidently mean supporting the price of half the crop at 75 per cent of parity through Government subsidy, and supporting the rest of the crop at 100 per cent of parity through consumer-paid subsidy.

No doubt the wheat growers would prefer this to 75 per cent of parity on the whole crop, but would the nation prefer it? That is a point to be developed by extensive public hearings and debate on the plan.

21 Years Without Parole

Circuit Judge Douglas L. C. Jones's efforts to make parole an actuality in St. Louis county are commendable indeed. It is deplorable that although the county parole board, composed of the six circuit judges and the prosecuting attorney, has been in existence for 21 years, not a single bench parole has been granted in all that time.

The trouble is that there is no provision for parole officers to make the necessary investigations to determine whether parole would be justified. Under these circumstances there is no middle ground between committing a defendant to imprisonment and setting him entirely free.

Parole and probation are useful instruments for the reclamation of law-violators. Properly applied, they are economical of human resources and money and a protection to the public. There are no known substitutes.

St. Louis county has too long neglected these useful services. If Judge Jones can bring about an adequately financed and staffed parole system for the county, he will have performed an outstanding public service.

'Last' Word on Nixon

The Nixon problem has now had what might be called the full Eisenhower treatment.

For his latest and he hopes last word on the subject, the President says "I would be very happy to have Mr. Nixon on any political ticket on which I am a candidate." But he does not say the Vice President is his preference for running mate. Nor has he taken back his own grim remark of a week ago that it is up to Mr. Nixon to "chart his own course."

And so what the President really thinks about the Vice President and second place on the G.O.P. ticket is anybody's guess. The probability is that the Republican high command is waiting to see how Richard M. Nixon really stands with the public. They waited out an emergency in the 1952 campaign, when the Vice President introduced his dog, Checkers, as a character witness on TV. The performance came off well enough that the party leaders decided to take the risk of keeping him on the ticket. Mr. Eisenhower embraced him as "My boy" and the ugly incident was history.

As of now it is far from assured that the Vice President will be retained on the ticket. Former Air Force Secretary Talbot, former General Services Administrator Mansure, former ICC Commissioner Cross—these and others can testify that the Eisenhower Administration can and sometimes does decide to liquidate its liabilities.

Sarge, Bugle and Bucket—Gone!

Veterans of World War II and the Korean War have long snorted that Army life today isn't as rugged as it was "in the Old Army." It is true to hear that First Sergeants are more like suave dancing masters than Simon Legrees. It is an old story that so-called buglers now play a recording of reveille instead of bugling it with blasts that flap the pup tents. But it is a new and fearsome bit of news that comes down from Fort Carson, Colo., where troops are trained for the rugged rigors of mountain warfare. Instead of doing their laundry with G.I. soap in a bucket they are to have automatic washing machines installed in their barracks. Band—sound off! Anyone with a discharge dated before installation of the automatic washers will be believed when he sourly says, "The Army ain't what it used to be."

Missouri's Mining Man

Daniel C. Jackling was a man for Missouri to be proud of, and we suspect, without being sure, that he began his career by collecting rocks. For small boys as for mineralogists there is romance as well as science in the glitter of quartz, the rose of granite, the marvelous regularity of calcite crystals or the hardness of the chert from which the Indians made arrowheads. And in all these rocks Missouri abounds.

A rock collection would be a suitable beginning for a man who went from Bates county through the Missouri School of Mines and, upon his death in San Francisco at the age of 86, was worth many lines in Who's Who. He had honorary degrees and medals and directorships galore, but it is not for these he will be remembered.

He will be remembered in part because of his direction of the Mesabi Iron Co., which gave him a share in the development of the nation's main source of the steel of industrial power long after Missouri's own once-valuable iron resources began to give out. More than that, for the Utah Copper Co. he developed a mass production treatment of copper ore which is used throughout the world. D. C. Jackling was a man who appreciated the earth's treasures. He dug into them and reaped rocks for the benefit of men.

'Unfettered Use of Cyprus'

Prime Minister Eden based his defense of Britain's deportation of Archbishop Makarios from Cyprus on the need to suppress terrorism, but whether the deportation was practical is another question.

The head of the Greek Orthodox Church on the eastern Mediterranean island was indeed engaged in politics and thus opened himself to civil reprisal. But terrorism is worse today than before the Archbishop was removed. Extremists have killed an English policeman. Strong military patrols have not restored order. So the Eden Government might ask itself whether it has handled the situation with skill and diplomacy.

Behind the effort to suppress terrorism is, of course, Britain's real need for a position on Cyprus. Mr. Eden stated it clearly:

Neither the NATO obligations nor the tripartite agreement (between Britain, France and the United States to keep peace in the region) nor any agreement in the Mideastern area—none can be effectively carried out unless we have free and unfettered use of Cyprus.

Military facts bear out this assertion. Britain has successfully lost positions in Palestine, Egypt and Jordan. Cyprus is her one remaining base. But is "free and unfettered use of Cyprus" synonymous with maintenance of the island as a British crown colony?

Britain can argue for political control on historical grounds that Cyprus has not been tied to Greece for centuries. But she cannot deny that most Cypriots today are dissatisfied with an offer of more self-government and want union with Greece. And King Paul has offered to help maintain the British military base if union occurs. From a strictly military standpoint, a bastion is hardly secure when the people around it are in open rebellion.

Cyprus is important to the United States for the reasons given by Mr. Eden. But this country is not bound in its refusal to take sides to support unrealistic policies. President Eisenhower has said the United States is ready to do anything reasonable and practical to help reach a solution. The solution which restores good will for the West as well as order will be the solution that is practical.

$75,000,000 Is Not Enough

Tuesday found members of the Missouri House Appropriations Committee looking into the needs of the Southwest Missouri State College at Springfield. Roy Ellis, president of the college, explained the increasing number of applications for admission and the contrasting lack of student housing and teaching space. Yet his request for $5,326,700 of the $75,000,000 bond issue was cut to $2,800,000 by Assistant Budget Director William B. McGregor.

Although the figures vary, the story is the same at all Missouri institutions of higher learning, starting with the State University at Columbia. Even with the best of good will, the special session allocating the bond money cannot give these schools what they asked for and what they need. The legislators must consider the urgent necessities of the penal system, so tragically highlighted by the penitentiary riots. It must also consider the long neglected state hospitals. But $75,000,000 just is not enough to go around.

Generally speaking the legislators—without the guidance they should have from Gov. Donnelly as chief administrator of all the state's activities—will have to follow a rule of practical common sense. Where they believe needs to be most urgent, they will have to allot enough money. And that will leave unmet a considerable number of needs just as pressing.

But out of their knowledge of what they are forced to neglect may well come a strong move to make further provision for needed funds.

A Park to Be Saved

City officials will be guilty of inexcusable shortsightedness if they sell Tilles Park on McKnight road to private real estate developers.

The possibility of such a sale has been raised by announcement of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment that bids will be sought, though a final decision to sell has not been made. The City of Brentwood has expressed interest in acquiring the tract and continuing it as a park. But if there is to be open bidding the chances are that any number of subdivision developers would be willing to pay far more for the tract as home sites than any public agency might pay for it as a park.

The 76 acres which the late C. A. Tilles donated to the City of St. Louis in 1932 would make a splendid subdivision, no doubt about it. Any developer who has toyed with the idea must be fairly drooling at the thought of the fine old trees and the gently rolling acres being converted into salable assets.

But the liquidation of any present park land anywhere in the metropolitan area would be unforgivable. Both in city and county, park space is inadequate already. County voters at the bond issue election last fall voted to authorize $2,200,000 in bonds to buy new park areas, so badly needed by so many communities.

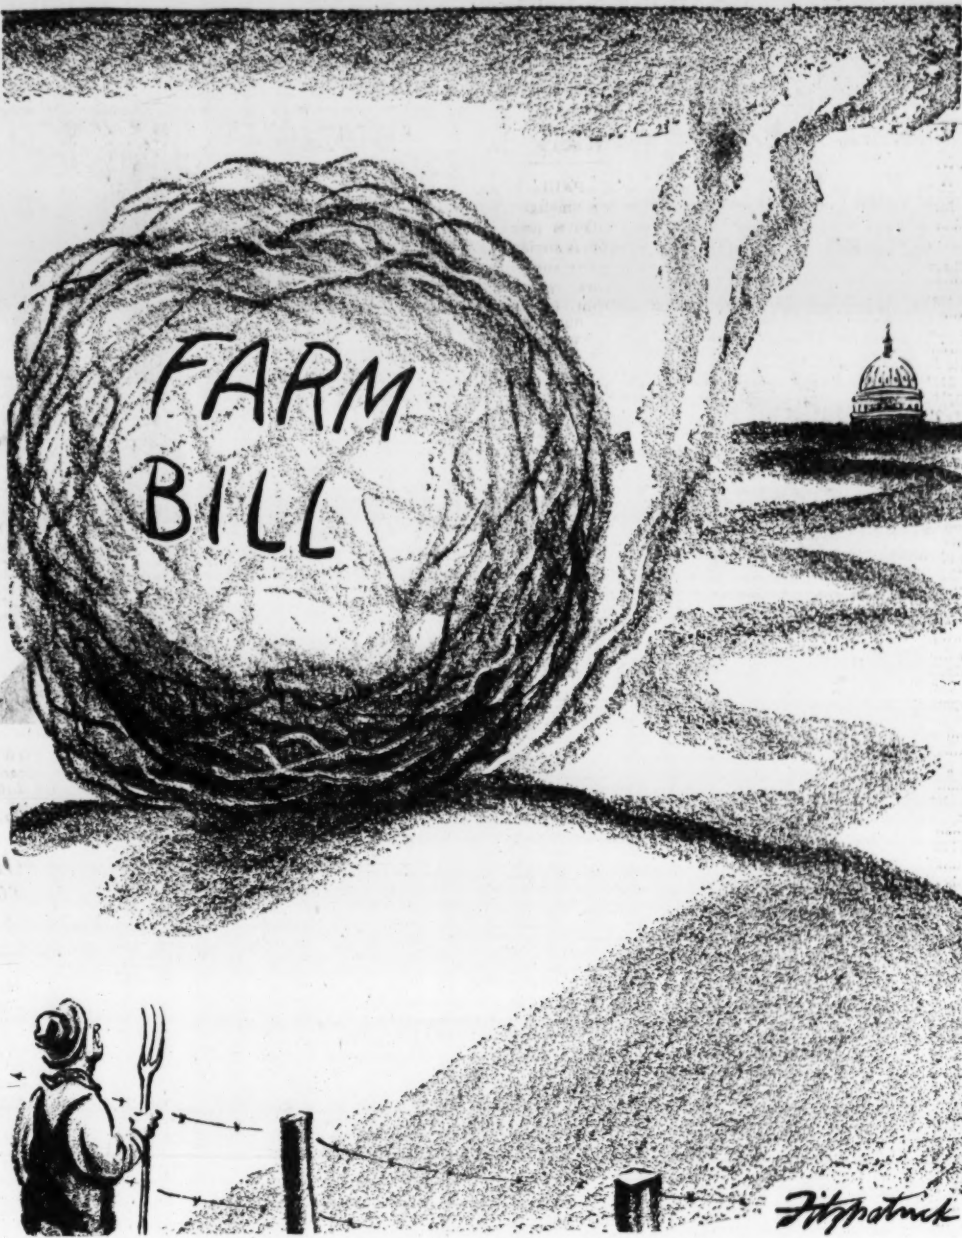

Would it not be a travesty for the county to be hunting for new park sites while the city sold for private exploitation a splendid park already in existence?

Tilles Park lies within the corporate boundaries of Ladue. That gives the City of Ladue some responsibility in the matter. Is it going to stand idly by and permit this park to be converted into a subdivision? We suggest that officials of Ladue, Brentwood, the county and the city get together to prevent it.

The city may have good reason to sell the property, but no agency in the metropolitan area can defend a sale which permits breaking up a public park for private profit.

Commendable but Incomplete

As a clear statement of principle the School Board's resolution on lugs is most commendable. The Board declared that school employees are "under absolutely no obligation to make contributions for the purpose of conducting a school tax election or for any other purpose." Fine. But as a practical matter something else is needed. If school employees are really to enjoy the right the Board now says they have—that is, the right to decline to give—they need at least a minimum of protection quite apart from a mere statement of principle. Perhaps this might be accomplished by a rule prohibiting officers and employees under penalty of dismissal from soliciting political contributions from school workers. Certainly it would be better than nothing, which is just about all the workers have as of now.

HERE COMES THE TUMBLE WEED

New Name for an Old Trap

Two views of new Dirksen Amendment, one favorable and one opposed, show it to be the old Bricker Amendment in language calculated to be more acceptable to President; it would hobble foreign affairs by subjecting treaties to domestic standards.

The Washington Post

The Bricker and Dirksen amendments designed to curb the President's treaty-making power differ in one important particular.

Senator Bricker's version proclaimed its purpose in rather explicit terms. Senator Dirksen's version, which has now been approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, states the same purpose in camouflaged language intended to obscure its purpose without changing the end result.

The Dirksen amendment is the outgrowth of an effort to make this proposed amendment of the Constitution acceptable to the Eisenhower Administration. The President has said on many occasions that he would oppose any scheme to require congressional action (in addition to approval by the Senate) to make treaties the law of the land.

Most of all he opposed the notorious "which" clause that would have required the consent of the states to treaties dealing with subjects domestically under state control. The President has indicated, however, that he would not oppose an amendment merely reaffirming the present law—that a treaty may not override the Constitution.

'Any Provision Of'

Taking unfair advantage of that concession, Messrs. Bricker and Dirksen have now devised this trap for the Administration: "A provision of a treaty or other international agreement which conflicts with any provision of this Constitution shall not be of any force or effect."

On its face it appears to be innocuous, but three words—"any provision of"—might give it a devastating impact in practice.

At present a properly negotiated treaty will stand up in court unless it violates the Constitution when that document is viewed as an organic whole.

Under the Dirksen amendment a challenged treaty would have to be measured against each separate provision of the Constitution and presumably it would go down if it proved to be offensive to any one of them.

For example, "any provision of" the Constitution includes the Tenth Amendment that powers not delegated by the Constitution to the United States are reserved to the states or to the people.

Measured against this provision alone, a treaty providing for the control of migratory birds, or for the right of citizens to do business or inherit property in another country, would probably fall because those powers were not specifically granted to the Federal Government.

Blow at Leadership

It is true that when the Dirksen amendment is laid beside the grant of power to the President and Senate to make treaties—a provision that would remain in the Constitution—it seems innocuous. But if it means that conflict with any isolated part of the grand old charter would invalidate a treaty, it would be a perilous innovation.

The Constitution is a complicated document which both grants and withholds power. Its conflicting concepts must necessarily be ironed out in the light of its basic principles.

The Dirksen amendment is a camouflaged maneuver designed to undermine American leadership in international affairs.

The Chicago Tribune

The proposed Bricker amendment to the Constitution to prevent treaty intrusions in the area reserved for domestic law has emerged from the Senate Judiciary Committee with an approving vote of 11 to 2. The amendment has been revised yet again. Whether it actually would have the effect its supporters hope it may have is not too clear.

As originally drafted several years ago by leading members of the American Bar Association, the amendment was longer and there was no possible doubt of what it sought to do. For example, the bar association recommended this language: "A treaty shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation by Congress which it could enact under its delegated powers in the absence of such treaty."

That formula evoked the opposition of Mr. Eisenhower and all of the nationalists. They contended that the hands of the President would be tied when he tried to make foreign policy.

36-Year-Old Court Ruling

Conceding that the supporters do not want to change the Constitution, they seek to guarantee that a treaty will not change the Constitution. For there now exists sanction for that to be done under a decision of the Supreme Court 36 years ago.

In this decision the court held that a congressional act, assumed unconstitutional in the absence of a treaty, nevertheless became constitutional when embodied in a treaty. The court's reasoning was that a congressional act had to be "in pursuance" of the Constitution to be lawful, but that provisions of a treaty, with binding effect domestically because treaties are "the supreme law of the land," need not satisfy this requirement.

"That was because a treaty, according to the Constitution, need only be made 'under the authority of the United States.' That is, provisions of treaties do not have to be consistent with rights extended or prohibitions imposed in any other part of the Constitution."

This doctrine has been interpreted to mean that, by resort to the treaty process, the President and two-thirds of the Senators affirmatively voting can circumscribe rights and break down constitutional prohibitions in defiance of the Constitution. They can, in other words, legislate unconstitutionally by means of treaty.

Treaty Process Unaltered

This is the problem which the Bricker amendment is designed to correct. Those who support the latest version of the amendment say it will accomplish its purpose. Some of the opponents agree that that will be the effect, and oppose the amendment as limiting the President's freedom of action. Others suggest that the language may be meaningless.

One other possibility remains, which would be entirely regrettable. That is that the present proposed amendment, by failing to provide specific correction to close the loophole opened by the Supreme Court in its 1920 decision, would have the effect of affirming the doctrine of the court at that time. For the amendment would not alter the treaty process itself. A treaty would still be made "under the authority of the United States" and not "in pursuance" of the Constitution.

By this reasoning, it would be futile to try to interdict unconstitutional provisions of a treaty, when the Supreme Court countenances the recognition of unconstitutional provisions as perfectly valid law of domestic application.

We trust that the Senate will consider these possibilities with care, lest an amendment result which fails of its intended effect.

Moses Among the Prophets

WORKING FOR THE PEOPLE, by Robert Moses. (Harper, 282 pp., $4.50.)

Robert Moses, famous for building parks, highways, tunnels, bridges, housing and other public works, can also shape a neatly turned cutting phrase. Too busy, he says, to write an autobiography or a textbook, he has taken some articles written during the past 15 years, added a few connecting remarks, allowed a friendly editor to string it all together, and the result is both informative and provocative.

Whatever else people say of Mr. Moses, few deny his keen mind, sharp tongue, willing hands, his scrupulous honesty and his dedication (for 43 years) to "working for the people."

True, after reading this book, you may wonder whether Mr. Moses fancies himself as the man Diogenes was looking for. Perhaps Mr. Moses would argue (and about what wouldn't he argue?) that the two are but one man holding down two jobs, even as Mr. Moses himself usually holds down about a half a dozen at the same time.

And if old Diogenes had his tub, which he found wide enough for a world, so Robert Moses has his city, which many others have abandoned as too confining. He pokes fun at builders and buyers who rush to the suburbs; at those who work in open space; he canberra, New Delhi or Levittown. "You can make a company town almost overnight," says he, "but not a city with personality, character, flavor and soul." That takes time, leadership, the hands, brains and imagination of many men, and designs not ordinarily found on the drafting boards of engineers and business men.

Now, don't be misled by that last remark. Some of Mr. Moses's best friends are engineers and business men; some are politicians, and some are government employees either by virtue of civil service or by grace of appointment by a political friend. He has a good word and a bad word (but most important, an interesting word) about each and all. On Brooklyn, however, Mr. Moses throws all caution to the winds:

"The trouble with the prophets of the doom of cities is that they do not think like the people who live in them (and) honestly believe that all city people hate their existence. They do not realize that Brooklynites adore Brooklyn, idolize the Dodgers because they symbolize it, and cheer themselves hoarse at the mention of its name. Can Lewis Mumford and the aesthetes, and Frank Lloyd Wright and the back-to-the-land boys be right and 3,000,000 Brooklynites be wrong?"

Yet in his biting, humorous description of Jimmy Walker and other mayors he has known, Mr. Moses says: "I do not know why anyone in his right senses wants to be Mayor of New York. It is the best way of inviting stomach ulcers, gout and beri beri, swamping the family, hastening early baldness and denying that sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

This is a delightful book about a wonderful man who has been and done much. It may disappoint all city people some, but, as is true of Mr. Moses's favorite city, it is at least fascinating for a visit. IRVIN DAGEN.

THOMAS L. STOKES

As It Looks in Minnesota

THIS TYPICAL FARM STATE, now in the limelight because of the impending March 20 Stevenson-Kefauver primary test for the Democratic presidential nomination, is simultaneously a good sampling ground for the Republican party and the extent of its troubles in the Middle East agricultural region.

There is no doubt the Republican party has troubles in this state. They are intensified by the tight grip of the dynamic and politically efficient Democratic-Farm Labor party which occupies every state office but one, that of state auditor, as a result of its sweeping victory of two years ago. This would seem to assure retention of the state Gov. Freeman by the Democratic-Farm Labor party in the November elections—as most political analysts now foresee—especially since the vigorous young Governor, Orville L. Freeman, who is up for re-election, will head the ticket and be the sparkplug of the campaign.

In turn, those circumstances would seem to indicate a good prospect for Minnesota to go back into the Democratic column in the presidential race this November, where it had been since 1933—until it flopped back into the Republican ranks in 1952.

Apparently only one thing stands in the way of this—one man, in fact, the same man who broke the long Democratic trend in presidential elections four years ago.

Nobody Blames President.
This man is President Eisenhower. His personal popularity is still just as high in this state as ever, despite the unrest among farmers. That alone might be enough to keep the state in the Republican column in the presidential race, though perhaps by a reduced majority. The President carried Minnesota by 155,000 votes in 1952.

The President bears the same charm in the farm belt that he does in less turbulent areas—that is, nobody seems to blame him for what goes wrong. This is the dilemma that plagues Democrats here as elsewhere.

Gov. Freeman, in a discussion of the campaign in his office at the capitol here, figuratively threw up his hands at what he called a situation without parallel in our political history—that is, that the head of the Government is not held accountable for acts of his Administration.

Benson Gets Blame.
As you could guess, the scapegoat in the case of Minnesota, since the troubles here are farm troubles, is Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

How the President remains untouched while his administrators take the gaff is no better illustrated than in the Minnesota poll of the Minneapolis Tribune this week.

It shows that 78 per cent of those polled approve of "the

PIANIST SHIRLEY PARNAS PHILHARMONIC SOLOIST

The St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Russell Gerhart, will present the third concert of its current season tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

Miss Shirley Parnas, young St. Louis pianist, will be featured as soloist with the orchestra. The program will include the Overture by Weber; Concerto No. 3 for Piano and Orchestra by Beethoven; the Hary Janos Suite by Kodaly; and the Children's Symphony by McDonald.

Miss Parnas has appeared in numerous piano and organ recitals, and in 1953 she was a winner in the Young Artists' Contest. In addition to her local piano and organ study at Community Music School and at Lindenwood College, she has attended the Organ Institute in Andover, Mass.

JOHN A. PARK, RALEIGH EDITOR, PUBLISHER, DIES

RALEIGH, N.C., March 15 (UP)—John A. Park, editor and publisher of the Raleigh Times for 44 years, died early today at his home here. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Park had been in declining health for several months prior to the sale of the Raleigh Times to the News and Observer Publishing Co. last June. His illness forced him to retire and he had been inactive since sale of the Times.

He bought the Raleigh Times, which then was in the hands of receivers in 1911. He later owned newspapers at Fayetteville, New Bern and Greenville and published Turner's Almanac in Raleigh.

FLOWERS ART SHOW AT PEOPLE'S CENTER

St. Louisan, an Expressionist, Exhibiting 22 Paintings and Drawings.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON
Jean G. Flowers, St. Louis artist, is holding a one-man show of 22 new paintings and drawings this month at People's Art Center, 3657 Grandel square. He has won large cash prizes in national contests. The exhibition, which will extend through March 31, opened Sunday.

Although Flowers held a smaller display last year at a downtown gallery and has been represented by paintings in City Art Museum and Artists' Guild competitive shows, the current exhibition offers the best opportunity thus far for study of his work. He is 31 years old and has earned bachelor of fine arts and master of arts in fine arts degrees from Bradley University, Peoria, Ill.

From an examination of his newest work Flowers emerges as an artist with a nice sense of the effects best obtained in each of his three mediums—oil, water color and ink. He is an expressionist whose modifications of contour and color simultaneously enhance communication of mood and achieve decorative, harmonious proportion.

His fondness in composition for a certain easy, swinging line, much like a catenary curve, shows up in three large and dissimilar oils.

This rhythmic line is the basic design for the abandoned, expressive flow of swaying torsos and hips in "After Hours," a dance floor scene; for the alert stance suggested by "The Sentinels," a semi-abstract landscape dominated by huge power lines and towers, and for centrifugal sensations in wheeling birds and wind-swept clouds of "Sea Gulls."

Closer to transcripts of reality are his water colors, all records of a recent trip to Mexico. Original with the artist, however, are some of the architectural adornments, like abstract outdoor murals, bright in hue and geometrical in design.

Favorites with Sunday's guests were the drawings, where style and subject matter subtly blend. In each of a pair called "Folk Singer" there are repeated imagery and elemental rhythms as in a ballad refrain. These lyrical drawings contrast effectively with "The Workers," where rugged physiques in blocky attitudes convey the ardors of sustained manual labor.

Jean Flowers's show occupies the center's front and middle galleries, an display in the rear room is a group of prints called "Folk Singer" there are repeated imagery and elemental rhythms as in a ballad refrain. WASHINGTON, March 15—Jonathan Daniels opened the Woodrow Wilson centennial exhibit at the Library of Congress last night by attacking any belief that politics should stop at the water's edge. He described such a policy as "the most dangerous ever sold to a people."

Daniels, editor of the Raleigh (North Carolina) News and Observer, is the son of the late Joseph Daniels who was Secretary of the Navy under President Wilson.

The speaker, a Democrat, said President Eisenhower was right when he brought the Korean war into politics in the 1952 campaign, and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was wrong in his recent suggestion that the "American people in this election year avoid discussion of the situation in the Middle East."

"If democracy does not concern itself with areas in which its sons may die, what in God's name shall be the concern of democracy?" he asked.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War I President, opened the exhibit covering the range of Wilson's life.

Many famous documents connected with his life are being exhibited for the first time.

TREATMENT CUTS RHEUMATIC FEVER

Washington U. Doctor Tells of Tests on Sore Throat Leading to Disease.

Incidence of rheumatic fever, a disease linked with a prior attack of a "strep throat" infection, can be cut sharply by early treatment of the sore throat, Dr. Frank J. Catanzaro, clinical instructor in internal medicine at the Washington University School of Medicine, said last night.

Dr. Catanzaro, speaking before the St. Louis County Medical Society, described clinical studies conducted at Fort Warren Air Force Base, Wyoming. The studies were made by a team of doctors headed by Dr. C. H. Rammekamp, new professor of medicine at Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

The studies of hospitalized Air Force personnel showed that patients whose strep throat was not treated were far more likely to contract rheumatic fever than those whose strep throat was treated by penicillin and by other antibiotics.

Of those drugs tested, Dr. Catanzaro said, penicillin was discovered to be the most effective.

All patients studied had never previously had an attack of rheumatic fever. About three per cent of those studied whose strep throats were not treated eventually developed rheumatic fever, Dr. Catanzaro said. Of those whose throats were treated with penicillin, only 2 per cent subsequently developed the disease, he stated.

"We found that even if a sore throat was not treated immediately, treatment could still markedly reduce the incidence of rheumatic fever," Dr. Catanzaro added. "This held true even if the treatment with penicillin was delayed as long as 10 days after the onset of the strep throat."

A total of about 3000 patients was involved in the studies carried on at the streptococcal disease laboratory at the Fort Warren base, Dr. Catanzaro said.

Other St. Louis physicians who were members of the team, which made its investigation between 1952 and 1954, are Dr. William D. Perry, now an instructor in medicine at Washington University, and Dr. Alton J. Morris, a resident in medicine at the university.

METHODISTS WANT NO SEGREGATION, POLL INDICATES

CHICAGO, March 15 (AP)—The majority of the nation's Methodists believe there should be no racial segregation in the church, a Methodist opinion poll indicates.

Results of the poll published today in the Christian Advocate, official news journal of the Methodist church, showed that less than one-sixth favor a policy of segregation for all Methodist churches.

The removal of all barriers, receiving into the local church all who meet the tests of character and take membership vows, regardless of economic status or race, was favored by 56.4 per cent of Methodists questioned.

A spokesman for the denomination said the question of segregation in the church was expected to be one of the major issues to be discussed at the church's general conference in Minneapolis April 25-May 9.

The poll showed that 16.6 per cent of those questioned wanted to have all churches serve either Negroes or whites exclusively, and 23.8 per cent wanted to have separate churches of each group and some inclusive churches.

Methodist ministers questioned in the poll were 65.6 per cent in favor of removing all barriers. The poll covered 1691 persons in all sections of the country.

CPL. ALEXANDER J. M'GEE DIES, POLICEMAN 42 YEARS
Cpl. Alexander J. McGee, a member of the police department for 42 years, died today after apparently suffering a heart attack at his home, 6059 Odell street. He had been under treatment for a heart ailment for some time and had applied for retirement effective April 1.

Police were summoned by Cpl. McGee's wife and took him to City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. He was appointed to the department in 1914 and promoted to corporal in 1949. Before being placed on sick leave recently he had been assigned to the Newstead avenue district. He was 67 years old.

LEHMAN HITS AT EISENHOWER ON INTEGRATION

Senator Says Whole Issue Is Total Compliance or Defiance by All People.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—Southern Democratic leaders in Congress today maintained a reserved silence to President Eisenhower's plea for "patience and understanding" on the school integration issue.

But from the northern Democratic side the President came under criticism from one leader in the civil rights bloc, Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem., N.Y.).

Mr. Eisenhower urged at his press conference yesterday that the American people approach the desegregation problem with "intelligence, understanding and patience." He said that "extremists on either side are not going to help the situation."

Lehman took issue with what he interpreted as Mr. Eisenhower's suggestion that those urging compliance with the Supreme Court's decision are extremists or opposed to patience and moderation.

"The whole issue," Lehman said in an interview, "is whether all the people of the United States are going to accept the ruling of the Supreme Court or are going to defy the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court."

Southern Democratic Senators who recently pledged themselves to use "all lawful means" to oppose the Supreme Court's school integration decision displayed a general reluctance to comment on Mr. Eisenhower's plea. Senators Richard B. Russell of Georgia, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina and John Stennis of Mississippi all declined comment.

There was a feeling among some that the President's position was actually conciliatory in tone. But, if only for political reasons, the Senators were reluctant publicly to align themselves in any way with Mr. Eisenhower on the segregation question.

Senator Clifford P. Case (Rep., New Jersey), said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery today that he wished "with all my heart" that Southern Congressmen had not issued their denunciation of the Supreme Court decision. He said "it is inconceivable... that the American people should refuse to accept the determination of the Supreme Court on the segregation issue."

Americans for Democratic Action charged yesterday that "inaction" by President Eisenhower has let civil disorder in the South "approach a level of conflict unknown in America since the Civil War."

U.S. ARGUES OVER EMBARGO AS REDS PRODUCE STEEL

they found that some Soviet ideas about automation techniques looked like advances on prevailing American ideas. Much other evidence along the same lines might also be mentioned, but this should be enough to make the point. In sum, the Soviet economy has grown very greatly and Soviet technology has advanced very rapidly in the period since the war. For these reasons, the famous embargo is now beginning to be self-defeating. In certain very special areas, the controls may still be worth the inter-allied friction that they cause. But all the experts agree that in most areas, the embargo now causes less inconvenience to the Soviets than to the American policy-makers.

Trade-wise, in fact, the experts think we ought to stop worrying about the embargo and start worrying about the final conclusion of Sir Robert Shone. Shone embodied his conclusions in a warning that if the Soviets chose to export steel, products, they could make a rather handsome profit, too, because of their cheap labor. Since the experts further think that the Soviets are now beginning to have an exportable surplus, Sir Robert's warning ought to be taken very seriously indeed. U. S. Exhibits at Trade Fairs. WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The United States will have exhibits in international trade fairs in France, Italy and Japan this spring. A department of Commerce spokesman says the exhibits will show "how the American way of life produces for peace and progress in the world."

FLASHES OF LIFE. DETROIT (AP)—Suburban Dearborn has ordered 23 new police cars in assorted colors. "They'll be beauties," said Mrs. Marguerite C. Johnson, public safety commissioner. "Pretty reds, pinks, blues, greens and other colors. Even the word police will be in complimentary colors. . . . Black is so drab."

High Living. FANWOOD, N.J. (AP)—The character that came for dinner at the Leonard Basiles, here, is still around four years later, but the Basiles don't mind. It is a small which dines once a month on a small portion of bread and lettuce. The small came to dinner originally to provide dinner, that is, for the Basiles—it and some other snails. Mrs. Basile relieved it "just to see what he'd do." It doesn't do anything but eat and hibernate.

A Cat Tale. NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Three years of litigation caused by a stray cat ended when a $50,000 lawsuit was settled out of court. The cat got stranded, one afternoon, in a loft over the Bradford bowling alleys. Herbert Sykes, a utility lineman, tried to rescue it, but the loft floor gave way and he landed on the alleys. His injuries kept him from work for several months. He sued the owners, claiming that he was asked to rescue the cat. The amount of the settlement wasn't disclosed. No one knows what became of the cat.

Georgia Educator Penalized After Talk at Negro College

Stripped of 'President Emeritus' Title and May Lose His Pension of $518 a Month.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 15 (UP)—Dr. Guy H. Wells, former president of Georgia State College for Women, was stripped of his "president emeritus" title yesterday and may lose his $518-a-month pension in a heated racial controversy.

The State Board of Regents, which controls the affairs of the University of Georgia system, revoked the honorary title "it gave Wells in 1954 when he retired from the college presidency he held for 19 years."

The State Board of Education, at the same time, recommended unanimously that Wells' $518-a-month retirement pay be cut off. The education board, which controls the public school systems, submitted its recommendation to the Teacher Retirement Board, which will meet March 21 and probably consider the pension revocation.

Neither the regents nor the education board gave any reason for their actions but it followed by only three days a published article on Wells' recent speaking engagement at Paine College, a Negro school in Augusta.

Gov. Marvin Griffin, commenting on the board's action, said Wells "does advocate integration" and added that "to be drawing $518-a-month pension, Dr. Wells has been acting a little ugly."

The story, which the Courier stated was written by C. O. Prescott and Eugene Prescott, quoted Wells as apologizing for "the stupid members of the Legislature and the stupid Governor of Georgia."

Wells, secretary of the Georgia Council of Interracial Co-operation, said the information on which the regents and education boards based their actions was "completely inaccurate and distorted."

The former college president, who had been connected with Georgia schools and colleges for 40 years before his retirement, said the two boards should be willing to hear him before eliminating his honorary title and trying to kill his pension.

Wells said today he would go to court if necessary to retain the pension.

"That's my earned retirement that I'm going to live on," he said. "I don't think they can revoke it."

JAMES C. BURKHAM BUYS 3 NEWSPAPERS

Former President of Globe-Democrat Acquires Connecticut Weeklies.

James C. Burkham, former president of the Globe-Democrat Publishing Co., has purchased three weekly newspapers in suburbs of New Haven, Conn., he announced today. The price was not announced.

The papers are the Hamden Chronicle, Branford Review and East Haven News, with a total circulation of about 7000. They were started in 1946.

Burkham said he would leave St. Louis at the end of this month to take charge of them. The previous owners were Richard G. Harris and his brother, the late Marshall N. Harris.

Burkham, a native St. Louisan, was president of the Globe-Democrat up to the time it was purchased by S. I. Newhouse last March 23. He went to the newspaper in 1947, as administrative executive and a member of the board of directors.

He became secretary in 1949 and president the following year. He is a nephew of the late E. Lansing Ray, former owner of the newspaper, who died last Aug. 30.

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED 2 YOUTHS IN ATTACK ON GIRL

Trial of Joseph A. Hastings Jr. and George S. Lawson, charged with raping a 14-year-old University City girl, was transferred yesterday from the court of Circuit Judge Noah Weinstein to that of Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller at Clayton.

The mandatory change of venue was granted by Judge Weinstein when Charles M. Shaw, defending the two youths, filed an affidavit alleging prejudice. A third youth, Acil McGee, was acquitted of a rape charge last Thursday by a jury in Judge Weinstein's court.

Judge Mueller yesterday set trial of Hastings and Lawson for Monday. Shaw said he is still trying to work out pleas of guilty with Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garholz for all three youths to dispose of all pending charges. All three boys face trial on kidnapping charges May 14.

Iran Rejects Soviet Protest. TEHRAN, March 15 (AP)—Iran today rejected a Soviet protest on the arrest and expulsion of a Soviet assistant military attaché, Maj. Anatoli I. Kouznetsov. The Iranians reiterated that the attaché arrested Feb. 29, was engaged in espionage. He left Iran last Thursday.

MOTHER'S HUNCH RIGHT, BOY AUTO-VICTIM WAS HER SON

CLEVELAND, March 15 (AP)—"Can I use your phone? I just hit a kid," said the young man at the door. Mrs. Beulah Lewis stared at him speechlessly. She had a hunch.

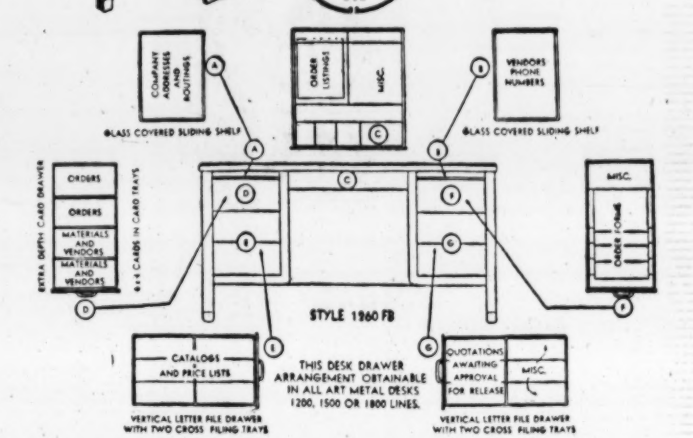

She brushed past the youth and ran into the street in front of her home in suburban Brook Park. There, in a ditch along the street was her son, Richard, 12 years old. He was dead and his battered bicycle was near his body. The driver, a 16-year-old, was not held.

HEIMWEHR LEADER STARHEMBERG DIES

Forces He Led Were Power in Austria Before Hitler Took Over.

BREGENZ, Austria, March 15 (AP)—Prince Ernest Ruediger von Starhemberg, wealthy leader of Austria's prewar Heimwehr, died of a heart attack today. He was 56 years old. He was stricken during a walk at a sanatorium.

The Heimwehr, a Fascist-type national guard, was a power in Austria before Hitler incorporated this country into Germany in 1938. The Germans had no use for Starhemberg. He fled the country at the outbreak of World War II. He returned in 1955 from years of exile in Argentina.

He won a legal fight last June to regain ownership of 82 pieces of property—castles, estates and homes—confiscated by the Nazis in 1938 and, after the war, placed by law under public administration. Recovery of the properties made him one of Austria's wealthiest men.

An Austrian court ruled in 1953 against trying Starhemberg on a charge of high treason. The Socialist party had pressed the charge.

3 WESTERN ALLIES SPLIT OVER CYPRUS ISSUE

ble with the Cypriots, too. There were uprisings against them. They granted the Cypriots some self-government but held on to the island.

In 1878 the British, by treaty with Turkey, took over the occupation and administration of Cyprus. Britain annexed it when it got into World War I against Turkey in 1914. Turkey recognized this annexation in the Treaty of Lausanne in 1923.

In 1925 Britain made Cyprus a colony, under a British governor. This isn't the first time the Greek Cypriots clamored for union with Greece since the British moved in, but in the past the Greek government was lukewarm to the idea. Britain argued that Greece, which had not controlled Cyprus in 2000 years, had no claim.

Terrorism Backs Demands. The present demands of the Greek Cypriots have grown increasingly bitter and violent. A terrorist organization, called the National Organization of Cypriot Fighters, is charged with the killing of British soldiers.

The British have made arrests and house-to-house searches. They have offered rewards of as much as $14,000 for information leading to the arrest of terrorists or the discovery of arms.

Ten days ago the British made their offer — some self-government for the Cypriots while Britain controlled defense and foreign affairs — to Archbishop Makarios.

He held out for other concessions and refused to call off the violence. For example, he wanted pardons for political prisoners. Last Friday he announced he was going to Greece to talk to the government there.

The British seized him and several others as he was boarding a plane and said they were exiling him. They shipped him and his companions off to the Seychelles islands in the Indian ocean.

This brought more violence in Cyprus. Shutdowns of business, a general strike, shootings.

If the Greeks on Cyprus should succeed in detaching it from Britain, the shrinking British imperial defenses would be thrown back nearly 1000 miles west to the much smaller mid-Mediterranean isle of Malta.

Loss of Cyprus also would be another blow to British prestige in the Middle East at a time when Russia is trying to fish in the trouble waters of Arab-Israeli discord.

Too little to stand alone and too big to be ignored, the Isle's 3500 square miles were coveted for centuries by the power tides that swept the eastern Mediterranean. Although it is only 40 miles from Turkey and 60 from Syria, the nearest Greek soil to Cyprus is the Dodecanese Island of Rhodes, 250 miles away.

Held 300 Years by Turks.

For 300 years the Ottoman Turks held Cyprus. In 1878 the Ottoman Empire was called the sick man of Europe (and Asia Minor) and was likely to become sicker as a result of threatened inroads by czarist Russia.

The Turkish Sultan was willing to pay a stiff price to anybody who would help him. On June 4, 1878, Britain agreed in a formal convention to defend Asian Turkey against any further Russian aggression. In return Britain got permission to move in on Cyprus.

The island is not quite half the size of Massachusetts. It exports iron and copper, and has about 1,000,000 acres of farmland.

But its main importance, in the world pictures, is its strategic location.

OKLAHOMA CALM IN CHANGE-OVER TO INTEGRATION

was nothing they could do but obey it. Last June, the State Board of Education informed local school boards that the way was clear for them to begin integration. The board also announced that another year of grace under the state's separate school system would be allowed, but it warned that, beginning with the 1956-57 school year, no special state funds would be paid to help maintain separate Negro schools.

At that time Gov. Raymond

D. Gary, in a radio address, said: "I feel sure that defiance of the Supreme Court mandate will not be tolerated. School boards which might entertain such ideas will find themselves on their own. Certainly the state of Oklahoma cannot possibly defend such action."

The new method of allocating Oklahoma's state aid to schools will be extremely painful to many of the smaller communities still maintaining segregated school systems. Some of these districts receive as much as 90 per cent of their funds from the state.

Of the 15 counties that have made no move to integrate, some have county-wide Negro school populations as high as 22 per cent. Some towns in these counties have Negro populations as high as 40 per cent. A few of these counties are planning to wait another year to complete school building plans before they integrate.

Several of them are in the "Little Dixie" area in the southeast corner of the state. This section, like the Bootheel area of Missouri, has a heavy cotton economy.

Oklahoma's Negro leaders expect some districts, particularly those in the Little Dixie area, to move very slowly, but privately they are reluctant to start lawsuits until every opportunity to prove good faith has been exhausted.

The satisfaction these Negro leaders have gained from the pace of integration in Oklahoma was dampened somewhat by the loss of about 150 Negro teachers. They were dismissed when their Negro schools were closed and their pupils integrated.

In general, the spokesmen for Negro organizations in Oklahoma are satisfied with the progress that has been made.

The future for Negroes in Oklahoma is expected to depend considerably on how well they are organized and how fast their leaders decide to move in seeking court rulings to force integration where it has not taken place.

It may take many more lawsuits to open all of Oklahoma, but the state's Attorney General, Mac Q. Williamson, said recently:

"Our (state) Constitution begins with a clause saying that the laws shall not be in conflict with the supreme law of the land. We're still in the Union, so that is that."

PERU GOVERNMENT FREES ALL POLITICAL PRISONERS

The New York Times News Service, Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.

LIMA, Peru, March 15—The government yesterday released all civilian political prisoners arrested 26 days ago on unspecified charges of being connected with a revolt.

Among them was Pedro Beltran, publisher of the independent Lima newspaper La Prensa. President Manuel Odria's government also canceled orders to arrest many political opponents who had been in hiding for almost a month. It restored the constitutional guarantees that it suspended immediately after the outbreak of the revolt Feb. 16.

STOCKS SWEEP AHEAD INTO NEW HIGH TERRITORY

Records Made for 5th
Time in 6 Days —
More Peak Profits,
Big Expansions Reported.

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Metal, chemical and oil shares put on a strong advance today, sending the stock market to its fifth new high in six days.

Numerous key issues were up 2 to 4 points, and "blue chips" in all divisions joined in the drive ahead.

The market was higher throughout the session, with many stocks near their best at the close. Steels and motors came into their own in the final hour.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks went up 90 cents to a record 118.60. Yesterday the average climbed $1.50 to the previous high mark. Industrials were up $1.80, rails 50 cents and utilities 10 cents.

Trading amounted to 3,270,000 shares, compared with yesterday's 3,140,000 shares.

Trade was in 1216 issues, 10 more than yesterday. There were 566 issues higher at the close, 405 lower and 245 unchanged.

New 1955-56 highs were made by 87 and new lows by 47.

Good Corporate News.

Helping to power the continued bull market were announcements by more companies of record profits and big expansion programs.

The Department of Commerce forecast that business firms will spend $5 billion dollars for new plants and equipment this year, 22 percent more than in 1955.

Standard Oil (Ind.) (Jersey) stood out in a higher oil group, with a rise of more than 3 points.

Shell gained over a point.

Aluminum Co. of America was up around 3 as it announced record earnings for 1955 and reported on plans for a new smelting plant.

Burroughs Corp. went ahead around 2 points. Directors of Burroughs and Electro-Data Corp., Pasadena, Calif., have proposed an exchange of stock between the companies.

General Precision Equipment Corp. slipped around 2 points after reporting 1955 earnings equal to $2.05 per common share vs. $5.54 the year before.

Continental Motors lost a point or so on a reduced dividend and a drop in profits.

Gainers included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Douglas, Commonwealth Edison, Phelps Dodge, Kaiser Aluminum, Allied Chemical, Monsanto, du Pont, Santa Fe, U. S. Gypsum, and Hiram Walker.

London stocks were higher today, the Financial Times index rising 1.4 points to 175.7.

CONSTRUCTION AWARDS
HIGHEST SINCE DEC. 1953

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Heavy construction contract awards reported in the week ended Monday amounted to $648,944,000, Engineering News-Record and Construction Daily said.

The total, composed of $473,115,000 in private construction and $175,829,000 in public construction, compared with $413,809,000 the previous week and with $374,831,000 for the same week a year ago.

This brought the volume for the 11 weeks of 1956 to $4,792,495,000, 27 per cent ahead of last year's pace.

Sparked by industrial and private housing contracts, this week's total was the highest weekly aggregate since December, 1953, and one of the biggest on record.

Building awards boomed to $275,700,000 while private mass housing rose to $167,900,000.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL

LONDON, March 15 (AP)—The stock market looked cheerful today. New advance in government bonds and Wall Street overnight strength set the tone.

Investment buying brought an all-time increase in government bonds with gains up to five eighths of point. Baltic issues were strong among the foreign group.

Industrials showed wide-spread gains. But some prices looked out of proportion to the amount of business. Ford Motor and Pando Shipping were null because of disappointing dividend announcements.

Gold shares were dull despite South Africa's record mining production. Oils and coppers were firm as the Wall Street market.

Orthodox Church-Goers Said To Total 50,000,000 in Russia

U.S. Visitors Also Hear of Hosts' Sunday School System—Freedom Discussed.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

MOSCOW, March 15—After 38 years of rule by a Communist and atheist government, there are 50,000,000 "believers" in the Russian Orthodox church in the Soviet Union today.

This estimate of the number of church-goers in the largest religious group in the Soviet Union was given to a deputation of the National Council of Churches, which is holding formal talks here with Russian churchmen.

The figure did not include members of smaller religious groups — Baptists, Lutherans, Moslems, Jews and members of the Armenian Orthodox church. It indicated that, despite discouragement of religion by the government, more than one-fourth of the nation's 220,000,000 population maintain religious ties.

Headed by the Rev. Dr. Eugene Blake, president of the national council, the nine-man deputation of United States Protestant leaders today took up with Russian churchmen the freedom of churches to carry out their missions in both countries.

No Membership Lists.

When the visitors sought figures about church membership here, they were told that the Russian Orthodox church had neither membership lists nor records. The 50,000,000 figure was an estimate of the number of believers made by high-ranking prelates of the Russian church.

It was also learned that a rudimentary Sunday school system is allowed to exist by the Russian Government. Russian churchmen said they are allowed to give religious instruction at "conversation groups," held in churches on Sunday afternoon.

Until this disclosure, it was believed here that religion could be passed to the public only through open sermons in churches and when the clergyman was invited into a private home by the parents of a child who received instruction.

Bishop's Statement.

In his statement on the freedom of American churches, the Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, listed the roles of churches in religious, educational, charitable and political activities.

The Russian churchmen are to deliver a presentation on their freedom to carry out their mission on Saturday.

Bishop Sherrill's statement that contributions to churches were deductible from income taxes in the United States upset his Soviet hosts. They asked many questions on this point, indicating that they believed the process to be a subsidy by the government.

also asked whether clergymen were permitted to vote in elections in the United States.

Lack of Comment.

After the discussion, Bishop Sherrill said he was surprised at the lack of critical comment by the Soviet group about the church situation in the United States.

A Russian orthodox priest in charge of a church in a suburb of Moscow told the deputation that every Sunday there are from 30 to 35 baptisms in his church. He said there are few religious marriage ceremonies but that most funerals are conducted by the church.

The visiting churchmen are to stay in this country until March 22. The principal purpose of their visit is to increase understanding between churches of the two countries. On their return home they are to report on the status and freedom of religion in the Soviet Union.

FERGUSON TRUCK DRIVER KILLED IN ARKANSAS WRECK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEARCY, Ark., March 15—Richard Lee Stein, 160 Anastasia road, Ferguson, was killed early today when a large transport truck he was driving struck a bridge abutment on Highway 64-67, four miles north of here. Stein, a driver for Automobile Transport Inc., apparently went to sleep at the wheel, Arkansas state police said. The truck, carrying four new machines, rolled along the concrete bridge railing and fell into two feet of water after striking the bridge abutment.

The driver, 30 years old, was thrown from the cab of the truck. He had been employed by the company since May 21, 1952.

TERMS ONE-THIRD CUT POSSIBLE IN INCOME TAX RATE

Expert Says It Could Be Done by Ending Exemptions for Special Groups.

NEW YORK, March 15 (UP)—Income tax rates could be cut one third for everybody if Congress would end the preferential exemptions it has set up for special groups, a tax expert said today.

Stanley S. Surrey, law professor and former tax aid to both the Treasury and Congress, urged congressional action in an article in Collier's magazine.

Congress has acted as if it had an "uneasy conscience" ever since the top income tax rate was raised to 91 per cent, Surrey said. It has created one loophole after another to provide relief for special groups, each time increasing the tax burden on everyone else, he said.

A recent study showed that millionaires technically subject to 87 per cent taxation are actually paying an average of 50 per cent because of special privilege exemptions, Surrey said.

If Congress believes the rate for those taxpayers is too high "then it should lower those rates for all—equally," he said. He suggested a top rate of 60 or 65 per cent.

He said elimination of all special privilege exemptions, including those at present granted the aged, would increase total revenue from 32 billion dollars to at least 46 billion annually. Since the 32 billions is enough to run the Government, he said, all rates could be cut by about one third.

Surrey said special benefits now granted the aged are not the fair way to relieve hardship.

As an example of unfair distinction, Surrey cited four separate rates which might be paid by a single individual with $100,000 annual income. If the income is from salary, he said, the taxpayer pays 65.9 per cent; from oil royalties, he pays 42.8 per cent; from sale of stock market investments held over six months, 25 per cent; from interest on state or municipal bonds, nothing.

Similarly, he said, a company executive who makes $100,000 through exercise of a stock option granted as extra compensation pays only 25 per cent tax on that profit, or 1 per cent less than a single person making $5,100 a year pays on a $100 bonus.

DICKMANN ASSAILS POST OFFICE DEFICIT

He Calls It 'National Disgrace,' Urges Increase in Rates.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Bernard F. Dickmann, postmaster at St. Louis today termed the Post Office Department deficit "A national disgrace." He spoke in support of proposed postal rate increases before the House Post Office Committee.

The proposed increases are one cent each on letter and air mail, and 30 per cent on second and third-class mail, which consists primarily of magazines, newspapers and advertising circulars. The department has said it has piled up a $4,600,000,000 deficit in the last 10 years and will have an operating deficit of almost $500,000,000 this coming year. It has estimated the rate increases would bring in about $407,000,000 this year. Dickmann said the postal system loses "more than $1,000,000 every day our doors are open for business." He asserted that getting the deficit down would put Congress in a more favorable mood to appropriate money for new postal facilities.

By the United Press. Two publishers of daily newspapers yesterday called for higher postal rates despite the fact their own postage bills would be increased considerably. Statements by Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Denver Post, and Preston Wolfe, publisher of the Columbus (O.) Dispatch and the Ohio State Journal, were read into the record of the House Post Office Committee.

Also supporting the proposed increases in testimony before the committee were John S. Coleman, president of the Burroughs Corp., Detroit, and Edgar V. Hill, chairman of the Traffic Association, Eastern Railroads, New York.

OFFICIALS TOUR RED CROSS

A group of city officials and civil defense representatives made a tour today of the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross headquarters, 3414 Lindell boulevard, as a part of the "Know Your Red Cross" month.

A typical "disaster luncheon" was served to the guests, consisting of meat loaf and easily prepared vegetables. The menu was based upon Red Cross experience in supplying food for the victims of the 1951 flood.

STATE COLLEGE SHOWS NEEDS TO LEGISLATORS

Students Turned Away at Maryville, Mo., in Room Shortage They Are Told.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARYVILLE, Mo., March 15.—Crowded classrooms and limited laboratory facilities at Northwest Missouri State College here were shown today to members of the House Appropriations Committee.

J. W. Jones, college president, told committee members that the $4,180,000 in appropriations sought from the $75,000,000 state building bond issue represented immediate needs for the institution, which now has 1270 students.

The college's requests were trimmed to $2,315,000 by Assistant State Budget Director William B. McGregor in preparing the Administration's Recommended budget.

Rise in Enrollment.
Committee members were informed that enrollment at Northwest Missouri State College has increased by 60 per cent in the last two years and that 150 to 200 students were turned away last year because of classroom shortages.

The number of students seeking to enroll is expected to go up to 1500 by next fall and double that number by 1970, the Board of Regents said in a resolution adopted last week.

In its requests, the college asked for $3,800,000 to construct new buildings, including two for classrooms. New dormitory facilities for 250 men students and 250 women, and a health and physical education building also are planned. An appropriation of $580,320 for repairs to existing facilities also was requested.

Warrensburg Visited.
The committee, headed by Representative Joseph W. Martino (Dem.), St. Louis, was given a detailed account of needs of Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg yesterday. The two-hour tour of the campus was directed by G. W. Diemer, president of the college.

Diemer told the committee that "every item" included in the institution's proposed $6,736,252 building program is needed. Total requests of the school for appropriations from the $75,000,000 state building bond issue for expansion and rehabilitation of penal, eleemosynary and higher education institutions were cut in the Administration's proposed budget to $2,750,000.

He had asked for appropriation of $454,300 for a new dormitory to house 150 men, $826,000 for one to house 200 women and $365,000 for a dormitory for married students of whom the college now has 371 enrolled. The first two items were scaled down to $350,000 and $400,000, respectively, in the proposed budget and the request for funds for facilities for married students was eliminated.

TRAVEL TO MOON THOUGHT POSSIBLE WITHIN 10 YEARS

LOS ANGELES, March 15 (AP)—Space travel to the moon on free fuel is possible within 10 years, in the opinion of Dr. Fritz Zwicky, if $100,000,000 is made available for research and for construction of a rocket ship.

The California Institute of Technology professor told a news conference yesterday that such a ship could travel indefinitely on power collected as it rushes along far above the earth.

Fragments of molecules could be scooped up by the ship while speeding through space, Dr. Zwicky said. These fragments could be held inert by extreme cold and then heated to release tremendous energy. The power would be five to 10 times more potent than that provided by current rocket engines, he said.

The news conference was held in connection with an aviation meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

ELECTION BOARD RECEIVING NEW REGISTRATIONS

The Board of Election Commissioners' office at 208 South Twelfth boulevard will be open until 9 p.m. today and tomorrow, and until 5 p.m. Saturday, to receive new registrations.

Ordinarily, the office closes at 5 p.m. weekdays and at noon on Saturdays. Registration books must be closed from 5 p.m. Monday until after the special school tax election April 12.

The books will be reopened on April 13 and 14. After that two-day period, they will be closed again until after the special election for charter freeholders on May 8.

New registrations must be accomplished in person. Voters who are already registered, but have moved their places of residence, may transfer their registration by mail, giving old and new addresses and affixing their signatures.

PRESIDENT BEATS HARRIMAN ON DEMOCRATIC BALLOTS

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch.

MANCHESTER, N.H., March 15.—New York's Gov. Averell Harriman is not quite so strong a Democratic candidate for President as President Eisenhower, according to returns from Tuesday's Democratic presidential primary here.

Nearly complete returns showed 49 write-in votes for Mr. Eisenhower on Democratic ballots. Gov. Harriman's write-in total was 37.

en and $365,000 for a dormitory for married students of whom the college now has 371 enrolled. The first two items were scaled down to $350,000 and $400,000, respectively, in the proposed budget and the request for funds for facilities for married students was eliminated.

SECONDARY SCHOOLS SAID TO BE SLIPPING

Washington U. Professor Says Emphasis Is on Wrong Things.

The nation's secondary schools have slipped badly in the last 20 years, partly because of growing emphasis on emotions, adjustment and such skills as "driver-training," Barry Commoner, professor of botany at Washington University, said today.

Commoner took part in a panel discussion on problems of education at a meeting of the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, in the auditorium of Stix, Baer & Fuller's downtown store.

Commoner said the last 20 years had seen an enormous increase in the scope of knowledge that schools must impart to students, but public education not only had not risen to the challenge but was declining in the quality of its instruction.

In order to bring the elementary and secondary schools abreast of the times, he said, the public would have to spend three times what is now spent on education, and the number of teachers should be doubled.

Commoner said it was impossible for the high school teacher, burdened with a work-load that calls for 30 hours a week in contact with students, to do the reading and research that is necessary to acquire new knowledge.

Many teachers cannot work at their teaching jobs at night, Commoner said, because they receive such small salaries as teachers that they must hold part-time jobs to augment their incomes.

Commoner said the number of persons who major in difficult subjects as physics, mathematics and French had shown a marked decrease. "The harder the subject, the fewer the students," he observed.

Other panel speakers included the Rev. James T. Cur-

HONK-HAPPY BEING FINED $10 TO $50 IN NEW YORK 'Q-DAY'

NEW YORK, March 15 (UP)—Horn tooting became an expensive luxury in New York City today.

The luxury price tag went on honking at 12:01 a.m. as part of a drive to bring quiet to the city's streets.

Police had orders to hand out summonses to anyone caught tooting a horn. A summons automatically requires a trip to court and a fine ranging from $10 to $50.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner proclaimed March 15 "Q-Day" in celebration of the occasion and posed yesterday with his forefinger to his lips while holding a sign with the legend: "Don't be a goose! Hold that honk."

The mayor had fair assurance the campaign would bring reasonably satisfactory results.

Police have been handing out warning tickets to honk-happy motorists for two weeks. The warnings were part of the preliminary fanfare designed to educate New Yorkers in the advantages of a quiet city.

THEFTS CLEARED UP WITH ARREST OF 6

One Youth Caught Inside Hardware Store—Part of Loot Recovered.

A recent series of four separate burglaries of the Mississippi Valley Hardware Co., 2329 South Broadway, was cleared up last night with the arrest of six teen-age youths, one of whom was caught inside the store.

The arrest that led to the solution of the crimes and recovery of about one-half of the estimated $1200 worth of stolen merchandise was made by Patrolman William Kaslick of the Lynch street station.

On three previous occasions, beginning Feb. 25, burglars had gained entrance to the store by ascending the stairway to the second floor of an adjoining house, stepping across an area-way to the roof of the store and breaking a window on its second floor.

Kaslick, giving special attention to the store after it was robbed for the third time last Tuesday night, saw two men in the alley as he was patrolling his beat. They fled, but while Kaslick was investigating, he was almost struck on the head by a bundle of fishing rods dropped from the store roof.

Following the same method used by the burglars, Kaslick climbed to the store roof, entered through the broken window and arrested a 16-year-old youth. He implicated the others who were rounded up quickly at their homes.

Among the latter were Euid Silvan, 17, of the 2400 block of South Third street; James Crittendon, 17, and Jerome Hyde, 18, both of the 2300 block of South Third. They admitted participating in the thefts.

Some of the loot hidden by the boys in a vacant house had been stolen from them, they said. Police recovered the remaining portion.

U.S. Buys More Champagne.
EPERNAY, France, March 15 (UP)—Americans purchased some 400,000 more bottles of champagne in 1955 than in 1954, the French champagne committee reports. Total sales of French champagne went up 13 per cent last year, but in the United States 2,558,016 bottles were sold, an increase of 13 per cent.

cooking with
is like cooking with cream!

MILNOT Cream Sauce

It's a fact! Milnot makes the richest, smoothest cream sauce you ever tasted. And in less time! Milnot is more concentrated than whole milk. It's creamier—more nutritious. Economical, too!

1 can MILNOT 2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter 1/2 teaspoon salt or margarine 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan and blend in flour. Gradually add Milnot and seasonings. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Yield: 1 1/4 cups sauce.

For variety add 2 tablespoons prepared mustard or 1/4 cup drained, prepared horseradish with seasonings to cream sauce recipe. Or add 1/2 cup sharp grated cheese (heat in sauce until melted) or 2 diced hard-cooked eggs to cream sauce.

For a delicious Lenten supper, serve Milnot Cream Sauce over tuna fish or salmon croquettes.

AGED LONGER

than any other beer

Back in the Good Old Days!
A typical Washington Avenue scene brings back the charm of early days in St. Louis. Horses were in their heyday and the bustle and full mustache were the height of popular fashion.

That's why G/B is so refreshing!

Griesedieck Bros.

Finest Quality Lager Beer

AGE—yes sir, that's what makes a good beer taste better. The finest beer is aged beer. That's why G/B is aged longer to bring out that quality lager flavor. Of course, we use the finest premium-priced hops, sun-ripened grains and crystal-pure water—but it is ageing . . . far longer ageing that makes the real taste difference. You'll notice it in G/B right away . . . a smooth, mellow taste that's unusually refreshing. Try G/B and see!

It's 'Corned Beef and Cabbage' Time

Traditional St. Patrick's Day Fare Takes Top Billing on Marketing Lists This Week.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

WHAT will take top billing on marketing lists for this weekend? Why, corned beef and cabbage, of course. Even those of us who can't claim a drop of Irish blood like to get into the spirit of the thing and salute the gay and warm-hearted sons and daughters of Erin on March 17.

And what nicer way to salute any occasion than with delicious corned beef? There was a time when it had to be par-boiled to get rid of excessive saltiness, then cooked for hours and hours. Just how good it would be then depended upon the way it had been cured in the corner butcher shop.

But today's homemaker can be sure of meat which has been cured evenly and which will simmer along to flavorful perfection. Please note that word "simmer"—and don't substitute "boil." Don't hurry the process; it's the slow, easy cooking that keeps the meat more tender and juicy. Allow about an hour per pound for two- to four-pound pieces. If you wish, you can add some garlic, bay leaf, a few cloves or peppercorns to the water.

About 15 minutes before the meat is done, in goes a head of cabbage which has been cut into wedges. When the meat is fork tender, remove from the broth immediately.

If corned beef just isn't your dish, take your choice of just about any pork or beef cuts that suit your fancy. If you have space in your freezer give thought to filling it with corned beef while it is being offered at such excellent prices. And which for buys this week on choice cuts of beef; you may find surprising values in those cuts.

It is good to see such a humble and modestly priced vegetable as cabbage get a share of the spotlight for a change. It will be here plenty for its day of days.

Don't forget that new potatoes also are mighty good with that corned beef. All potatoes, new and old, have worked up just a shade in price with the exception of those sweet potatoes which we have been consistently listing as outstanding bargains.

Onions are the real buy of the week. For some time now we have been stressing the heavy supplies and low prices on old onions; they are being sold far below cost in many instances.

Home grown onions and those from Texas with bulbs on the bottom are both available, along with shallots from Louisiana. And leeks, absent from our markets recently, have reappeared.

Check carrots on your list right next to onions; an excellent buy. (Sounds as though we would end up with an Irish stew, doesn't it?)

Greens are another value from both a price and nutrition angle. Spinach from nearby areas is showing up here and there, although most of it is still coming from Texas. And keep an eye on mushrooms; you may find some bargains.

Cauliflower is down a little, as are corn and broccoli and beans. You will find that price varies as widely as quality in iceberg lettuce.

On the debit side of the ledger we find brussels sprouts, celery, cucumbers, eggplant andokra all costing more money. Peppers are high; tomatoes are luxuries and probably will remain in that category for the next few weeks.

THE flavor of oranges from all sections is truly superb these days. In fact, it is so good that you don't mind paying those few extra pennies for it.

Grapefruit also is of excellent quality, with some of that wonderful Indian river fruit around town.

There are plenty of D'Anjou pears and apples of many varieties. Bananas are well worth consideration, and fresh pineapples appear to be quite nice. Heavier supplies of rhubarb are expected for the weekend, and you may find strawberries offered at fairly reasonable prices. Incidentally, many of them are now coming from Louisiana. These are a different variety and are a lighter red than the Florida berries or our own homegrown ones with the deep red color to which we are accustomed.

NEW IN ST. LOUIS STORES: Corn bread and pound cake (marble, raisin and golden) vacuum packed in cans. This is a real convenience food, since the products are ready to eat and may be stored indefinitely. Might furnish the answer for unexpected guests—and a wonderful idea for picnics, camps, boats and all of the summer outings which are just around the corner.

Also, a new ready-to-eat high protein cereal which was developed for its nutritive values then, happily, turned out to be delicious in flavor as well. It disproves the old cliché that nothing that is good for you is ever good.

Creole Shrimp Gumbo

French, Spanish and Indian influences mingled to create famous Creole cookery, which originated in the Bayou country of Louisiana. Creole Shrimp Gumbo is a fine example of this type of food. Hot, fluffy rice is placed in soup bowls, then topped with the gumbo.

THERE are many reasons why rice is such a favorite food in most households, but two characteristics particularly endear it to the homemaker. The first one is its versatility; it can be used in soups, salads, main dishes and desserts. The second is its convenience; it needs no peeling, trimming, scraping or cutting up. Add to that its low cost and the high-type vegetable protein which it contributes to the diet, and it is no wonder that it finds a place in so many menus.

Here it is served with Creole Shrimp Gumbo, pride of Louisiana cooks. This recipe uses the roux (fat and flour browned) so typical of Creole cookery.

Creole Shrimp Gumbo.
Three-fourths cup cooking fat.

Three-fourths cup flour.
One cup chopped onion.
One cup diced celery.
One cup chopped green pepper.

One No. 303 can tomatoes.
One large clove garlic, finely chopped.

One tablespoon salt.
One teaspoon thyme.
One-eighth teaspoon red pepper. (More if desired.)

Five cups water.
One and one-half cups uncooked white rice.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.

Three cups water.
One pound fresh or frozen shrimp, peeled and cleaned.

Melt the fat in a large skillet over a low heat. Put all the flour in one end of the skillet and gradually blend fat into flour. Cook slowly, about 20 minutes to a deep brown color. Stir constantly, using a long handled spoon as the mixture gets very hot.

Stir in the onions, celery and green pepper. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally, until the vegetables begin to be tender and somewhat transparent (about 15 minutes).

Stir in the tomatoes, garlic, the one tablespoon salt, thyme and red pepper. Pour into a soup kettle or large saucepan holding at least four quarts. Add the five cups of water; cover and simmer 30 minutes.

While the gumbo cooks put the rice, one and one-half teaspoons salt and three cups water in a two-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible; cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove saucepan from the heat but leave lid on until ready to serve, at least 10 minutes.

After gumbo has simmered for 30 minutes, add the shrimp. Cover and simmer until shrimp is pink and tender, about 15 to 20 minutes. To serve, place helpings of the hot cooked rice in soup bowls. Top with gumbo. Yield: six to eight servings, about two and one-half quarts.

Cooks of Italian descent seem to have a sixth sense when it comes to seasoning. For instance, here pimiento, American and cheese and tomato juice add zest to rice's bland flavor in Italian Baked Rice.

Three cups cooked rice.

One-half cup grated American cheese.
One-fourth cup chopped pimiento.

One and one-half cups tomato juice.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.

Dash pepper.
Two cups corn flakes.
Two tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Combine rice, cheese, pimiento, tomato juice and seasonings. Pour into greased one and one-half quart casserole. Crush corn flakes slightly, mix with melted butter. Sprinkle over rice mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes, until well heated. Serve at once. Yield: six servings.

For St. Patrick's day, what more appropriate than Emerald Rice, served with the traditional corned beef and cabbage?

Emerald Rice.
One and one-third cups (five-ounce package) packaged precooked rice.

One-half teaspoon salt.
One and one-half cups boiling water.

Two eggs, well beaten.
Three-fourths cup milk, scalded.

One-fourth cup butter or margarine.
Three-fourths cup grated American cheese.

Two teaspoons grated onion.
One-third cup finely chopped parsley.

One cup finely chopped spinach.
One teaspoon worcestershire sauce.
One and one-fourth teaspoons salt.

Add rice and one-half teaspoon salt to boiling water in saucepan. Mix just to moisten all rice. Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 13 minutes. Then add remaining ingredients and mix well. Pour into greased one-quart baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes. Yield: five or six servings.

Here is an idea to keep in mind for some day when you are bored with the meat and potato routine. Substitute Pan Browned Rice for the potatoes—it's especially good with lamb.

Pan Browned Rice: Wash and drain one cup raw rice. Melt one-third cup butter or margarine in skillet. Add rice, one and one-half teaspoons salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally, until lightly browned. Add two cups hot water. When water boils, cover and simmer 30 minutes, or until tender. Yield: six servings.

One-third cup chopped onion may be cooked with the rice for extra flavor.

Rice also may be used in many delectable desserts. For instance, Pineapple Rice Cream looks like a breath of spring when it is served.

Pineapple Rice Cream.
One-half cup rice.

Two and one-half cups milk.

One-third cup sugar.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

One-half pound marshmallows, cut in small pieces.

One-half cup crushed pineapple.

One-half cup candied cherries, cut in half.

One-half cup cream.

One-half teaspoon almond extract.

Cook rice, sugar, salt and milk until rice is soft. Take from heat and cool until chilled. Add marshmallows, fruit, flavoring and stiffly whipped cream. Pile into sherbet or parfait glasses and garnish with cherries or nuts, as desired. Serve very cold. Yield: six servings.

Gelatin Shortcakes: Follow recipe for Leprechaun Shortcakes but use strawberry, cherry or raspberry flavored gelatin instead of lime-flavored gelatin, one cup fruit juice and water for the canned pineapple juice and water, and one cup diced fresh or canned fruit or berries, sweetened, for the pineapple tidbits.

HONEY BROILED GRAPEFRUIT
Wash and cut each grapefruit into halves. Loosen pulp from peel with a sharp knife. Remove seeds and cut out tough fibrous center with scissors.

Pour two tablespoons honey on each half and place on cold broiler rack set about four inches below burner. Broil at 375 degrees for 15 minutes, or until slightly browned. Garnish each serving with a maraschino cherry. Serve at once.

Down in Texas they combine it with cornmeal, cheese and canned green chili peppers in a Texas Tuna Cornbake.

One eight-ounce can cream-style corn.
One cup cornmeal.
One teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons melted shortening.

One-third cup milk.
Combine all ingredients. Spread a thin layer of the mixture in a greased shallow baking dish. Over it scatter tuna slices of cheddar cheese and canned green chili peppers cut in pieces. Cover with rest of mix. Bake at 400 degrees about 30 minutes.

Here is a thrifty dish if ever there was one; it uses leftover vegetables and stretches one can of tuna to serve five or six.

Tuna Pot Pie.
Two cans (10½ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup, undiluted.
One and one-half cups unseasoned diced, cooked potatoes.
One cup cooked, sliced carrots.

One cup cooked peas.
One can (seven ounces) tuna, drained, broken into pieces.
Pastry using one cup flour, or one-half package pie crust mix.

Heat oven to 450 degrees

A Can of Tuna Has Many Possibilities

It May Be Used in Party Dishes or Simple Fare; Combines Well With Many Foods.

SOUTH CAROLINA has its Hopping John, New Orleans its gumbo file, New England its beans—but there is one food that rates high in popularity in all parts of the country. That is tuna, richly flavored aristocrat of the canned fish world. It is interesting to study the various ways in which it is served to suit regional food preferences, and all sorts of occasions from parties to picnics.

Here it appears in party dress:

East Orange Creamy Tuna.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.

Three tablespoons flour.
One and one-half cups milk.
Two teaspoons grated orange rind.

One-fourth cup orange juice.
One can (six and one-half or seven ounces) tuna.

One can (three ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained.
Salt and pepper.

Hot cooked noodles.
Melt butter, stir in flour and add milk gradually. Cook, stirring, until sauce has thickened. Add orange rind and juice, tuna and mushrooms.

Season. Heat gently. Serve from chafing dish or heated bowl and spoon over noodles. Yield: Four servings.

One envelope unflavored gelatin.
One cup tomato juice.
One-half cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.

One tablespoon vinegar.
One tablespoon grated onion.
Two teaspoons worcestershire sauce.

One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup heavy cream, whipped.
Two cans (six and one-half or seven ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked.

Two tablespoons capers, if desired.
Sprinkle gelatin over one-fourth cup tomato juice. Bring remaining tomato juice to boiling point. Add to gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved.

Blend in mayonnaise or salad dressing, vinegar, onion, worcestershire sauce and salt. Chill until partially firm.

Fold in whipped cream, tuna and capers. Pour into oiled one-quart ring mold or individual molds; chill until firm. Serve on bed of crisp salad greens.

East Orange Tuna

Nice to serve from a chafing dish, this East Orange Creamy Tuna is delicately flavored with orange juice. It is just one of many simple ways of serving four persons without spending much money.

Tuna Mousse.
One envelope unflavored gelatin.
One cup tomato juice.
One-half cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.

One tablespoon vinegar.
One tablespoon grated onion.
Two teaspoons worcestershire sauce.

One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup heavy cream, whipped.
Two cans (six and one-half or seven ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked.

Two tablespoons capers, if desired.
Sprinkle gelatin over one-fourth cup tomato juice. Bring remaining tomato juice to boiling point. Add to gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved.

Blend in mayonnaise or salad dressing, vinegar, onion, worcestershire sauce and salt. Chill until partially firm.

Fold in whipped cream, tuna and capers. Pour into oiled one-quart ring mold or individual molds; chill until firm. Serve on bed of crisp salad greens.

A Salute to St. Patrick

IT'S said on the Emerald Isle that to catch a leprechaun is to find hidden treasure. Here's a treasure of a dessert with which to salute St. Patrick on his day of days.

Leprechaun Shortcakes.
One package lime-flavored gelatin.

One cup hot water.
One cup canned pineapple juice and water.

Six individual sponge shortcakes.
One can (nine ounces) drained pineapple tidbits.

One-third cup cream, whipped and sweetened.

Dissolve gelatin in HOT water. Add fruit juice and water. Cool to room temperature.

Place shortcakes in serving dishes. Carefully pour one cup cooled gelatin over cakes so that gelatin soaks into cake.

Chill.

Meanwhile, add fruit to remaining gelatin and chill until slightly thickened. Then fill centers of cakes with fruit mixture, pouring some of the mixture on outside of cake to form a glaze. Chill until firm. Serve with whipped cream and garnish with additional fruit.

Yield: Six servings.

Gelatin Shortcakes: Follow recipe for Leprechaun Shortcakes but use strawberry, cherry or raspberry flavored gelatin instead of lime-flavored gelatin, one cup fruit juice and water for the canned pineapple juice and water, and one cup diced fresh or canned fruit or berries, sweetened, for the pineapple tidbits.

DATES ADD INTEREST TO FLOATING ISLAND

Remember Grandma's floating island dessert? It was pretty special, but Grandma had nothing on you once you prepare this "Date Floating Island." It's the little tricks like soaking the fresh dates in wine before adding them to the custard sauce that give it a modern extra special touch, able to compete with Grandma's. Serve it in your prettiest glass bowl—perhaps a cut glass one, handed down from Grandma—and matching dessert dishes, if you have them.

Date Floating Island.

Custard:
One cup fresh dates.
One-fourth cup Muscatel wine.
One and one-half cups rich milk.
Three egg yolks.
Two whole eggs.
One-third cup sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Meringue:

Three egg whites.
One-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar.
One-third cup sugar.
Custard: Pit and cut dates into small pieces. Soak an hour or so in Muscatel wine. Scald milk over hot water. Beat egg yolks, whole eggs, sugar and salt together; then stir into hot milk. Cook about 10 minutes, stirring frequently, until mixture coats back of spoon. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla and drained dates. Turn into shallow serving dish. Spoon meringue in small mounds on top of hot custard. Chill before serving.
Meringue: Beat egg whites with cream of tartar to soft peaks. Beat in sugar gradually to form a stiff meringue. Makes six servings.

HERE IS A WAY TO RID DISHES OF FISH ODOR

Fried flounder and broiled trout taste wonderful on the table, but unfortunately, the odor of our finny friends is apt to linger on, clinging to cooking utensils and be quite unpleasant.

A soap and water bath sometimes is not enough to remove the odor of fish from cooking utensils, china and silver. But here's a trick which will.

Try soaking pots and pans in a baking soda solution—about three tablespoons soda to one quart water, then wash as usual. This treatment is recommended for all types of pots and pans except aluminum. With these, sprinkle a little dry baking soda over the spots and rub with a damp cloth or sponge. For china, about three tablespoons baking soda in your dishpan when you're adding your favorite soap or detergent will rid your plates of unpleasant odors.

For silver, sprinkle some dry baking soda on a damp cloth and rub over the silver. Not only will fish odors disappear, but soda is non-abrasive so it can't scratch or mar the finish of your best china and silver. And if your hands smell fishy, just sprinkle some dry baking soda between your palms, wet and rub. Then rinse and dry. Odors quickly vanish, leaving your hands fresh and sweet smelling.

CHICKEN SPECIALTY

Chicken Broccoli Mercedes makes an attractive main dish for any meal but is especially nice for a buffet supper. The following recipe for three may easily be increased to the desired size.

Heat a 10 1/2-oz. can of chicken a la king. Arrange three servings of cooked broccoli in a shallow baking dish and cover with the chicken. Mix a fourth cup poultry bread dressing with a tablespoon melted butter and sprinkle over the top. Place in a moderate oven (375 degrees) about 10 minutes to brown the crumbs.

KINLOCH PLANNING
RENEWAL PROGRAM

Aldermen Meet Tonight to Act on Redevelopment, Slum Clearance.

The Kinloch board of aldermen will meet tonight to launch a program of urban redevelopment. Before the board will be an ordinance that would establish an urban redevelopment authority, to undertake the clearance of slums that comprise about one-fourth of the present houses.

If the ordinance is passed, it will be accompanied by an application submitting a renewal program to the Urban Renewal Agency of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. By showing public improvements aggregating $300,000, the city probably would receive in public grants from the agency the sum of $600,000.

With the $600,000 made available, the urban redevelopment authority would proceed with the purchase or condemnation of the slum structures. After these are razed, the land would be sold back to individuals at its "use" value. With the aid of Federal Housing Authority loan insurance, the owners would erect new homes on the land.

Details of the program were worked out in two days of conferences this week between representatives of the Urban Renewal Agency, FHA, Public Housing Administration and Kinloch City Attorney Edward T. Wright. The PHA has been asked for 100 units of low-rent public housing.

In the "workable program," the city of Kinloch would receive credit toward the $300,000 of public improvements for portions of the Maline Creek trunk sewer being built by the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District, for a local system of lateral sewers that will probably require a bond issue and for certain improvements in the $39,610,000 county bond issue that affect Kinloch, Wright said.

Kinloch is a predominantly Negro community in northern St. Louis county.

10 ARRESTED WHEN POLICE
RAID CARD-PLAYING CLUB

Ten men were arrested when a police squad raided the Coffee House Social Club, 604 Elm street, at 4 a.m. today.

The officers said they knocked on the front door and were admitted by a man who identified himself as Nick Vitale, living in the 5000 block of Hiller place. Vitale said he was the bartender.

Inside nine men were playing cards. They said they were playing "rummy" and denied they were gambling. Police found no money in sight. Those arrested were booked suspected of gambling.

HITTING BACK AT SECRECY

COLUMBUS, O., March 15 (UP)—The Columbus Citizen listed the names and telephone numbers of the Mayor and councilmen of suburban Berkeley yesterday and requested readers to call them to find out what happened at a meeting Tuesday night. The newspaper said its reporter was asked to leave after a routine session while city officials went into "executive session." The paper then quoted the Ohio revised code which specifies that municipal corporation meetings "shall at all times be open to the public."

ASSERTS 'A.D.A.' JUDGES PROTECT BALKY WITNESSES

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Representative Francis E. Walter (Dem., Pennsylvania), says "A.D.A. members" in judicial posts are largely responsible for failure to obtain convictions of witnesses who refuse to answer questions before congressional committees.

Walter, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee and a member of a special commission studying Government security programs, expressed his views recently to the House Appropriations Committee at hearings on the commission's budget.

He was asked if the commission would study the question of prosecuting witnesses who balk at congressional questioning, and why it seems almost impossible to obtain convictions in such cases.

"I think that is because so many members of the A.D.A. are on the bench," Walter replied. He explained that he meant Americans for Democratic Action and invited the committee to "look at the background" at some of the judges.

Lloyd Wright, chairman of the commission, asked the committee for $200,000 to finance its activities until June 30 of this year. He indicated the over-all cost of the commission's study would be $2,000,000.

Whaling Ship Negotiation.
MONTE CARLO, March 15 (AP) — Greek-born shipowner Aristotle Onassis said last night he is negotiating with a Japanese shipowner who is interested in buying his fleet of 15 whale hunting ships and a 13,000-ton whale factory ship.

ENGINEERING GAINS FOUND IN RUSSIA

Progress 'Surprisingly Good,' Bendix Aviation Man Reports.

Russian progress in engineering is "surprisingly good," Albert C. Hall, general manager of the research division of Bendix Aviation Corp., Detroit, said here today. He was one of three American engineers who made a 16-day tour of Soviet industry last December, returning a visit Soviet engineers made here.

Hall spoke yesterday at an engineering management conference at Hotel Statler. The two-day assembly is co-sponsored by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Although the general level of Russian technology is below ours, its heavy industry is developing very rapidly and in some respects is equal or even superior to American counterparts," he asserted. "Because Russia has been a backward nation it must work hard simply to match American achievements."

Hall said his tour convinced him America must show good judgment in using its limited supply of skilled technologists, so that it can retain its world leadership in industry. "The Russians are going to give us a real race," he said.

At an example of the scant concern given the buyer he pointed to the price of a Zim automobile, a copy of the 1955 Buick. He said the car sold for 40,000 rubles—$10,000 at the official rate of currency exchange.

The Russian emphasis on providing good technical education also impressed Hall, a former Massachusetts Institute of Technology research director. He was told Russia each year graduates twice as many engineers as the United States, and believes their training and laboratories are as good as those here.

Hall said his tour convinced him America must show good judgment in using its limited supply of skilled technologists, so that it can retain its world leadership in industry. "The Russians are going to give us a real race," he said.

4 Dead in Dynamite Blast.
STENSELLE, Sweden, March 15 (AP)—Ten tons of dynamite exploded prematurely yesterday, killing four workmen and injuring four others working on a new power plant in southern Lapland.

NAMING OF M. J. ANKENY AS MINE CHIEF FORECAST

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Marling J. Ankeny, safety director of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, was reported yesterday to be the choice as the next director of the Bureau of Mines.

The appointment will be made by President Eisenhower on the recommendation of Secretary of the Interior McKay, was told a reporter he had reached a decision but declined to make it public.

Other sources said Ankeny was chief of the coal mine division of the bureau in 1952 before leaving to go with the operators' association. He has the endorsement of both John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and Harry M. Moses, president of the operators' group, for the director's job. The post has been vacant since John J. Forbes left office Dec. 1 after reaching the mandatory retirement age of 70.

EX-NEWSMAN DENIES HE EVER WAS COMMUNIST

Fred Myers Testifies
Witness Who Identified Him as Former Red Erred.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Fred Myers, former newspaper man who now is executive director of the National Humane Society, swore today he never was a member of the Communist party.

Myers told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that New York Times reporter Clayton Knowles was "in error" in saying at a hearing last January that he had known him as a Communist.

At a subcommittee hearing on Jan. 4, Knowles was asked if he had known Fred Meyer as a member of the Communist party.

"Yes, I did," Knowles replied. Knowles testified that he had made the "bad mistake" of joining the Communist party in 1937 and had quit it sometime in the spring of 1939.

Despite the difference in the spelling of the name, Meyer and Myers, there appeared to be no confusion of identity. Knowles referred to Meyer as a former chairman of the New York Daily Mirror, a post Myers testified he held in 1935-1937.

The subcommittee said that Knowles had testified in executive session last October that, at the American Newspaper Guild convention in St. Louis in 1935, Meyer had taken him to a meeting and later disclosed to him it was "A Communist meeting."

Myers, in denying he ever was a Communist, said that he didn't know Knowles and wouldn't know him if he saw him and had no recollection of such a meeting.

Senator William E. Jenner (Rep., Ind.) asked Myers if he was saying that Knowles had "falsified" in the testimony he had given the subcommittee. "Mr. Knowles was in error," Myers replied.

Asked if he had attended any Communist meeting of caucus at the Guild convention in St. Louis, Myers replied, "not to my knowledge."

Myers said he has wondered how Knowles could have stated that he (Myers) was a communist or "How in the world he could remember" such a meeting as he described. He added he felt that as Knowles didn't know the correct spelling of his name it showed that Knowles' memory "as to my identity had some weak spots."

AGENTS GIVE $150 TO 'INFORMER' — BAD INVESTMENT
The Federal Narcotics Bureau office here reported ruefully today that it made a bad investment when it gave John M. Nance $150 on his promise to become a government informer.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert Tucker said that Nance, an ex-convict living in the 2100 block of Division street, was arrested Feb. 20 in possession of 100 capsules of heroin. He was given the money and released when he offered to obtain evidence by making "buys" from narcotics peddlers.

"But the agents waited in vain for Nance to report back," Tucker said. "They finally started looking for him and re-arrested him. When they asked what happened to the $150 he just shrugged."

Nance, a Negro, was indicted on charges of embezzlement, possession and sale of narcotics.

INVASION OF GRASSHOPPERS IN SOUTHWEST PREDICTED
WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Federal officials fear 1956 may bring the biggest grasshopper invasion in many years over as much as 20,000,000 acres in the Southwest.

Dr. M. R. Clarkson, deputy administrator for regulatory programs, gave this foreboding forecast in asking a House appropriations subcommittee for added funds to fight the pest. He was questioned behind closed doors March 8. His testimony was made public yesterday.

"The outlook is for a very widespread development of grasshoppers and very heavy concentration in the Panhandle of Texas and parts of adjoining Oklahoma and the corner of New Mexico, Colorado and part of Kansas," he said.

AMERICAN LEGION OBSERVES ITS ANNIVERSARY THIS WEEK
American Legion members will celebrate the Legion's thirty-seventh anniversary today through Saturday.

In St. Louis there are 85 Legion posts and 12,500 members. The organization has 17,200 posts throughout the nation, with 3,000,000 members.

The Legion held its first convention here in 1919 in a theater where the Union Electric Co. building now stands on Twelfth boulevard.

MAN KILLED IN COLLISION AT GODFREY, ILL., WIFE HURT

Samuel King, a custodian, was killed last night when his light truck collided with another machine at Pearl street and Humbert road in Godfrey, Ill., state police reported.

King, 52 years old, was thrown 90 feet by the impact of the crash. His wife, who was riding with him, was injured seriously when she was thrown from the truck. She was taken to Alton Memorial Hospital. Bobby Cunningham of Medora, Ill., driver of the other vehicle, was not injured. He was arrested and released on $1000 bond. King lived at Beverly Farm, Inc. at Godfrey, where he was employed.

MRS. WALTER H. J. BENZ DIES
Mrs. Walter H. J. Benz, wife of the president of the Gebken-Benz undertaking establishment, died yesterday of cancer at St. Anthony Hospital. She was 39 years old and lived at 4421 Nebraska avenue.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, are a sister, Mrs. Florence L. Evans; a brother, Jerome L. Stranz, and her father, Louis J. Stranz. Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. Saturday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, 3140 Meramec street. Burial will be in Resurrection Cemetery.

Children like WHEAT GERM
Don't coax children to eat Wheat Germ. Put it in foods they like best. It takes just a little Wheat Germ to add good amounts of B-vitamins, protein, iron—nutrients children must have every day for robust health, good resistance and happy dispositions. This natural heart-of-wheat food belongs in children's meals. Use recipes on label.

Liquid Miracle! No washday powder ever made can give you the concentrated washing power of new blue instant liquid

You will pour Wisk into your washer. It will get your family wash so clean and white that you will never use a powder detergent again!

LIQUID MIRACLE! Wisk
washes clothes whiter than any powder ever made!

LIQUID MIRACLE! Wisk
removes more stains than any powder ever made!

LIQUID MIRACLE! Wisk
removes more stains than any powder ever made!

New, blue WISK is different from anything you ever tried. In the first place, it is a liquid you pour into your washer. It goes to work instantly. No waiting for powders to dissolve.

But, more important, new WISK is concentrated. It does three times as much wash as the same amount of powder. And does it better, too. For it gives you a concentrated washing power unequalled by any powder. Besides, new WISK is safe for hands, safe for fabrics—safe as any liquid can be.

MAKES ANY WASHER TURN OUT A CLEANER AND WHITER FAMILY WASH

Never again need you find a gray spot left in a just-washed napkin, or a lipstick stain in a hand towel, or a grease spot in a suit of coveralls. For concentrated liquid WISK penetrates deep into cloth fibers in a way no powder can. Safely, but thoroughly, it pulls out stubborn stains, removes hidden dirt, gets everything clean.

And wait till you see what WISK does for shirt collars and cuffs! Without bluing or bleach, it gets white things up to three shades whiter with the first wash. In fact, WISK gets all your family wash so clean it even smells clean.

FIRST REALLY ALL-PURPOSE DETERGENT!

You will use WISK for just about every cleaning job in your home! It makes quick work of dishes: Soaks them clean. Concentrated WISK wipes grease off a stove or kitchen wall. It makes old, discolored linoleum look new. It gets yellowed kitchen cabinets white and shiny again. WISK does the toughest jobs quicker, easier, more safely than products designed for these tasks. Now you can throw away those harsh and dangerous chemicals!

NO MORE MESSY, SNEEZY, POWDERS!

And what a blessing WISK is! It does away with "washday hay fever"... with clumsy, soggy boxes... with messy powders that spill. And because WISK does so many jobs so well, you don't have to clutter your shelves with all those boxes and bottles you used to need.

WISK IS UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED!

We've promised a good deal for WISK and we mean it. In fact, we guarantee it! If you don't agree that WISK is the best detergent you've ever used—not just as good, but the BEST!—we at Lever Brothers will return the purchase price to you... plus postage!

HOUSE UNIT TELLS ANOTHER WHAT ITS DUTIES ARE

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee told the House Commerce Committee yesterday to keep its hands off tax matters. The Commerce Committee is considering amendments to the Railroad Retirement Act. One of the amendments would provide that employees' contributions to the Government-sponsored Railroad Retirement Act should be excluded from gross income for tax purposes. Tax legislation is traditionally handled by the Ways and Means Committee. That committee unanimously adopted a sharply worded resolution demanding that the Commerce Committee "take no action" on the proposed amendment. The resolution said that allowance of special tax benefits to railroad workers would open the door to equivalent treatment for other retirement programs "at a cost to the federal revenue of several billion dollars annually." It was learned that Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has voiced strong opposition to the bill.

$1,200,000,000 SALE OF FARM SURPLUSES

Deals With Friendly Foreign Countries Reported by Benson.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson reported yesterday that $1,200,000,000 in surplus farm products have been sold to friendly foreign countries under terms of the Agricultural Trade Development Act of 1954. This act authorizes the sale of these products for foreign currencies. It is designed to help meet the problem of dollar shortages abroad and to facilitate the export of farm surpluses.

Benson said that additional deals are expected to be made soon to take up the full $1,200,000,000 in sales authorized by the law.

Meanwhile, Undersecretary True D. Morse asked a House appropriations subcommittee for $3,247,123 in extra administrative funds for the Commodity Credit Corp. in fiscal 1956. Morse said the original CCC budget for the year, which began last July 1, anticipated that CCC's "investment" in price-supported farm goods would total $6,200,000,000 at the beginning of the year and drop to $5 1/2 billions by year's end.

As it turned out, however, Morse said CCC's investment at the beginning of the year amounted to $7,100,000,000 and the year-end figure is now estimated at more than 8 billions.

"This is 900 million, or approximately 15 per cent more at the beginning of this fiscal year than was previously estimated," Morse said, "and 2 1/2 billions or approximately 45 per cent more at the close of this fiscal year than the former estimates."

Morse spoke in closed-door testimony March 8. The House committee made it public yesterday.

BIRTHS TO SINGLE WOMEN DISTURB HOUSING AGENCY

CINCINNATI, O., March 14 (UP)—The Cincinnati Metropolitan Housing Authority announced today that single women living in public housing units are going to have to stop having babies or move out.

Director Harry L. Reece said he would not oust the fatherless children now in public housing units, but, he said, he will not permit any more.

Reece issued the orders because of numerous protests from church leaders and from others living in the units.

"We have tried to point out to these women that we are offering them better living conditions and that they should respond," Reece said.

"Some of the women are amazed when told they can't continue having babies."

He said he had not counted the number of illegitimate babies in the 4345 public housing units.

SENATORS FEEL NIXON IS SURE TO BE NOMINATED

President's Warm Indorsement and New Hampshire Write-In Cited.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—President Eisenhower's statement that "I would be happy to be on any ticket" with Vice President Nixon was interpreted by Senators of both parties today as foreshadowing Nixon's renomination.

"That ought to end any rumors the President might have another running mate," Senator Karl Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, told a reporter. He said the Republicans were now in a position to push ahead with their campaign "while the Democrats don't even know who their head man will be."

Nixon issued a statement saying:

"There could be no greater reward for a man in public life than to have the President speak so generously as he has of my work on several occasions during the past three years. All I can say is that I shall try to continue day by day to do the best job I can in behalf of the Eisenhower Administration."

Surprised at Write-In.

In another statement, Nixon said "no one could have been more surprised than I was" at the size of the write-in vote for him in New Hampshire. He expressed thanks to all who had written in his name.

Senator Andrew F. Schoepel of Kansas, new chairman of the Senate Republican campaign committee, said "I am glad to see the President make that statement because many of us on Capitol Hill feel the same way about it," adding, "The New Hampshire result demonstrates Nixon's popularity with the people."

Representative Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, predicted that Nixon would be renominated.

"For myself, I can only say that Mr. Nixon, based upon his outstanding record of accomplishment, is by far the most logical choice for the presidential nomination, and I herewith predict both his renomination and re-election," he said.

Senator Everett Saltontall (Rep.), Massachusetts, said: "What the President said, in my opinion, goes as far as he can go at this time, since he would not say he wanted Mr. Nixon as his running mate before getting the presidential nomination himself."

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California and Senator John W. Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, said Mr. Eisenhower's statement appeared to be an endorsement of Nixon for renomination.

Sparkman Comment.

Senator John J. Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, 1952 Democratic vice presidential candidate, said: "I have felt all along Nixon would be on the ticket. They have to keep him or admit his selection four years ago was a mistake in the first place. If they dropped him, it would be an admission that because of the President's health they are looking for a second president."

Sparkman said he does not discount Nixon's ruggedness and effectiveness as a campaigner.

"It is going to take a lot of work to defeat this ticket," Sparkman said, adding he thinks the Democrats can win with a strong campaign.

MRS. CLARA S. FLETCHER ESTATE VALUED AT $141,067

Mrs. Clara S. Fletcher, widow of Alfred P. Fletcher, who was manager of the St. Louis plant of Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., left an estate valued at $141,067, an inheritance tax report filed in probate court showed today. She died Dec. 18, 1954.

Principal assets were $71,645 in stocks, $51,072 in bonds, and $11,297 in cash.

She bequeathed $50,000 to relatives and friends, and $12,415 to each of the following: Masonic Home of Missouri, Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, the Bethesda Home, the Evangelistic Children's Home, the Salvation Army of St. Louis, and the School of the Ozarks at Hollister, Mo. She also left $2000 to the Third Church of Christ Scientist.

WOMAN ADMITS ROBBING HER EMPLOYER WEEKLY

Mrs. Amanda Seales of the 3000 block of Delmar boulevard admitted to police yesterday that she made weekly thefts of $25 to $75 from her employer, Aaron Shriber, 7433 Melrose avenue, University City, over a period of 10 months.

Mrs. Seales, a Negro, told police that she had used a duplicate key to open a steel strong box in her employer's bedroom where he kept the daily receipts from his business, a sandwich shop. Shriber estimated the total loss at $6000.

Mrs. Seales, mother of four children, was free on bond after a hearing before Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton. A preliminary hearing was set for March 22.

MOTORIST IS FINED $100 ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

William Ross, of the 800 block of North Kingshighway, was fined $100 yesterday when he was found guilty by Police Judge Morris Rosenthal of driving when intoxicated last Jan. 10.

Ross was arrested when his automobile struck the rear of another machine waiting for the traffic light to change at the boulevard and Hamilton avenue. The defendant denied the charge, saying brake failure caused the accident. He declined to take an intoximeter test. Judge Rosenthal also suspended Ross's driver's license for 90 days. Ross is a Negro.

OPERATORS SAID TO BACK SPECIAL TRUCK ROUTES

'Substantial Unanimity' on Measure Reported to Aldermen's Traffic Group.

Proponents of a bill to establish special routes for inter-city trucks moving in and out of St. Louis told the traffic committee of the Board of Aldermen today that there is "substantial unanimity" within the trucking industry on the measure.

Austin Knetzger, president of the Citizens' Traffic Advisory Council, which represents companies operating large trucks, said the bill introduced last November has been endorsed "by a substantial number" of trucking operators.

Opposition to the measure came largely from persons living beside the streets designated by the bill as truck routes. They said the noise and vibration would have a serious effect on their houses and living conditions.

Knetzger said the 17 proposed routes, designated by the committee after conferences with trucking operators, were required because of the "large body of heavy trucking which goes through St. Louis."

The Citizens' Traffic Advisory Council would remain as a permanent organization as an adjunct of the new program to regulate trucking on the city's streets, Knetzger said.

The routes specified in the bill include Graves, Manchester, Easton, Franklin and Natural Bridge avenues, Chippewa, Third, Seventh, Twelfth and Market streets, Page boulevard and Broadway.

The bill would give the city traffic commissioner authority to change the routes when necessary in his judgment, under a "hardship clause." It would make violation of the ordinance a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $50 to $500 or 10 days in jail, or both.

Charles Hughes, representing the Association of Team and Truck Owners of St. Louis, said he spoke for the local cartage industry which includes a total of 103 companies.

Hughes said he felt the bill before the committee was the best system yet proposed to provide necessary regulation for inter-city trucks moving in and out of St. Louis, and "would eliminate the need for spot legislation."

Spokesmen for the petroleum industry and the food industry also appeared in favor of the measure. They described it as superior to bills introduced in recent years to regulate trucking in the city.

A. D. Mason, St. Louis branch manager of Complete Auto Transit, Inc., contract carriers for the Chevrolet assembly plant in the city, told the committee that his firm would "be in conformance with the proposed route," but would seek relief under the hardship clause in the event the bill is passed.

Mason said the failure of any provision in the bill for a north and south route would be his firm's grounds for seeking relief.

Among the opponents, Miss Dorothy Pairo, 5744 Chippewa, said designation of that thoroughfare as a truck route would add to the present heavy truck traffic past her home which has already required extensive repairs to the walls and driveway.

E. M. Bierman, representing a Chippewa citizens' group, said this street, though a part of U.S. Highway 66, was not a satisfactory route for trucks because of steep grades which required frequent gear shifts with consequent noise.

John Casey, attorney for a homeowners' association in the southwest part of the city, expressed concern that the bill would repeal other ordinances which prohibit trucks from using certain specific streets.

He and others living on such streets expressed fears they might be giving up this protection in favor of the more general bill although the measure under consideration prohibits trucks from using any streets not designated therein.

In the northern part of the city, Roger Hammer, representing the Northwest Improvement Association, objected to the designation of Halls Ferry road from Broadway to the City Limits because of the presence in that area of four schools, six churches and an old persons' home. He said several steep grades would compound the noise made by heavy trucks on this section of the street.

George Goode, representing the Motor Carriers' Council of St. Louis, said the noise problem could be largely eliminated by enforcement of state statutes. He said most of the noise comes from cattle and dairy trucks since the trucking industry had begun policing its own members.

The committee took the bill under advisement.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Lloyd Barenblatt, 33 years old, a former instructor at Vassar College, was convicted today of contempt of Congress for refusing to say whether he was or had been a Communist.

The indictment grew out of Barenblatt's appearance before the House Committee on Un-American Activities May 28, 1954. The committee was investigating alleged infiltration of Communists into educational circles and institutions.

United States District Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled that Barenblatt's refusal to answer five questions about possible Communist connections was "deliberate and intentional."

The penalty ranges up to a year in jail and $1000 fine.

General inspection and repair of the 127 air raid warning sirens in St. Louis has begun, it was announced today by the Office of Civil Defense.

The work, which will continue for several weeks, will require that each siren be tested at short intervals, but not at full volume. Federal Brilliant Co. is conducting the inspection.

The St. Louis Attack Warning System is more than two years old. Following completion of the work in the city, a similar inspection will be made in University City.

WASHINGTON, March 15—President Eisenhower came out today for an exchange of non-secret scientific information with the Russians, providing it were completely a give and take business.

A reporter at the President's news conference noted that Georgi Malenkov, the Soviet official in charge of Russian electric power stations, would visit England soon to study power plants there. Mr. Eisenhower was asked for his attitude about a similar visit by a Soviet official to this country. He observed:

"But I would want quid pro quo," unless I saw theirs, they would not see mine," the President added.

The President explained he was talking, not about military secrets, but the kind of scientific knowledge available in professional journals and university libraries.

75 Home Owners Living Near Famous-Barr Hear Explanation.

Details of a plan to construct a parking lot on the site of the old Clayton High School, 7500 Maryland avenue, were explained last night by Morton D. May, president of May Department Stores Co., to about 75 home owners living near Famous-Barr's Clayton store. The store would be served by the lot.

The company is seeking a permit from the Clayton Board of Aldermen to construct a single-level lot with entrances on Lee and Jackson avenues. The lot would accommodate 39 automobiles and cost about $100,000. Widening of Lee, Jackson and Forsyth avenues by 10 feet each is included in the proposal.

When May asked for a show of hands by those who oppose and those who favored the proposal, about 30 indicated disapproval. About 20 signified they favored it, while the rest gave no opinion. The meeting was held in the store.

Landscaping Question. Opposition to the plan centered on the question of whether the department store would maintain the landscaping it proposed for the 100-foot-wide strip of property 100 feet wide along Maryland. The landscaping and a masonry wall would hide parked automobiles from the view of Maryland avenue residents, May explained. He displayed architects' drawings of the proposed landscaping. Mayor Karl J. Heidenberg, 76, of Maryland, said the store had allowed the vacant school building and surrounding grounds to become unsightly. "How can you be sure you'll maintain the shrubbery when you didn't keep it up to begin with?" he asked at the time you bought the property?" she asked.

May said he was unaware any promise by the firm to cut the grass. In response to another question about the store's failure to maintain shrubbery planted on Forsyth, in front of a small parking lot west of the store, May said, "We have neglected that up the way I would like to see it."

Another opponent asked the store would consider dedicating the landscaped area to the City of Clayton, to be maintained as a park by the city. May replied he would consider the possibility.

Query on Passageway.
Other opponents asked why the store didn't buy some other piece of property for a parking lot and whether the store intended to build a passageway under Maryland for children attending Maryland Elementary School, directly opposite proposed lot.

Some residents said they would rather have a new school, with its attendant noise, than a parking lot while another said she was opposed to the plan because "a parking lot is commercial, no matter how big."

Wyllis K. Bliss, chairman of the Clayton City Plan Commission, indicated he favored the plan, adding, "I know of no other agency willing to spend the money to beautify and maintain the property." The company paid about $625

It hopes eventually to construct a $1,759,000 sub-surface parking structure of three levels to accommodate between 500 and 900 cars.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 1—St. Louis and Kansas City would be included in the service area of the new state north central area, which air service needs are to be investigated by the Civil Aeronautics Board, under recommendation made yesterday by a CAB examiner.

After a prehearing conference, Examiner Curtis C. Peterson recommended that the area to be covered extend farther south than the Missouri cities. It would be bounded on the west by Denver and Williston, N.D., on the north by Chicago and on the north

In rejecting a proposal the area include parts of 1 tana as far west as Bill Lewiston, Great Falls and Bank-Shelby, Henderson such an expansion would involve so many additional posals and such a variety issues as to result in "an manageable and highly com proceeding." Place of the ing has not been announce

THE SPERRY AND HUTCHINSON COMPANY—SINCE 1898... NOW CELEBRATING ITS DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY

BETWEEN ROUNDS

W. J. McGowan

Charles's Manager
To Pilot St. Louisans.

CHICAGO, March 15.—HREE St. Louis boys are to join Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight champion of the world, under the management of Tom Tannas of Pittsburgh.

Charles (Sonny) Liston, heavyweight; Jesse Bowdrey, middleweight; and Joe Reynolds, light heavyweight, are to be handled by Tannas in the future in agreement with Frank Mitchell, St. Louis newspaper man who has been managing the boys.

Under agreement between Tannas and Mitchell, Tannas will have full control of the boxers and will receive one-third of the net earnings of the boxers. Mitchell is to get 22 per cent of the net purses and will pay the trainer of the boys. The fighters will get one-third of their purses.

Tannas is rather high on Liston. He thinks Sonny has an excellent opportunity to advance. He has seen Liston fight and beat Emil Biko and Marty Marshall.

"Liston keeps everlastingly after an opponent," said Tannas. "He's not fast but he can hurt with his punches and I believe with steady work he will show great improvement."

"I've seen Bowdrey, too, and think very highly of him. I haven't seen Reynolds."

As to Charles, Tannas says the former titleholder insists on continuing in the ring. He is to box Dorcasier at Windsor, Ont., on April 24.

"Believe me, it would be all right with me if Charles quit right now," said Tannas, "but Ez has remarked that as long as he's not getting hurt, he sees no reason why he shouldn't go on boxing. He has some property but is not wealthy and he thinks that now that he's not in such a high income bracket, he will have a better opportunity of holding on to some of what he earns."

What'll You Have?

TV Fights Continuing.

JIM NORRIS, president of the International Boxing Club, said he thought the signing of the new contract with sponsors for the Wednesday night fights was put at rest and that they would be discontinued.

Norris announced the agreement which provides for 52 successive programs beginning June 1. The contract calls for the I.B.C. to receive $18,500 per show or a total of $962,000, with the sponsors to pay for the TV time, in addition.

Each main event boxer will receive $4000 for appearing in the bouts.

Championship contests will be handled separately from the usual fights.

This will be the seventh year that the same sponsor has had the Wednesday night fights and the second year they were telecast over the American Broadcasting Co. network. The outlet in St. Louis is KTVI, Channel 36.

And in this regard, Lester Mallitz, executive of the advertising agency handling the account, said that it cost more to originate in St. Louis than anywhere else because a cable has to be laid from St. Louis to Chicago to handle the commercials out of Chicago because of lack of facilities in St. Louis.

That is one of the reasons that more bouts have not been held in St. Louis, he said.

Next Wednesday night Virgil Atkins is to box Hector Constance at The Arena in a telecast bout, one of the few in St. Louis this winter.

Truman Gibson, of the I.B.C., said that an effort will be made to match the winner with Vince Martinez, one of the outstanding welterweights.

Bill Daly, manager of Martinez, said he had received an offer for such a fight but would be glad to hear of one, if the price is right. Asked what he wanted for his fighter for such a match, Daly replied:

"Around $10,000, including television."

Why Penalize Boxer?

LOU RADZIENDA, member of the Illinois Athletic Commission and president of the National Boxing Association, was under some fire for permitting the Carmen Basilio-Johnny Saxton welterweight title bout to be held in Chicago after it had been barred in New York because of the suspension of Frank (Blinky) Palermo, manager of Saxton.

As Saxton had not been suspended, Radzienda permitted Saxton to sign his own contract, a development Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York Commission, called a subterfuge that did not prevent Palermo from getting his share of the boxer's purse.

Radzienda stoutly defends his action and says he can see no reason why a boxer should be penalized because of the past record of his manager.

SAXTON WINS BACK TITLE IN DISPUTED DECISION

20 OF 27 RING WRITERS FOR BASILIO; FANS BOO VERDICT

By W. J. McGowan
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Johnny Saxton today again wears the welterweight boxing crown through an upset, and highly unpopular, victory which he scored over Carmen Basilio, Canastota, N.Y., in 15 rounds at the Chicago Stadium last night.

The 12,145 fans who paid $104,288 to sit in on the performance booed lustily when the unanimous decision of the three officials was announced in favor of the challenger, who went into the fight with the odds 9-5 against him. They booed for 10 minutes, then after an intermission, took up the chant again when the rest of the program started.

Of 27 boxing writers polled at ringside, 20 thought Basilio had won and seven scored it for Saxton. This writer had Basilio in front 145 points to 141.

(Murray Rose of the Associated Press saw it 145-142 for Saxton. Jack Cuddy of the United Press scored it just the opposite for Basilio.)

Basilio, the verdict of the judges and the referee which counts. Judge Ed Hinz scored it 145-138, Judge James McManus 147-140 and Referee Frank Gilmer 144-142, all for Saxton who ran or clutched during most of the fight.

Basilio Badly Battered.

It must be admitted that at the finish it was Basilio who looked much the worse for wear. Both eyes were badly bruised with big purplish patches under each and the left eye was split. His nose bled freely through most of the latter part of the bout. Saxton showed few effects, although the body pounding he took was not visible on the outside. He bled slightly from the nose.

Basilio, however, was bitter over the decision. He said he thought he had the fight won handily but was "jobbed" out of it. He recalled that Gilmer also refereed the bout he lost to Chuck Davey in Chicago and was particularly put out by Gilmer's bid for him and Saxton when they were at close quarters, where Basilio is at his best.

"Didn't the officials see those left hooks to the body?" he asked in bewilderment. "Sure, Saxton is a good fighter. He must be able to run out of danger for 15 rounds. Sure, he threw a few left jabs. So what? Suppose I would have in-canned it the way he did. What kind of a fight would it have been? I thought a challenger was supposed to come in and take a title away from a champion."

Saxton in Bicycle Act.

Saxton, who had yielded the title to Tony DeMarco April 1, 1953, was certainly guilty of retreating through most of the 15 rounds with Basilio, but while going back he kept flicking out his left hand and that rolled up points for him.

He used his greater height and reach to good advantage against Basilio, who did not fight one of his better fights. It is possible that the virus infection which he suffered in February and which caused the bout to be postponed, and the two terrific battles he had with DeMarco last year, may have taken something out of him.

Even so he appeared to have won. He was the aggressor all the way and his left hooks to the body were punishing blows.

He staggered Saxton in the second round and it appeared for a moment that he might be able to make a short fight of the match.

Basilio chased everlastingly after Saxton, trying to pin Johnny somewhere to nail him but he was unsuccessful most of the time.

Going into the fourteenth round it appeared that Saxton had just as good a chance of winning as he had in the first two rounds, one of them big. Instead, he got an even break in the fourteenth and lost the fifteenth when it appeared to have lost the fifteenth when it seemed that Basilio was taking unnecessary chances as he chased after Saxton, trying for the big one.

However, the officials somehow saw the last round as "even."

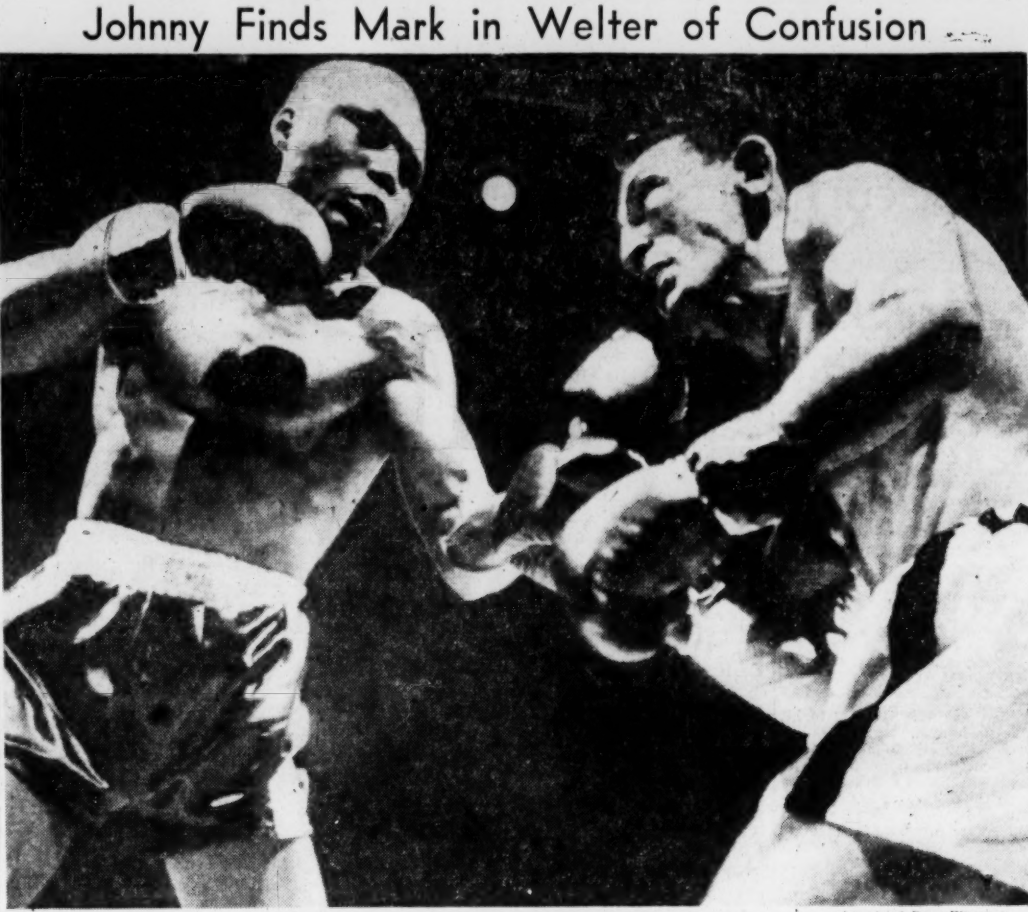

All of this, however, amounts to nothing in the face of the decision.

Johnny declared that he was never hurt by Basilio's punches. He said he thought he had the fight in hand all the way although he did admit that Basilio is a good hitter and has plenty of endurance.

One Two Hurts Saxton.

Haddix Shows Speed and Stuff, Birds Brighten Over Hitting

By J. Roy Stockton
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 15.—Harvey Haddix, the Cardinals' last 20-game winner—

—he reached that total in 1953—made his spring bow in a game with the Detroit Tigers yesterday afternoon at Lake-lake and looked the part. Harvey was a bit wild, which is not unusual for a pitcher with so much speed and stuff at this time of the year. But he was firing a fast ball past the American League hitters and fooling them with his curve.

Haddix yielded two hits in three innings and his wildness in the first, when he was missing the plate too frequently, gave the Tigers a run. But he found himself in that same frame, and struck out two batters after a wild pitch with the bases filled had sent a runner over the plate.

Haddix should be the ace of the Redbird staff this year and he and Vinegar Bend Mizell could form one of the best one-two pitching combinations in the league. If Haddix is as good as he seems to be, he and Mizell will be fairly good insurance against any prolonged losing streaks.

One Really Earned.

Had it not been for wildness by Cardinals pitchers, the Tigers, who lost to the Redbirds, 7 to 4, would have been beaten more easily. The only run Detroit tallied without aid of bases on balls and wild pitches was one in the fourth inning off Willard Schmidt, Steve Demeter hitting over the left field fence for a home run.

Two of the four runs were off the delivery of Luis Arroyo, who started as though he wanted to make the B squad. Luis walked the first two batters he faced in the seventh inning and a single and a wild pitch scored the two free riders. After that Luis buckled to his task, dropped his confusion and finished strong. So it was another good day for Cardinal pitching and a third victory to put the club above the 500 mark in the Grapefruit League.

Most encouraging, too, was the hitting. With Gene Host, a highly regarded rookie south-paw, pitching for Detroit, the Redbirds collected enough runs to win in a large third inning in which they batted around and made five hits and two walks good for five runs.

Tom Alston, who has been taking some batting tips from Stan Musial, hit the ball hard, with a single and double. He also had three hits in the B game Tuesday morning, and he Dick Schofield played short and added to the shortstop confusion by playing a brilliant game, making one of the fielding gems of the contest. One of Fred Hutchinson's big jobs will be the decision as to who will play that position when the bells ring.

The Cardinal B team scored its third straight victory, defeating the rookie Redlegs, 9 to 6, at Tampa. Joe Frazier and Mel Nelson hit two-run homers in the second inning and Russell Racz had a perfect day with three out of three, including a double.

Bill Virdon distinguished himself in the Tiger third. He made a grass-top catch of Kuenn's low liner and then held a runner on third with a rifle throw to the plate after taking Tuttle's fly. Schofield then made it a real fancy inning with a fine stop of Al Kalaf's bid for a pinch hit.

Solly Hemus tried a trick play in the eighth inning, but didn't get away with it. With Hicks on first and one out, Delsing grounded to Hemus. Hicks stopped half way, so Hemus threw to first for the out. Solly then held Hicks momentarily and Alston's return throw nailed the runner at second. Umpire Larry Napp saw the illegal strategy and Hicks was ruled safe at second.

Not Enough Tom-Toms?

BLAIR GULLION is described as being disappointed over Washington University's failure to get a National Invitation Tournament bid. In a campus newspaper story the veteran coach is reported as putting a finger on "St. Louis area news outlets."

"Our own local publicity media plays us down so we can't get national recognition," Gullion was quoted.

When challenged, Gullion acknowledged that the Bears this season got a better "play" than before, but he stood his ground in believing that Washington U. "plays second fiddle" too often in the headlines and on the air.

It is a point that can be bided over, pro and con, with the citing of instances that would support the contention either way.

Treatment by so-called news outlets—meaning mainly newspapers and radio and television—also is so varied for so many different reasons that it would be foolish to try to argue the point on general grounds. It should suffice to say that any responsible news medium attempts to gather and display information in a way that fills the community's needs and interest.

But an unusual fact remains. Washington University, which some 10 years ago de-emphasized the public-interest aspect of its athletic program, is now bidding for greater interest through its sports achievements. Accidentally or otherwise.

It was not made clear when the Bears were under N.I.T. consideration whether school authorities would approve. Gullion indicates that acceptance of the bid would have been approved.

"This never was officially cleared," Gullion quickly points out, but he has reason to believe that the school authorities regard a post-season tournament experience as good for the boys and good for the school.

This may be a bit of a "turn-about" for Washington U. Gullion conceded. But the important point, he said, is that post-season tournament play is not, and will not be, a planned part of the program.

"We're not going to put the pressure on the kids," he said. "Basically, year after year, we will not be after a tournament bid." But if it had come this season, when Washington had an exceptional team, it wouldn't have been rejected, the coach said.

More Than Meets Eye. In basketball Washington U. is handicapped by a number of factors when it seeks recognition. Some are in the process of being overcome, but not all.

For one thing, Washington isn't a member of a major conference. Publicity-wise, a conference affiliation helps sustain interest. Gullion answers this point by saying Washington would like to belong to a conference if it could find schools with similar aims and methods of operation.

Schedule-wise, a conference would help W.U., too. The Bear schedule was unusually good this past season but even it ran into January and February "soft spots"—games that had little general interest, and no national import.

Washington also did not have a radio broadcasting set-up for its games, a commercial tie-in which always helps to maintain a certain amount of public interest. University authorities rejected a proposed sponsorship by a brewing company.

Furthermore, the Washington University schedule shows a lack of balance between games at home and away. If an independent team doesn't move around the country to a reasonable extent, particularly to the East, the country is likely to remain in some ignorance about its virtues.

This past season games at University of Illinois, Valparaiso, Ind., Wayne of Detroit, University of Michigan, Southern Illinois, Missouri Mines and Beloit constituted the Bear travels.

And, despite the fact that here Washington beat Canisius, which was subsequently to become an N.C.A.A. tournament surprise, the Bears lost to Wayne, where a victory might have given them more N.I.T. consideration.

So, there are many factors in Washington University's bid for national attention and post-season tournament consideration. Not the least, perhaps, was that the N.I.T. obviously seeks some teams that have a possibility of drawing cash customers from nearby territory.

The 17 and 5 Bears this year were marked and properly noted here early as an N.I.T. contender and repeatedly in game coverage. At times it seemed they got more attention in that way than they did from paying customers or Hilltop students. When they drew much more than a couple thousand in attendance, it was a notable occasion.

Next year may continue an improvement in the situation, however. Gullion says "we're in good shape for another good ball club and we hope to generate more interest and get solid support." And there's one thing about the Papa Bear of basketball. He's not averse to tackling Big Ten opponents—he's working on five or six possibilities for next year—and he steadily has increased the stature of the Bear schedule.

Fired-Up Webster Faces Burly Beaumont in State Tourney

St. Louis's Biggest Advance in 29 Years Likely to Pack 'em In

By Harold Tuthill

For the first time in the history of Missouri basketball since its first sanctioned high school tournament 29 years ago, there are six St. Louis area teams in the quarterfinal round.

Every one of the six regional winners in the city and county came through with first round victories which means that three-fourths of tomorrow's semifinals will be made up of metropolitan St. Louis schools no matter what happens today and tonight at Washington University.

Of the 128 original Class I (Large School) teams which started in the eliminations, only the St. Louis schools, West Plains, the South Central Association champion, and St. Joseph Christian Brothers, the St. Joseph city titleholder, are "alive."

By a quirk of the schedule, West Plains and St. Joseph met in the first game this afternoon. The St. Joseph Golden Eagles went into the game with the meet's best over-all record, 28-1, and the rival Ziggers from South Central Missouri showed a 29-8 mark. Each won its last nine games.

Two Winning Streaks. The second game of the matinee bill matched big, burly Beaumont, 26-2, with Webster Groves' fired-up team which has won 14 straight and now is 21-5 overall. Beaumont has run its victory string to 17.

The attractive night twin bill, also sure to draw well, will bring together Maplewood, the Suburban League king, and St. Charles, the only rival to trip Howard Sanders' Leafs on their way to their third title. The return game is scheduled for 7:30.

At 9, Mercy, the Catholic Athletic Conference pace-setter, will oppose Cleveland, which, in the language of Coach Earl Jansen, is "coming." One of Jansen's Dutchmen has been leading all season, however. George Burkell, the 6-8 sharpshooter and leading scorer of the Public High League, poured in 34 points in the 70-54 rout of Sedalia Smith-Cotton, Central Missouri champion.

With so many St. Louis teams "coming," though, there wasn't much else their outside opponents could be except "going." And, some pretty classy outfits were sent home to get an early start on baseball and track.

Statesman-Like Job. Webster knocked off De Soto, the Mineral Area champion, 70-50, in a hotly-contested game that was tied four times in the first half and twice in the second, the teams being even at 42-42, with 5:01 to play.

Here Jerry Wolff, Harry Lansing and Marshall Whitecotton bombarded the basket, and, with fewer than three minutes remaining, the score was 51-42 in favor of Tyke Yates' Orange and Black crew. Webster preserved its nine-point edge in the little time left.

The left-handed Wolff scored 19 points, Lansing got 16 and Whitecotton 10 in the three-pronged Webster attack. Nate Dennis scored 15 and Mike Hunter, son of Coach O. N. Hunter, contributed another 10 to the Dragon production as De Soto wound up 17-6 for the year.

St. Charles, a kind of Cinderella team in the tournament, was extended before it defeated Mexico, 57-45. This is the first time in the 30 years the state meet has been held that St. Charles ever qualified for the finals and the Pirates' record of 20-9 undoubtedly is their best in the quarter of a century.

Gene Bartow's Buccaneers needed a hot fourth period of 21 points to turn back a Mexico aggregation which captured its first Northeast Missouri title since 1947. Almost every St. Charles player had a hand in the triumph as Bill Lloyd scored 17, Ken Clark and Frank Williams 14 apiece, Ed Shrum eight and Don Raiche three. Sub Wayne Hollrah had a free throw attempt which he missed.

Pacing Mexico, which dropped its fourth game in 30 starts, was Larry Huffman with 18

Express Derailed. Maplewood derailed what most spectators considered one of the better teams—Lee's Summit, 52-43. The Tigers from the western part of the state came here with a 27-3 record, one of their victories being at St. Joe C.B.'s expense, the only Golden Eagle loss thus far.

The Tigers showed a well-balanced offense, led by John Gilbert, who had 16 points, but Maplewood countered with an equally effective combination which had Jack Pirrie scoring 15 points, Russ Garner 14 and Jackie Satterwhite nine, to increase the Maplewood season record to 27-3.

In the second night game Mercy used its "Mr. Outside" (Bill O'Brien) and "Mr. Inside" (Fred Leidinger) to nip Kansas City Southwest, 45-42. The 6-6 Leidinger played an inspired game to lead Harvey Siker's Bulldogs, to their twentieth triumph in 26 outings. Big Fred scored 23 points and 5-11 O'Brien added another 13 in the tense struggle.

Southwest, dropped to 12-9 for the season, was paced by 6-5 Steve Wochos, who collected 18 points.

To close the first round of competition, Cleveland sort of surprised Sedalia when Bruce Mills and Frank Zavodil hit from outside and opened the Tiger defense for Burkell to score 15 times from scrimmage. He also sank four free throws.

Dons Don't Foul!

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15 (UPI)—San Francisco's defending N.C.A.A. basketball champions, the nation's No. 1 decisive team, lost only two players by personal fouls during its 25-game regular season schedule. Mike Farmer and Mike Presseau were the only Dons put out of a game for five fouls.

Statesman Makes a Point

HARRY HUNTER of Webster Groves, No. 39, makes good use of his 6-4 height to score on De Soto High in the state basketball tournament at Washington University. The De Soto defender, No. 31, is 6-6 NATE DENNIS. Webster's Statesmen won game, 59-50.

Hawks Hail Holzman's Coaching

By Harold Flachsbart

An inspirational leader in his playing days, Hawk Coach William (Red) Holzman, also has proved to be a spark as bench general of the St. Louis team despite honest effort to stay out of the spotlight. And the peppery little New York City native was the toast of his players today as they arrived in St. Louis for post-season N.B.A. playoff action.

Holzman's analysis of opposing teams sometimes has bordered on the phenomenal, and his handling of super-scorer Bob Pettit, the league's individual scoring champion in his sophomore season, has helped the slender, 210-pound former L.S.U. star in the waning games of a torrid campaign.

The 5-foot-10 1/2 Holzman, who was a set-shot artist at the City College of New York, is now a 12-year veteran of the pro sport as player and coach. Fans would howl this season when he would remove the 6-9 1/2 Pettit from a game the Hawks were losing with only some six or seven minutes remaining. But the little redhead wanted his bread and butter point-maker to rest a few minutes—maybe only two—for the stretch drive.

"He's done a tremendous job," said happy Owner Ben Kerner of Holzman. "We lost Frank Selvy to the armed forces, a scorer potentially as good as Pettit. And then Dick Ricketts didn't measure up and Red had to revamp the entire team. As we were losing 16 out of 19, we obtained Jack Coleman and Jack McMahon from Rochester for Ricketts, and it was a week or two before the new men could move into our pattern of play."

"Red had patience during those trying days and then suddenly we won nine straight, even with four rookies in the lineup, and only four 'big' men where other teams usually have a balance of five and five. We lost six straight then and seemed out of the picture, but Red got his forces reorganized and we finally made the playoffs by

Hawks' Ticket Sale Opens for Tomorrow's, Saturday's Games

THE Hawks' office announced that tickets had gone on sale at the Arcade building for their second-place playoff game with Minneapolis tomorrow night at Kiel Auditorium and the first of the best-of-three playoff series with the same team Saturday night on the same floor. Game-time of both is 8:30.

If the Hawks take second place by winning Friday's extra regular-season game, the playoffs opening here Saturday night will continue Monday in Minneapolis, with a third game, if necessary, in St. Louis Tuesday night.

If Minneapolis finishes second, an if-coming third game of the playoffs would be played Wednesday there.

winning five out of six games last week before those last two losses."

Actually Holzman's biggest problem was to replace Ricketts, the Hawks' No. 1 draft choice, who was not aggressive in his professional play, not the driving force he was expected to be, and who simply didn't take enough shots. At the same time, those early stages, Ricketts, who now has the poise of a veteran, was nervous and Jack Stephens of Notre Dame, another first-year man with much promise, was making the mistake of losing the ball too frequently.

The little coach obtained Coleman, a seasoned pro with seven years' experience, and McMahon, an outside shot threat, for Ricketts, and blended their play into a moving pivot pattern in which big Charley Share and Pettit would shift and enable Ferrari and other little cat backs to drive through the keyhole for baskets.

Share, a 6-10 post player with a good hook shot from the right or left side, naturally has been

'Highest Jumper' in State Meet Holds Pirrie to Just 15 Points, Fouls Only Once

By John J. Archibald

No one has been able to determine the value of fans' support in a basketball game, but for whatever it is worth, Webster Groves had better than 1200 of its followers in the stands when the Statesmen defeated DeSoto in the state tournament yesterday. Ray Moss, Webster's athletic director, reported the huge ticket sale.

And as Washington University publicist Marge Susman pointed out, the Webster crowd was especially accommodating because it cleared out almost completely after the Statesmen's game and let the next game's crowd take the seats.

Most observers agreed that the highest jumper in the tournament so far was 6-foot-5 John Gilbert of Lee's Summit. Gilbert had the job of guarding Maplewood's Jack Pirrie. He held Pirrie to 15 points and fouled him only once. Pirrie's season average was over 25.

Two sons of coaches were in the starting lineups. They were Don Jansen, son of Cleveland Coach Earl Jansen, and Mike Hunter, whose father is O. N. Hunter, DeSoto's coach.

Mike Hunter, who is just a freshman, made the shot of the day when in the last seconds of the third quarter he fired the ball from the far side of the mid-court line and it went through the net without even touching the backboard.

Coach Hunter will have nearly his whole starting team back next season, including 6-6 Nathan Dennis and 6-5 Bob Barker. Both are juniors. Dennis was competing in his third state basket meet with DeSoto.

Total attendance of 6902, including last night, gives St. Louis a chance to break the all-time record of 16,865 set in Cape Girardeau in 1954. Last year the Class A event at Washington University drew 13,799, despite the fact that two out-state teams met in the championship final.

Missouri University's Sparky Stalup was in the stand watching Mexico, a team coached by one of his players of last season, Gary Filbert. St. Charles defeated Mexico in a close one.

Filbert did well with the Bulldogs, however. He took over a team that had just a 14-13 record last season and with only three lettermen on the squad, finished the year with 26 and 4. Mexico's tallest players were 6-foot-2.

The 34 points that George Burkell scored for Cleveland was far short of the tournament record. Jim Krebs of Webster Groves dumped in 61 in the third-place game in 1953. Krebs also holds the four-game record of 125 points, an average of nearly 32.

John Warr, St. Joseph Christian Brothers' 6-foot-8 center, scored 45 points against Lee's Summit during the past season, but Lee's Summit won the game.

Cardinals Picked Fourth by Expert

NEW YORK, March 15 (UP)—Author Tom Meany, who correctly forecast both pennant races as well as the Brooklyn Dodgers' World Series victory last year, predicted today that the New York Yankees would regain the world championship next October. (The Cardinals were picked fourth in the National League.)

Writing in the March 30 edition of Collier's Magazine, Meany picked the Dodgers and Yankees to repeat as pennant winners with Manager Casey Stengel's team reversing last year's story in the World Series. Meany predicted the order of finish in the National League will be Brooklyn, Milwaukee, New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago and Pittsburgh. He said they'd wind up New York, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Kansas City and Baltimore in the American League.

DUKE SNIDER, Brooklyn slugger, predicted both WILLIE MAYS and DON MUELLER of the rival New York Giants would outwit him, but said, "I won't give them anything that comes to power."

BILL RUSSELL, 6-foot-10 San Francisco U. star, was named college basketball's Player of the Year by 337 sports writers and broadcasters in a poll conducted by the United Press.

WALLACE (BUD) SMITH, lightweight boxing champion, was charged with child neglect as his wife, seeking a divorce at Cincinnati, alleged that he had failed to contribute to the support of his three children since January.

Russia's Olympic track and field coach, visiting Melbourne, site of the international games in November, said Australia's JOHN LANDY "can win the 1500 meters and set a new world record in the 5000 meters."

LEE GRUBBS, Southern Illinois U. freshman from Overland, Mo., has been selected to represent the Salukis in the national A.A.U. wrestling meet March 26-29 at Tulsa, Okla. The 130-pounder has lost only two of 18 matches.

MARK BERGER, University City, won a varsity basketball letter and JOE EBELING, Clayton, a varsity swimming award at Kemper Military School. Another St. Louisian, PETE OLIAN, coached the Boonville school's swimmers.

CHARLTON MACVEAGH JR., Webster Groves, won a varsity soccer letter at Harvard, where MICHAEL KOHLER, Kirkwood, was given a freshman numeral in the same sport and DAVID CLAUS, Kirkwood, a frosh award in cross country. A $100 fine against DOUG FORD for "misconduct in an argument over slow playing in last week's Pensacola Open was lifted, Chairman FRED HAWKINS of the PGA saying it was "illegal" because it was based on Ford's statements during a committee meeting. Ford had accused MIKE FETCHICK of delaying play at Pensacola.

DAVE (SKIP) BROWNING JR., 24, a Navy lieutenant and Olympic diving champion in 1952, was killed in a plane crash.

Ageless SATCHEL PAIGE will manage and pitch for the Birmingham Black Barons. The hitting of St. Louisan NORM SIEBERN has impressed CASEY STENGEL. After the lefthanded-hitting Siebern delivered two of the Yankees' four hits in a 2-0 loss to the Red Sox, Stengel said, "He looks like a man who would be able to hit all kinds of pitching. I wouldn't mind having an everyday left-fielder with (MICKEY) MANTLE and (HANK) BAUER. Siebern's safeties were the only ones permitted by fellow St. Louisan Frankie Baumann in his three innings. Still another St. Louisan, Elston Howard, got one of the Yankee hits. Bob Wiesler, another St. Louis lefty now with the Senators, hurled three shutout innings against the Phillies.

PHOG ALLEN, 70-year-old Kansas basketball coach who wants one more season as Jayhawk hardwood mentor, praised Webster Groves' 6-7 JIM KREBS, Southern Methodist star, and said he believed the Mustangs might be too strong for Kansas State in their NCAA regional semifinal game Friday night at Lawrence.

Future Laker Gives Chaffee All-Army Win

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo., March 15 (UP)—A hook shot by Alfred Bianchi in the final five seconds of an overtime period gave Fourth Army, Champ Chaffee, Ark., a 100-98 victory last night over Third Army, Fort Jackson, S.C., in the All-Army basketball tournament.

The win advanced Fourth Army into the final of the losers' bracket where it will meet First Army, Fort Dix, N.J., tonight. Winner of that game will play Sixth Army, Fort Lewis, Wash., which is undefeated in three starts, Friday afternoon for the title.

At the end of regulation play, Camp Chaffee's game was deadlocked at 88-88. In the overtime period, the lead changed three times and was knotted at 98-98 when Bianchi, who has signed with the Minneapolis Lakers, hit the clincher.

Bianchi and Rudolph D'Emilio of Third Army shared scoring honors with 27 points each.

Close Scores in Junior High Basket Tourney
St. Vincent, Wellston and Ferguson all had close calls in the first round of the Thunderbird junior high basketball tournament last night at the Ferguson High gym. The fourth winner, Ritenour, was outscored in the final period, 10 to 5, but had piled up a big early lead to down Berkeley, 31-21. It was St. Vincent over Mt. Providence, 25-23; Wellston over Hazelwood, 29-26, and Ferguson over Fairview, 39-38. Fairview scored 11 points in Ferguson's seven the last quarter.

This was another Chevrolet weekend—all the way!—with victories in both major stock car race circuits. From coast to coast Chevrolet was the winner! First in the NASCAR Short Track 100-lapper at Hollywood, Florida. First in the USAC 100-mile event at Fresno, California. Here's real proof, hammered out in the toughest kind of competition against cars of every price and power, that the shortest stroke V8 in America is the hardest to beat!

Why should race results mean anything to you? Because they knock all the stuffing out of hollow claims and inflated horsepower figures. Because they prove that Chevrolet's blend of Ball-Race steering, outrigger rear springs, balanced weight distribution, Jumbo-Drum brakes and ultra-short-stroke V8 power is the right combination for performance and safety—safety that makes the '56 Chevy the best balanced car on the road and the surest-footed sprinter you ever drove.

The record books prove our point... but you'll want to prove it for yourself with a demonstration drive in the best road car you ever handled—the 1956 Chevrolet!

Old hand learns new tricks of Advanced Engineering

Another reason why GM and General Motors dealers are prospering together

WHAT HAPPENS when engineers develop advanced designs which make automatic transmissions smoother—or give them a quicker getaway than they have ever had before?

What changes gave power steering a better "feel" in 1956—and power brakes even more perfect control?

Even the smartest old-timer at servicing cars wants to know the answers to questions like these and scores of others.

How about automatic window lifts—or six-way adjustable seats—or air conditioning? There's something that opens up a whole new field to men who have been servicing cars for most of their lives.

So we recognized that we had a duty to our dealers—and their customers.

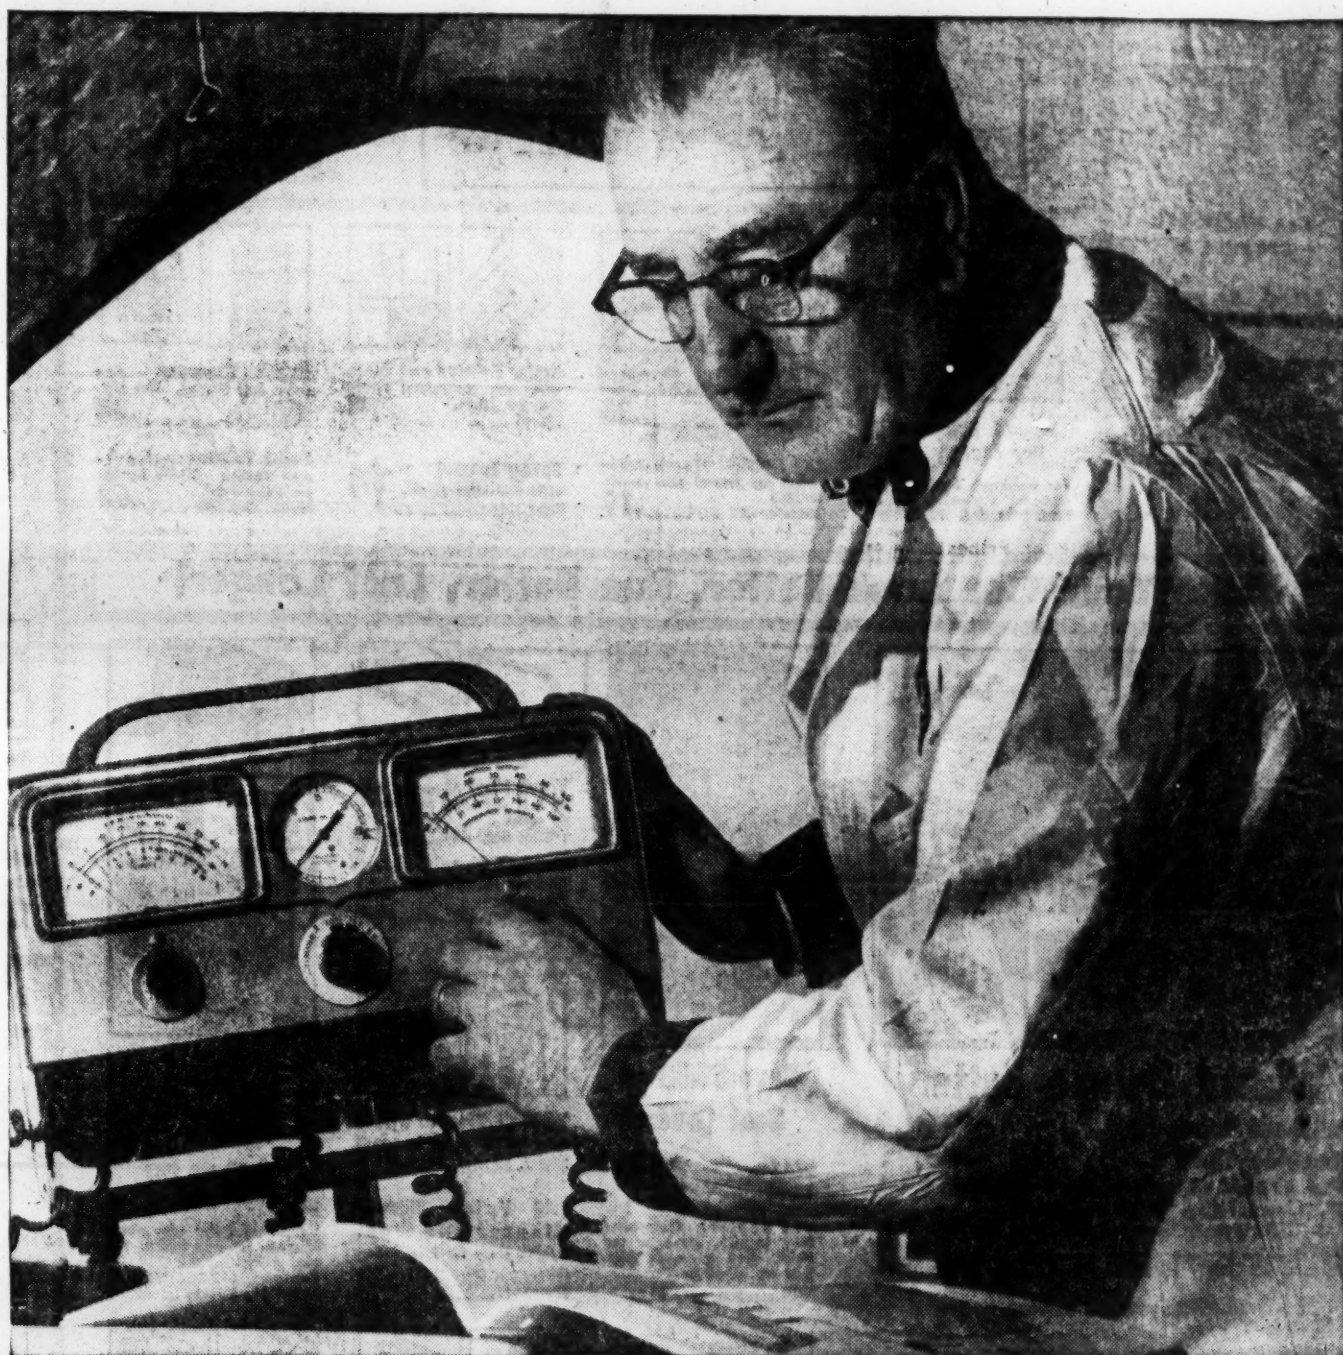

That duty was—to pass on to dealers' mechanics the best possible information about engineering advances.

This was a big challenge—and it would take a big program to answer it.

It would take, in fact, something that the automobile industry has never had before—complete facilities for individual mechanic training—thousands at a time.

So—in thirty cities throughout the country—new Training Centers were built, new from the ground up.

They were equipped with the service tools, the classrooms and specially trained instructors to make the service departments of our 16,957 dealers the finest in the industry.

And no one needed to tell those dealers twice what an opportunity this is.

The proof of this statement is—General Motors' 30 Training Centers are now handling more than 20,000 service mechanics and other dealer personnel every month.

Advanced thinking and planning, such as this, is surely one reason why General Motors—and General Motors dealers—lead the sales parade.

Porterfield Gives Yanks Reason to Fear Red Sox

SARASOTA, Fla., March 15 (UP)—The Yankees admit that they're a bit afraid of the Boston Red Sox, and a determined ex-Yankee named Bob Porterfield gave them another good reason for that fear today.

Porterfield, acquired by the Sox in a winter deal with Washington, made his debut in Boston flannels yesterday and held the Yankees to one single over a three-inning span to set the stage for a 2-0 Red Sox victory.

The 31-year-old righthander, who first reached the majors as a Yankee and then went off to Washington where he made a comeback from a sore arm, figures as an important man in the Boston hill plans. If he shows he can turn his 10-17 mark of last season with a last-place team into anything like a 17-10 mark, and if Mel Parnell's sore arm responds, Boston will have tremendous new pitching for a pennant bid.

Parnell reports his formerly sore arm "feels strong" and now Porterfield seems to be rounding into shape.

Add these two to a staff that already features Frank Sullivan and Willard Nixon, and you can see what Yankee General Manager George Weiss meant a few days ago when he said he is fearful that the Red Sox may be building a real threat to the Yankees' American League domination.

The world champion Brooklyn Dodgers were both sad and glad today, because they've lost one pitcher and "gained" another.

The announcement that Lefty JOHNNY PODRES would enter the Army next Monday surprised the champs, who thought the World Series hero might be

Frick Should Act in Draft Issue, Says Ted

SARASOTA, Fla., March 15 (UP)—Ted Williams said today it is up to Commissioner Ford Frick to protect major leaguers from "draft board evils" such as World Series hero Johnny PODRES' induction into the army.

"I'm just a hired hand so what I say'll be forgotten in a few days," the Boston Red Sox $100,000-a-year slugger said. "I can't do anything about protecting players but I know who should."

"It's up to Will Harridge (American League president) and Frick to handle the situation," Williams added. "It's something they can handle and they ought to go ahead and handle it."

Williams, speaking even as his Exhibit-A, Podres, was leaving for New York City to be inducted into the Army next Monday, refused to back down from his position that "gutless politicians, gutless draft boards and gutless sportswriters" were responsible for "players being drafted because they're stars."

"I'm standing pat on my statements 100 per cent," the 37-year-old Marine Air Corps veteran said. "Some people say I'll wish I'd backed down, but I don't think it takes any courage to stand up and tell the truth."

Asked why he happened to let loose the blast that has rocked the big league camps from Florida to Arizona, Ted replied: "No special reason; a guy just asked me what I thought of Podres going in the Army. So I told him. I'd been thinking about the kid for a while."

Podres, 23, was ordered yesterday by the New York City Director of Selective Service to report to New York City for induction at 7:30 a.m. next Monday. He said at Vero Beach, Fla., that he was surprised his induction had not been delayed 30 days but that he'd "be there bright and early Monday."

Podres, 4-F because of a bad back in 1953 and 1954, leaped to national fame when he beat the New York Yankees, 2-0, in the final game of the 1955 World Series to give the Dodgers their first world championship. His draft status was reviewed during the winter by his Ticonderoga, N. Y., board and his papers passed through Albany to Washington for final evaluation.

He originally was ordered to report to Ticonderoga today but asked that his papers be transferred to New York City. It was believed that action would delay his induction at least 30 days, but that proved incorrect.

An army spokesman said there was no connection between Williams' blast and Podres' surprisingly early induction date. He said that regulations require that an inductee be notified at least 10 days in advance of his induction date and that Podres' papers were processed on March 5.

In Washington, another Army spokesman pointed out that Podres can appeal his case if he feels he is being mistreated.

Representative F. Edward Herbert (Dem.), Louisiana, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and a former sports writer for two New Orleans papers, commented that Williams "ought to stick to base hitting instead of shooting off his mouth about things he doesn't know anything about." He stoutly defended draft boards and said that a good many star athletes were "coddled" during their military careers, but emphasized that Williams was not among those "coddled."

MENTAL HOSPITAL DAMAGED BY FIRE

Aerial view of Missouri State Hospital No. 1 at Fulton where fire caused damage estimated at $2,500,000 to administration building early today. Wings of the building were fireproofed about 20 years ago and 720 patients were removed from them without injury as flames swept through the wooden interior of the 105-year-old main building. Fire, believed to have started in a room on the unused top floor of the four-story building, was fought for about four hours by firemen from Jefferson City, Columbia and Mexico in addition to Fulton firemen aided by students from Westminster College.

STUCK IN SHORTCUT

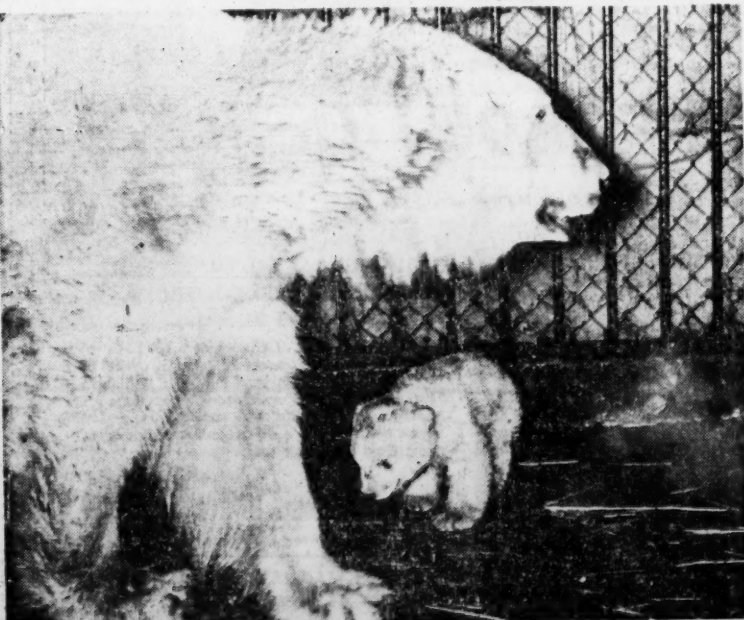

Police and firemen taking firm grip on 12-year-old Joseph Oliver as they pull him from quagmire in Pawtucket, R. I. The boy was trapped yesterday in the sinkhole when he tried to take a shortcut across what looked like solid ground. Rescuers, supporting themselves on ladders submerged in the mud, pulled him from the mire shoeless, a little shaken, but unharmed.

Gutted tower atop main entrance of the hospital standing above smoldering wreckage of the administration section after last night's fire. The central section was completely destroyed by the flames, and the wings ruined by water poured into the blaze. Below, elderly patients, who were among the persons moved from the fire-threatened wings last night, sit wearily in the new occupational therapy room on the hospital grounds. The patients walked out in an orderly manner, with very little excitement. They will be housed "as best we can," hospital authorities said today.

DELAYED DEBUT

Harvey, 3-month-old polar bear, timidly making his public debut at the Detroit Zoo under the watchful eye of Claudia, his mother. Claudia had kept her cub secluded from public gaze since his birth, backing up her right to do so with 400 pounds of polar brawn, but allowed Harvey to meet the world yesterday. Officials report that Harvey was the only polar bear born in this country this winter.

On Audubon Tour

Extremes of Wealth, Poverty on Hayti

By Leonard Hall

SOMEHOW we always like best the places we visit which are least touched by the speed of modern industry, the influx of tourists and the artificial atmosphere which is an inevitable accompaniment of the popular resort. So while the city of Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, may not be moving quite fast enough for the up-and-coming citizens we met there, it suited us perfectly. It is very old, very picturesque, and moves at a pace which nothing seems to hurry. We liked it so well that I made a half-serious suggestion—which was half-seriously accepted—that we come back for a couple of months next winter to lecture on ecology at the College of Agriculture.

The principle industry of western Puerto Rico is agriculture and the principal crop is sugar. This is grown, harvested and then refined into molasses for rum or sugar for the market. Long before you leave the town on the way to La Parquera, you begin to meet the teams of great oxen drawing high-wheeled carts of cane from the fields to the collecting station. The big beasts move patiently under their yokes, most of them decorated with bright-colored head bands; the drivers walk ahead or alongside with poles about eight feet in length. These are hooked into the huge horns to guide the oxen left and right. At the collecting station the cane is removed by a simple crane powered by a pair of donkeys which walk 'round and 'round to wind the cable onto a crude drum. Then a train of tractor wagons or a narrow gauge railway picks up the stalks and hauls them to the factory.

MUCH OF this countryside is hilly; in fact, there is a range of high mountains running down the center of the island which finally drops to a narrow coastal plain at Mayaguez. Everything grows here and everything blooms with unbelievable profusion. There are oranges, grapefruit, pineapples, mangoes, bananas, plantains, breadfruit, soursop and a dozen others. And scattered across the hills are flowering trees like the coral tree, African tulip and many others. We left this island and the wonderful people we met there with regret and the fixed determination to come back again. Then, after another day with the Waymouths in San Juan, we boarded the big Pan Am plane for Port au Prince.

AS THE VIRGIN ISLANDS are of a tremendously varied ethnic background and the dominant characteristic of Puerto Rico comes from its Spanish heritage, the Republic of Haiti is French in flavor. This country has suffered from centuries of bad farming and has a serious problem of over-population. There is less industry and more farming at the primitive level and a kind of widespread poverty which is shocking to a westerner. There are great extremes of wealth and culture opposed to ignorance and hunger. Despite this, the Haitians are proud and they are free, and because of this they are envied through all the large islands of the West Indies. The one solution to their problems seems to be a tremendous increase in industry, a matter which must be of primary concern to the government. To date, however, Haiti has not been as successful as Puerto Rico in attracting outside capital for anything except tourist hotels. Of these Port au Prince has its full quota.

WE CAME into the city on Saturday when thousands of country folk come in to the Iron Market and Open Market and doubtless others to buy and sell the poor articles which make up their commerce. Tinware, bright cloth, fruit, chickens, pigs, vegetables, heads, leather goods—everything comes to the market. Most of it is carried ahead from miles up in the hills—or rather, atop the heads of the women; or else in great pannier baskets slung across the backs of the tiniest burros you ever imagined, always with a brightly dressed woman atop the load. We lunched at the Lele, a beautiful resort hotel in Petionville, some 2500 feet directly above the city, the harbor and the coastal plain with its great fields of sugar cane. Afterward we drove still higher into the hills. Everywhere were the burros and tiny roadside markets with oranges, a few tin cups, double handful of coal, bright-colored fighting cocks and perhaps a few painted beads of coffee beans, baskets and voodoo dolls for the tourists.

AFTERWARD WE CAME BACK down to our hotel for a swim in the beautiful pool and to meet Drs. Ed and Margaret Gildea, with whom we'd had a long-standing engagement in Port au Prince. They'd hired a tiny car which Ed overflowed but handled in masterly fashion and driven up the day before to Cap-Haitien where King Henri Christophe built the vast Citadelle as an impregnable fortress atop a mountain. Here also is the beautiful Sans Souci palace, now falling into ruin. After dinner we debated whether to attend the voodoo ceremonies (staged especially for tourists and far from the genuine article) or the cock fights which have never held any appeal for me. So we ended, as everyone does in Port au Prince, on Saturday night, by driving up to the Cabane Choucoune at Petionville. This is the thatched night club, an open circular building with thatched roof where the tourists and elite of the city come to dance the merengue. As far as most tourists were concerned, dancing lessons were in order.

We enjoyed Haiti—especially being with friends from home. Yet we couldn't help being depressed by the grinding poverty, the rows of people sleeping like fallen ten-pins on the sidewalks in the markets, the countless beggars and constant begging. There is no doubt, too, that we missed what we've had in all the other islands on our Audubon lecture tour—friends who could interpret for us the customs and conditions of the country.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

READER writes: "According to tradition, at least so I have always heard, it was supposed to be quite proper during leap year for a woman to propose to a man. Is this true?"

How many women have been encouraged to take this opportunity to prod a shy suitor into marriage, I can't answer. I am sure there have been a few. As a matter of fact, when Priscilla said to John Alden, "Why don't you speak for yourself John?" that was a proposal in a way. From the standpoint of good taste, however, for a woman to actually propose to a man is not approved.

DEAR MRS. POST: Will you please tell me just when one is suppose to shake hands. I'm never quite sure about this.

Answer: A host and hostess shake hands with every visitor upon entering and leaving. People in receiving lines usually shake hands all the way down the line. A woman is supposed to offer her hand to a man, but if he offers his hand, she must accept. It is never permissible to refuse a proffered hand. A man shakes hands when introduced to another man. And you, of course, shake hands when greeting friends.

Stories From the Life of Jesus

The Daughter of Jairus

Jesus Said 'Believe,' and Child Lived Again

By April Oursler Armstrong

CHAPTER TWELVE.

THE man named Jairus paced the marble floor. "Are the doctors still in there?" he asked in a voice so low it could hardly be heard over the sound of his sandals. "Will they never tell me how Joanna is?"

His friend put an arm on Jairus's shoulder. "Jairus, since your daughter became ill you have not rested. The doctors are trying their best. You must have patience, and take care of yourself. What else can you do?"

"What can I do? I can get her the best doctors—and that I have done. And because I love my God, I have prayed night and day that He would make her well. And if doctors and prayers do not work, I know what I shall do."

"Will more can you do, Jairus?"

"I shall ask Jesus to save her."

His friend's eyes opened wide. "Do you, the head of the synagogue, so wise and important a person as you, believe in this Jesus of Nazareth?"

"I do," said Jairus. "He has helped many. Perhaps He will help Joanna. And why should I surprise you that I believe in Him? He is wiser, and far more important than I."

"Men will call you foolish to go to Jesus—a carpenter turned preacher, who wanders the roads like a vagabond!" said his friend. "Don't go to Him!"

Footsteps echoed on the stairs. The three doctors came into the room, carrying their scarlet and green bags of medicines. The oldest doctor spoke.

"Jairus, there is nothing more we can do. Joanna is dying."

Without a word, Jairus ran out of the house.

"Where has he gone?" asked the doctor.

"He has gone to see the One called Jesus," said his friend.

"Have you seen Jesus?" asked Jairus of the washerwoman by the town well.

"He is down by the shore," the woman said.

JAIUS ran through the streets, his brown and orange robes streaming in the breeze. And as he ran he thought of Joanna, the little girl he loved so dearly, the 12-year-old with the black eyes who liked to play house under the tree in the back yard.

Why would God want her to die? What reason could there be for a pink-cheeked little girl to die?

On the beach, a thick crowd surrounded Jesus, but Jairus squirmed his way through, and fell on his knees by Jesus's feet.

"My daughter is dying," he said. "Come—just lay Your hand on her—and she will live. Please, Lord—come."

JESUS TURNED TO JAIUS AND PUT HIS ARM AROUND HIM. AND JESUS WHISPERED: "FEAR NOT. ONLY—BELIEVE."

Jesus helped Jairus to stand, and rose Himself to go with him to his house. But the crowds followed Him jostling and elbowing to get closer to Jesus. And there was in the crowd a woman who had been sick for 12 years, with a wound that never stopped bleeding. And she said to herself, "If I can only get close enough to touch Jesus's robe, that would make me well."

Suddenly Jesus stopped. "Who touched Me?"

The apostles looked at Him and laughed. "Is this a joke, Master?" asked Philip. "Look at the crowds. How can You ask who touched You?"

But from out of the crowd came the woman, and kneeling she said:

"Lord, I touched Your robe. I knew if I did, You could heal me. And see, I am well again!"

Jesus put a hand in blessing on her head. "Daughter," He said, "your faith has made you well. Go in peace."

Jairus did not dare say anything, but he was thinking: Why, oh why, must He heal this woman now? If we don't hurry it will be too late to save Joanna!

And then Jairus saw his friend and the doctors shouldering their way through the crowd.

"Jairus," said his friend. "Your daughter is dead."

Jesus heard, and He put His arm around Jairus. And Jesus whispered:

"Fear not. Only—believe!"

And with His arm firmly around Jairus, Jesus walked with him to Jairus's house. A crowd came along with them—but Jesus went already another large throng at the house.

Joanna's aunts and uncles, and grandparents, and all who had known the laughing little girl were there, weeping because she was dead.

Jesus waved back the crowd who had followed Him. Only Peter, John and James—and Jairus—could go in with Him.

On the doorstep, Jesus spoke to those who were weeping for Joanna.

"Why are you weeping?" He asked gently. "The little girl is not dead. She only sleeps."

And the family and friends stared at the tall Man in the white robe, and yelled at Him, and tried to put Him out. They knew that Joanna was dead, and His words sounded cruel, and strange, because they did not believe in Him.

But Jesus went in with Peter and James, John and Jairus. He went to Joanna's mother, and wiped her tears. And He led them all to the darkened room where the child lay.

Jesus bent over the bed. He lifted one cold hand, and murmured:

"Little girl, arise!"

AND AS HE spoke, Joanna opened her eyes, and stretched, and got out of bed.

"She was dead and she lives! O Lord, thank You!" said Jairus, as he held her close.

Tears of joy streamed down the mother's cheeks, as she fell to her knees before Jesus.

Jesus, with the most tender smile, leaned down to Joanna.

"Give her something to eat," he said gently. Any little girl called back from death to life would probably be hungry.

Then He straightened up, and His bearded face grew solemn.

One more thing, He said: Tell no one what has happened.

Then taking Peter and James and John, He went silently down the stairs, past the weeping aunts and uncles and friends, and out the door. And the crowd who had waited for Him, followed Him back to the beach.

Joanna's mother hurried to fix her some fresh bread and butter, and a cup cold milk. Downstairs the relatives and friends who had been weeping were noisy with questions.

"What happened? Is she really alive now? Did Jesus really bring her back from death? Tell us!" they gabbled.

"You look so happy, something fine must have happened."

But Joanna's mother only smiled and said nothing, as Jesus had commanded. These were the people who had laughed at Him, and who had not believed when He came.

Let them ask and get no answer. For Jesus had no use for those who cannot believe.

And upstairs, holding his daughter close, Jairus whispered:

"My dearest, no matter what happens in your life, always believe. I wondered why God would let you die and now I know. It was to show us what Jesus can do."

He held her chin in his hands. "Sometimes," he said, "you will wonder why God lets terrible things happen—why He does not hurry to answer your prayers. And sometimes you will not understand Him at all. But always you must trust Him, even when His answer to your prayer is No."

Jairus hugged her close.

"Remember, what Jesus said to me. He said, 'Fear not. Only believe.'"

And Joanna repeated the great secret of Jesus:

"Fear not. Only believe!"

And though Jairus and his wife and Joanna obeyed Jesus and never told anyone, the story spread faster than sunrise. The doctors, the relatives, the friends who had seen her die, saw Joanna alive again. And they who saw her told everyone they knew about the miracle, and eventually it was written down for us by Matthew, and Mark and Luke so we could share the secret Joanna had learned from the Lord.

TOMORROW: Jesus Comes Home.

An Old-Fashioned Doughnut

By Hoyt Alden

A MAN I know flipped his lid not long ago. It had been coming on for some time. He went across the street to get a morning snack and ordered a doughnut. The waitress said, "What kind?"

That did it. That, he said to the waitress with the air of a man at the end of his rope, is what's wrong with our civilization today. The waitress said, "Yeah, I know, but what kinda doughnut you want?"

The man told her that was exactly the point he was making. There is only one kind of doughnut and to say "what kind of doughnut" implies there is a choice.

"You can have your choice," said the waitress, who was getting a little worried. "You can have chocolate, strawberry or raspberry. You can have the glazed or the fluffy. Or you can have the frappe doughnut with the jelly in the middle, or the angel-cake doughnut with the Lady Baltimore icing . . ."

At this point the waitress happened to look at our friend, screamed and threw up her hands, upsetting a whole plate of sponge cake doughnuts rolled in sugar, which came tumbling down about her ears.

As they said my friend away he was trying to explain that all he wanted in this world was just a doughnut, a plain doughnut, a real, genuine, old-fashioned doughnut.

THE ONLY way he's going to get one, I'm afraid, is to make it himself. If there are any others of you among my readers who share my friend's feelings about the doughnut, here's how to stall off a breakdown. This is the original New England recipe:

Cream two tablespoons of shortening and then add half a cup of sugar and cream it all together. Beat two eggs, add half a cup of sugar to them and beat them some more. Now combine the two mixtures.

Sift three and three-fourths cups of flour with two tablespoons of baking powder, half a teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of soda, a fourth of a teaspoon of nutmeg and a fourth of a teaspoon of cinnamon. Add this to the mixture, alternating with three-fourths of a cup of sour milk. Add either milk or flour if needed to make a light, damp dough.

Now divide the dough and roll it out to the desired thickness. Cut it with a doughnut cutter. Heat the deep fat until it is 380 degrees and smoking. Drop the doughnuts in gently, and only a few at a time. If you put too many in it reduces the temperature of the grease. The secret of good deep fat frying is sudden frying which seals the surface, prevents the grease from penetrating into the dough. If it does you've got a greasy doughnut and if you have any pride and discrimination as a doughnut eater, you'll have to throw them away.

Turn them until they're brown, put them on absorbent paper and let them drain. I'm not such a purist that I will object to a light sprinkling of granulated sugar, but for me, I like them plain.

NOT, of course, that that's doughnut, any more than that there's only one way to make home made bread. There are a number of excellent variations, one of which is the potato doughnut, which was originated in the west. Like this:

Cream a generous half cup of sugar with a tablespoon and a half of butter. Add a cup and a half of sugar to three well-beaten eggs. Add a cup of milk and beat some more. To a cup of cold mashed potatoes add a teaspoon of baking powder, a teaspoon of nutmeg, a teaspoon of cinnamon, and a teaspoon of salt. Mix it well.

Combine the two mixtures and stir it for all you're worth. Then roll it out on a floured board, cut and fry as directed in the preceding recipe.

NEXT to a good doughnut, one of the hardest things to come by in this day and age is good gingerbread. Before going any further, we would like to point out that one of the essentials of good gingerbread is molasses, and molasses doesn't mean corn syrup. Molasses is the thick, dark liquid which drains from sugar in the process of manufacture, and when it comes to gingerbread, there is no substitute.

To proceed: Sift two cups of flour. Then combine it with a teaspoon of salt, a teaspoon of cinnamon, a teaspoon of ginger, a teaspoon of soda, half a teaspoon of powdered cloves, two teaspoons of baking powder, and then sift it all together again. Then once more for good measure.

Now mix a cup of sugar, four tablespoons of dark molasses, and four tablespoons of melted butter. Mix them well in a mixing bowl. Then add a cup of sour cream to the dry ingredients, and mix that well also.

Now combine the two mixtures, adding the flour mixture to the molasses mixture, a little at a time and beating it well as you go. Then stir in a well beaten egg, and mix everything well again.

Last, add half a cup of chopped nuts and a fourth of a cup of chopped, crystallized ginger which has been dusted with a little flour. Don't bow the batter any more after you blend these in. Bake it for about an hour in a moderate oven. It should be done when the gingerbread starts pulling away from the sides of the pan.

If you really want to fix this gingerbread up fancy, cover the whole top with marshmallows (after the cake is baked) so close they almost touch. Put it in a 400 degree oven just long enough for them to melt. Put a package of chocolate bits in the double boiler and cook until the chocolate is melted. Pour this on top of the melted marshmallows. That's gingerbread.

Tree Roots In Sewer Pipes.

WE GOT to reading a book about trees the other evening, and in it learned that in the spring and early summer the roots of trees do a lot of growing. They grow in all directions and sometimes they take to growing in the house sewer line. Once they've got into this line it usually doesn't take very long before they've plugged the line.

The surest remedy for a root clogged sewer line is to rip it up and install one of the several types of root-proof sewer pipes. This, naturally, is also the most expensive. Of course, once it's down your troubles are over and you'll never have to put out money again to have the line cleared but the initial cost may be little too high for you to handle at this particular time.

There are firms in most communities that have special equipment which can be inserted into a sewer line without ripping it up and which will cut out the roots. This gets the line back into operation but eventually the roots will grow back and the process will have to be repeated.

There is a chemical called copper sulphate (blue vitriol) and when this comes in contact with the tender tree roots in the sewer line it kills and destroys them. Sometimes pouring this chemical down one of the fixture drains so it gets into the sewer line will help but the most effective way to use it is to provide some way for the chemical to remain in the line for a day or so. A good way to handle this is to punch a small hole in a container filled with the chemical so that the chemical can drip down a basement floor drain and remain in the sewer pipe long enough to do the maximum amount of good.

Words, Wit and Wisdom—By William Morris

More Talk From the Teens.

"POW, right on the antenna!" That's the verdict of Milwaukee youngsters on our collection of teen-age slang called "The Real Good Lexicon," if the words of one of their number, Miss Barbara Kennon, are to be credited. "I actually enjoyed learning some new expressions," she writes, "but here are a few words you missed—words that we use in Milwaukee."

A "blast," it appears, is a disappointment and a person who has suffered a sharp reversal in fortune can label himself "real blasted." The boy who comports himself in what may correspond to the "almost conservative" fashion—in contrast to the real crazy behavior of his fellows—may properly be termed "collegiate."

If a youngster becomes really angry, he is said to "foam"—just as, in his father's day, he might have been called "steamed up."

Incidentally, some items of Pop's slang are still current among today's lads and lasses. For example, a mistake is still a "brody" or "brodie," though I doubt if many youngsters ever heard of Steve Brodie whose abortive jump from the Brooklyn bridge launched this slang term for flop or failure.

From Akron, O., Miss Marilyn Pallage, sends these notes on slang terms current there. "If you're 'out of it,' you don't quite conform to the standards of the 'Ins.' 'Finky' refers to an ugly or odd object, whereas 'rwnchy' refers to people in the same manner and may also mean rough or tough."

Interestingly enough, the word "blast" has different connotations in Akron than in Milwaukee, for, again according to Miss Pallage, "If you're having a blast, you're really living it up. If it was a riot, it was really funny, and if you're having a ball, you're having fun." As a cautionary note, she adds: "If someone calls you a comedian—your jokes are no longer funny."

Well, that's enough teen-talk for today. As our Akron correspondent notes: "I have to bug out now or, in other words, leave."

Marinate cooked shrimp in a well-seasoned French dressing. Impale each shrimp on a toothpick with a wedge of avocado as a first course with tomato juice.

Coronary Conscious

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

TODAY, as I stood on the corner in front of a drug store buying my newspaper, I heard a man groan. He was about 50. He was a large, fat man and he was leaning on his wife. He groaned again as he passed and I heard her say: "Let's go into the drug store and get you something for your indigestion."

He nodded in assent and they went in. He took something at the counter and then they came out. His face was pale and covered with sweat. He said to her: "Do you think we'd better go home or shall we go on to the bridge game?"

BEFORE I COULD make up my mind to tell them they would be wise to call in their family doctor right away, they were in their car and off. Whether it was to the bridge party or home I shall never know.

I resolved that I would write about that incident in my column. On and off I have been discussing coronary disease and how it often mimics so called indigestion. I had just about decided to give coronary disease a "rest," but seeing this man changed my mind.

He was proof that some have eyes that do not see and ears that do not hear. For I'm sure you will agree that television, the radio, papers and magazines have been giving the public the essentials of the diagnosis and treatment of coronary artery disease. It seems that this man and his wife (and probably thousands more like him) have been oblivious to the possibilities of a coronary attack simulating indigestion.

YOU MAY SAY—and rightly—"how can you be so sure this man wasn't having simple indigestion? Or, perhaps his gall bladder was kicking up."

However, the point I am trying to make is not that coronary disease was the true diagnosis in his case. What I am trying to say is that their first thought should have been the possibility of coronary trouble. Their first stop should not have been the drug store or the bridge game—but their doctor's office.

You can trifle with a burp but not with "indigestion" that makes you groan. To repeat again—and it is important enough to bear repetition—any middle-aged person with "indigestion that doesn't go away" should suspect coronary disease until it is disproved by his doctor. Like acute appendicitis, it's better to suspect it and be wrong than not to think about it until it's too late.

WILLIAM EWART GLADSTONE—doughty Prime Minister of Britain in the latter half of the nineteenth century and bete noir of Disraeli—never would have entered the political arena at all if his father had not exerted relentless pressure, according to his latest biographer, Sir Philip Magnus. What Gladstone really wanted to be was a clergyman.

Furthermore, claims Sir Philip, Gladstone not only had nothing to do with the Gladstone bag, but probably never heard of it. He did, however, invent the postal card.

Artur Rubinstein's Musical Marathon

Pianist Played 17 Major Works in 13 Days at Carnegie Hall; Coming Here This Weekend

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, March 15. RECENTLY in New York Carnegie Hall, Artur Rubinstein celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his American debut with a five-concert marathon. Within a space of 13 days, he played 17 major works for piano and orchestra by 11 great composers—all the concertos of Beethoven and Brahms, plus 10 works by Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Grieg, Liszt, Chopin, Folia, Franck and Schumann.

For each concert every seat in the hall had been sold far in advance along with standing room for the 100-person permitted overflow. At the end of the last concert evening, there was a prolonged final ovation that drew the 67-year-old Polish-born pianist back to the stage six times. And when the notable musical event was over, the indefatigable Rubinstein set out on yet another tour, which will take him through the Midwest and include concerts with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in St. Louis next Saturday and Sunday at the Kiel Opera House.

Before this amazing tour de force at Carnegie Hall, the man who is regarded as the world's best living pianist insisted that his musical marathon was not so much an anniversary celebration as it was a gratification of his own whim.

"I have played all those works so much at different times, but not always as I wanted to," he explained. "I would like to play them all decently before I disappear. Not that I think I can play them perfectly yet. But I think I can do them almost as well."

DURING the past 15 years, Rubinstein has probably performed in person before more people than any pianist alive. All told he has sold more than 3,000,000 albums for RCA Victor. He has appeared in movies and on television and has become something of a legend in his own lifetime.

Born in 1889 in Lodz, Poland, the youngest of seven children of the owner of a handkerchief factory, Artur displayed musical aptitude at the age of three. By the age of eight he had absorbed all that the music teachers of his native city could offer and was sent to Berlin to be tutored by the great musician Joseph Joachim. At 11 he made his formal debut in Berlin, but the life of the child prodigy was a lonely one and at 15 he ran away to Paris. There he found the climate of human relationships warmer and met such composers as Ravel, Dukas, Albeniz and Saint-Saens. The latter introduced him to the Concert Society of Paris as "one of the greatest artists I know."

Brought to the United States in 1906 for a tour which lasted three months, Rubinstein got a lukewarm American reception. In fact, the New York critics took him apart.

"I was not ready," Rubinstein says now as he looks back over the 50 years. "I was not a prodigy any more, and I was not a mature artist. The critics were severe. I thought I had lost America forever."

Rubinstein often recalls how he hated to practice in his younger days and says he learned the vital necessity of endless practice only 25 years ago. One of the stories he tells on himself—and they are many—concerns a visit he made to a European conservatory after world fame had come to him. The head of the conservatory, anxious to bring home the need of practice to his students, asked Rubinstein to talk to a class. Rubinstein skirted the practice issue in his little talk but finally a young girl asked him the direct question.

Rubinstein was never forgiven for admitting that as a young boy he was very lazy and figured out all sort of dodges to avoid practice. One of the dodges involved taking a box of chocolates and another of cherries and a novel into his practice room and then locking the door. Then Rubinstein would play runs with his right hand and eat chocolates with his left and then play runs with his left hand and eat cherries with his right, all the while reading the novel propped up on his music rack.

"I loved music and read through anything, operas, chamber music, symphonies, for the fun of it," the genius of the piano explains modestly. "I got by on my natural gifts and my temperament. This was fine in Latin and Slavic countries, where people didn't care about wrong notes, but it was not so good in Britain and the United States, where audiences thought they should get their money's worth in all the notes."

Returning to Europe after his near-fiasco in the United States, Rubinstein devoted himself to "shedding my immaturity" and by 1914 had finished a tour of all the major cities on the Continent, winding up in London just as World War I started. He wanted to join a Polish unit but his knowledge of languages—he speaks eight fluently—kept him at British headquarters as an interpreter until he was sent to play 30 concerts for the Allies. A witness to German atrocities in Belgium, Rubinstein vowed never to play in Germany again and despite innumerable invitations from that country, he has kept that vow. Years later, in 1938, Rubinstein returned a decoration given him by Mussolini with a note signed: "Artur Rubinstein, Jewish pianist."

In 1916 he went to Spain where his playing of De Falla and Albeniz evoked national acclaim. Scheduled for two recitals, he remained to give 120, and was invited to dinner every week by the royal family. Suddenly, he says, he found himself "swimming in money and success."

ON his return to Paris, he frankly admits to having lived a gay life. He had little thought of the future and still refused to pin himself to his piano for the needed hours of practice.

"Why," he asked himself, "spend 10 hours a day to clean the teeth of the piano?"

But even without the discipline of practice, Rubinstein was still in demand in Europe as a concert pianist and on several trips to the United States was received with praise quite extravagant when taken in contrast to the reviews following his debut.

Then in 1932 there came an event which he says changed his whole life. He fell in love with and married Aniela Mylnarski, daughter of the director of the Warsaw Conservatory under whose baton Rubinstein had made his Warsaw debut at 13. She was 17 years younger than Rubinstein and their marriage in London was a fabulous affair attended by celebrities in music, art, literature, society and diplomacy. A daughter, Eva, was born in Buenos Aires the following year; a son Paul in Warsaw in 1935; another daughter Alina arrived in Hollywood in 1945 and a second son John Arthur in 1946.

Marriage brought a profound feeling of responsibility to Rubinstein and he began for the first time, he says, to take stock of himself as a musician. He began to practice as though to make up for his years of neglect. He has never stopped.

In 1937 Rubinstein returned to the United States for 17 concerts in nine weeks, appearing with seven outstanding symphony orchestras. The initial concert being with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society broadcasting that historic rendition of Tchaikowski's Concerto in B Flat Minor on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21, 1937.

His fame grew throughout the world and many countries claimed him as a temporary resident—he has had something like 32 homes—but in 1946 this most international of all living artists, friend of royalty and the toast of the courts and salons of Europe, became a United States citizen. He says he is prouder of the simple document that officially makes him an American than any decoration or citation he has ever received.

In the fall of 1947, Rubinstein returned to Europe to concertize for the first time since 1939. An idol before he left, he was lionized to an even greater degree. He played 35 times to sold-out houses which had to install stage seats and permit standees. In Paris his four concerts set an all-time box-office high. For his first recital in Rome, a box-office line formed at four in the morning. At La Scala he received a 20-minute ovation. Rubinstein followed his triumphal tour of Europe with a tenth tour of the United States, giving 79 concerts. He is currently on his nineteenth United States tour.

Rubinstein plays like a man possessed. He is apt to bounce high that he plays standing up. He is as superb a showman as he is a consummate artist. At 67, he has the vitality of a young man. His vast capacity for laughter and a great compassion for his fellow man have brought him appreciation for his talents.

A great teller of tales on himself, Rubinstein has one story about how he and the then Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor, repaired to the Prince's dining room after a night on the town in London to have one last nightcap. The Prince invited Rubinstein to play for him. Rubinstein sat himself down to a magnificent looking but obviously very antique grand piano and began some of his highest-handed hammering of the keyboard. The pedals fell off the piano, the lid cracked and several strings broke with a frightful noise. The Prince howled and to this day never fails to inquire when he meets Rubinstein: "Have you broken any pianos lately?"

It was once suggested that Rubinstein amend the spelling of his first name from Artur to Arthur.

"I am Artur in French and Polish," he explained. "And Arturo in Spanish. I feel Arthur in American, but my manager, S. Hurok, thinks it is more glamorous to be Artur here, too."

Offhand, it would appear that this result was a signal victory for the school which deprecates pre-emptive bidding, inasmuch as the four-club call told South No. 2 how to play the hand. Such repercussions, however, are not very frequent.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

EVEN the most enthusiastic advocates of shutout bidding—which include this writer—must admit that there can be bad repercussions. Here is a case in point, from a team-off match:

South dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

| NORTH | | EAST | |
|----------|--------|--------|--------|
| ♠KJ95 | ♥K63 | ♠Q62 | ♥J74 |
| ♦KQ94 | ♣A7 | ♦QJ108 | ♣10532 |
| ♠A108743 | ♥AQ985 | ♠A | ♥K |

At table 1 the bidding went:

| South | West | North | East |
|-------|------|-------|------|
| 1♠ | 4♣ | 4♠ | Pass |
| 4♠ | Pass | 5♠ | Pass |
| 5NT | Pass | 6♠ | Pass |
| 7♠ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

West opened the club queen. Declarer won with the blank king and, with nothing to guide him, cashed the spade ace. After that, of course, the grand slam was gone. East had to make his still-guarded spade queen.

At the other table West took a hand in the bidding—with fatal result:

| South | West | North | East |
|-------|------|-------|------|
| 1♠ | 4♣ | 4♠ | Pass |
| 4♠ | Pass | 5♠ | Pass |
| 5NT | Pass | 6♠ | Pass |
| 7♠ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

The same club queen was led, but this declarer, warned that West had great length in clubs, realized that if either defender had all three missing trumps it would be East rather than West. So this declarer started with a low trump from his own hand—and obviously with full success. West's void came to light, and all South had to do was put on the spade king and take the proved-finesse against East.

Secrets of Charm Trimming Your Own Hair

SEARCH OUT the best hair-cutting specialist you can find and stick to a regular schedule of appointments—this must be the first step toward hair that looks perfect all the time.

But if there are occasions when a professional cut isn't possible, you can trim your own. You must follow the expert's methods, however, and use the professional type of scissors. Here's how to trim a simple, gently curling medium-short coiffure.

First, carefully block off the section of your hair that is over your brow. Pin this up into a neat topknot.

Then, make two vertical parts about an inch apart on one side of your head close to your face. Hold the hair straight out and comb it smooth. Pinch the strands together between your thumb and forefinger at the spot where you want the cutting to end and begin cutting about a half-inch above this point. Now, a big secret of your success lies in proceeding with the cutting in exactly this way—without ever letting the scissors close completely, open and partially close the blades as you let them travel slowly toward your fingers.

Next, block off the next section of hair in one-inch squares. Pin up all but the top block.

IF NECESSARY, YOU CAN TRIM YOUR OWN HAIR.

Proceed as before but start cutting about half way between your scalp and your fingers. Cut the next block longer and each following block longer than the one above it. Move toward center back and then repeat every step on the other side of your head.

Finally, unpin the topknot and block the section across your forehead into half-inch, and the rest into one-inch squares. Starting a half-inch behind your fingers, cut each of the front blocks. Start the remainder closer to your scalp—how close depends on how smooth or how fluffy you want the hair on top.

Oven Fondue.

Six slices bread, four tablespoons butter or margarine, two tablespoons prepared mustard, three-fourths pound Cheddar cheese, two eggs, two cups milk, one-half teaspoon salt, dash cayenne, one-half teaspoon paprika.

Arrange sliced bread in two-quart casserole in alternate layers with cheese. Combine other ingredients and pour over bread and cheese. Place in refrigerator for 24 hours. Bake one hour in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Yield four to five servings.

Pre-Wedding Parties
For Jane Maury Hill

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

WHILE most of the parties honoring Miss Jane Maury Hill and John Turner Clarkson Jr., incident to their marriage, will be given after the couple returns from a wedding trip, a few are planned in advance of the ceremony, scheduled for Tuesday, April 3.

Country Club at dinner after the rehearsal.

Sunday, April 1, Miss Hill's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley Jr., will have a buffet supper at their home, 1 Wydown terrace, Clayton, to which guests will bring bar and kitchen gifts for a shower. The next night Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner, mother of the best man, M. Dozier Gardner, and Mr. and Mrs. George Drake Scott, will give a dinner at the Gardner home, 24 Washington terrace. The best man, on Army duty in Georgia, will be home at that time.

A change has been made in the wedding party. Lawrence Maguire, who is unable to serve as an usher, has been replaced by George Stewart of New York, a former Cornell classmate of the bridegroom. Mr. Stewart, with Bruce Baker, also of New York, will be here a few days before the wedding, as will the maid of honor, Miss Patricia Phillips, New York, and Miss Jean Russell, Chicago, one of the seven bridesmaids.

The ceremony, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, will be followed by a reception to be given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maury Hill, at the St. Louis Country Club.

Returning to St. Louis Tuesday from a West Indies cruise were Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Polk, 18 St. Andrew's drive, St. Louis Country Club grounds. They were passengers aboard the Stella Polaris on its trip to the islands of San Blas and St. Martin, Havana, Port-au-Prince, Haiti; St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, French Martinique, La Guaira at Caracas, Dutch Curacao, Cristobal on the Panama Canal and Montego Bay in Jamaica.

Mr. Polk's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Lee Polk, 4664 Pershing avenue, are parents of a son, William Lee Polk Jr., their first child, who was born March 1. Mr. Polk's elder son, Pvt. Charles M. Polk II, who is stationed with the Army at Fort Story, Va., near Virginia Beach, will come to St. Louis to visit on his next leave.

Mrs. Horton Watkins, 7 Brentwood Park, Clayton, returned Monday from a three-weeks' trip in the South. Accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Morton B. Howell Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., she motored to Natchez, Miss., to see the famous display gardens and to New Orleans for a brief stay. On their way back they visited the Bellingrath Gardens in Mobile, Ala., where one of the world's largest camellia collections and masses of azaleas are now in bloom. Mrs. Watkins spent a few days with the Howells in Nashville before returning to St. Louis.

Mrs. McClelland Is Married at Chapel.

THE marriage of Mrs. Frank Morris McClelland (Rozene Johnson) and Dr. Warren Benjamin Mills took place yesterday afternoon in the chapel of Westminster Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. H. Louis Patrick officiating. The bride, a widow who has made her home at 5038 Westminster place, is the daughter of Mrs. Clarence S. Johnson and the late Mr. Johnson. Dr. Mills' parents are Mrs. Charles H. Mills and the late Mr. Mills.

The bride wore a powder blue costume suit; a white spring hat and had a corsage of white orchids. Her only attendant was Mrs. Harry Hausner of Evanston, Ill., the former Miss Betty Jean Ely of St. Louis. Richard Mills of Chicago served as best man for his brother.

Mrs. Mills is the mother of three children, Geoffrey, Susan and Bruce McClelland. Dr. Mills, who lived at the Parkedge Hotel, has two sons, Warren Benjamin Mills Jr. and Charles Mills. After a wedding trip to Florida Dr. and Mrs. Mills will occupy her home.

Late winter vacationists in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., include Mr. and Mrs. Jere F. Sheehan, 6919 Columbia avenue, University City; Mr. and Mrs. D. Kenneth Ashby, 555 Barnes road, Ladue, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Weissenborn, 22 York Hills, Ladue. The group will return home the end of this week. Also in Fort Lauderdale for the winter season are the William F. Remmers of Fordyce Lane, Ladue, and Dr. and Mrs. Fred A. Kramer, 803 South Warson road. The Remmers spend much of their time aboard their boat fishing and cruising.

Parties in Honor of Mrs. Beardslee.

SEVERAL parties are being given in honor of Mrs. Edna Hippenmeyer Beardslee, 7810 Delmar boulevard, University City, and J. Marcellus Groves, who will be married Saturday, April 7, at First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. R. Calvin Dobson will perform the ceremony which will be followed by a supper for the immediate families and a few close friends in the Tlara room of the Park Plaza Hotel.

Parties began with a dinner last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Egmann, 5540 Delmar boulevard. The next evening a dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Byron Whitcraft at their home, 915 South Central avenue, Clayton. Members of Mrs. Beardslee's bridge club gave a shower and dinner for her last night at the home of Mrs. Beverly Welsh, Ladue Ridge road. Two more dinners this week will be tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barnard, 613 South Central avenue, Clayton, and Saturday night at which Mrs. Gladys Manion, 7519 Wellington Way, will be hostess.

A shower and luncheon for Mrs. Beardslee is planned for March 22 at the University Club with five hostesses: Mrs. James G. Jones, Mrs. Mabel H. Murphy, Mrs. S. A. Sperber, Mrs. Harry Riehl and Mrs. Charles B. Cleaver. Saturday, March 24, Dr. and Mrs. Frank McDonald and Mrs. Frances Brawner will give a cocktail party at the McDonald home, 5032 Westminster place.

Mrs. Beardslee's daughter, Mrs. Albert U. Hooss of Nashville, Tenn., will be here for the wedding as will her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Beardslee of Meridian, Miss. Mrs. Beardslee also has another daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Prendergast, 827 Longacre drive, University City.

Mr. Groves, who has made his home with his mother, Mrs. Albert B. Groves, 1 Exmoor, Ladue, is the brother of Theron A. Groves, Mrs. Ralph Siegel, Mrs. Mercedes Groves and Mrs. Walter Heimbecher. He and his bride will live at 3 Delcrest court, University City, after their marriage.

Comment on New Trade Organization

By Eleanor Roosevelt

THE news that Margaret Truman is engaged to E. Clifton Daniel Jr. will interest many Americans who have felt her charm. Good wishes will reach her from all over the nation and we wish her long life and happiness.

I NOTICED in the newspaper some discussion of House Bill 5550, which authorizes United States membership in the Organization for Trade Co-operation.

This new organization, created last spring in Geneva by representatives of the United States and 34 other governments, is designed to serve as the administrative arm for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade known as GATT.

There is a multilateral agreement between the United States and other countries under which some 60,000 tariffs have been reduced or prevented from increasing. Our reciprocal trade agreements legislation made us signatories to this agreement, which assures us that the bargains we make with other countries for mutual reduction of tariffs are kept and not nullified by other barriers to trade, such as import quotas or special taxes.

THE OTC would not create any new obligations for any country. It simply would provide a small international organization and staff to see that trade agreements are carried out more efficiently and effectively.

Both the President and the leaders of both political parties have endorsed the formation of this new Organization for Trade Co-operation. And while traditional isolationists and those who believe in high tariffs may be opposed to it, reasonable people will realize that this is a good way for increasing the orderly conduct of business throughout the world.

We have made great efforts through our Government to establish world trade on a basis of co-operation and equity. If we approve in our Congress the establishment of OTC, it will be looked upon by other nations as a sign we intend to carry through our agreements in good faith.

Luncheon to Note
Anniversary of Temple Club

By Fay Proffitt

THE TEMPLE CLUB will celebrate its fortieth anniversary Wednesday at a noon luncheon at the Starlight Roof of Hotel Chase. Under the supervision of Mrs. Earl Barnett, hospitality chairman, the large room will be converted into a spring scene.

The club president, Mrs. Leonard A. Zottarelli, will introduce as guests of honor, illustrious Potentate Harold A. Schulenburg of Moolah Temple, Mrs. Schulenburg and Miss Hulda Gunther, superintendent of Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children.

Mrs. Paul V. Lawton, entertainment chairman, has arranged a musical program to include a string ensemble under the direction of Benjamin L. Rader, with vocal selections by Harry Webber.

After the program there will be a card party under the direction of Mrs. Delbert Miller Jr. and her committee.

The evening group of the St. Louis College Club, St. Louis branch of the American Association of University Women, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Robert Hill, 8613 Rosalie avenue. Mrs. Charles B. Haverstock will be co-hostess. Miss Folsa Bailey, chairman, has planned a study of St. Louis industries. The following will give surveys of the various industries: Mrs. William A. Boles, railroads; Mrs. Robert H. Miller, breweries; Mrs. A. J. Speziale, Monsanto Chemical Co., and Mrs. John A. Breerton, other local industries.

Miss Mary Kimbrough, feature writer for the Post-Dispatch, will address a combined meeting of Zeta, Sigma and Pi chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary society for women educators, tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Hixson Junior High School, Webster Groves. Miss Kimbrough will have as her subject, "The Case of the Tear Stained Typewriter," which concerns the problems of a woman journalist.

Pi is to be the hostess chapter and the chapter's public relations chairman, Miss Anne Gerlach, has arranged the program.

THE Tuesday Literary Club of St. Louis will have William H. Kester as guest speaker at a meeting next Tuesday at the Artists' Guild. The president, Mrs. Joseph A. Quinn, will open the meeting at 2 p.m. Mrs. August J. Gummshelmer, program chairman, will introduce the speaker.

Mr. Kester, assistant manager of research and business economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, will have as his subject, "And Now Today." His talk will be one of a series the club is presenting under the general topic of "St. Louis in Review."

After the program tea will be served by Mrs. Everett W. Bedell and Mrs. Sanford C. Wise.

The last in a series of Lenten lectures at the St. Louis Woman's Club was given today by Bishop Ivan Lee Holt of the Methodist Church. Following the talk luncheon was served.

The contemporary literature section of the St. Louis College Club, 5428 Delmar boulevard, will meet Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. James F. Cook will discuss the development and popularity of the detective story. She will be presented by Mrs. James O'Neill. After luncheon, to be served at 12:30 p.m., the education section will meet. Mrs. John J. Miller, section chairman, will read from her son's diary of two summers spent on "The Prairie Trek Expedition."

Mrs. Paul E. Corning 2858 Clearview drive, Bel Nor, will be hostess to the Bay View Reading Club Monday afternoon. Mrs. C. Owen Taylor will review the book, "Canada, the Golden Hinge," by Leslie Roberts.

Martha Carr's OPINION—

Dear Martha:

I AM 27 years old and have I got a problem! Two years ago I started going with a girl. I liked her pretty well but certainly wasn't in love with her. But she fell for me and even told me how much she loved me. Martha, I wasn't ready to get married and I didn't know what to do so I just walked out. I know it was the cowardly thing to do but I was desperate. I know she was pretty badly hurt but whenever I would see her after that (we had some mutual friends so we ran into one another occasionally) she acted as though nothing was wrong. But then I found out I really did care a lot for her. In the past few weeks I've missed her a lot. I called her one day and she talked very politely, although in a rather distant manner, but when I asked her for a date she refused and stopped the conversation. I wrote her a letter asking her forgiveness and she didn't answer. What can I do? I know I was a heel but I really want to see her now.

Don't expect any sympathy from us girls, Bud. Sorry, but you got just what was coming to you. I'll admit she didn't play her cards brilliantly, but that was no reason to walk out on her. My only suggestion is to keep after her and maybe if you're persistent enough she'll decide she loves you after all. But if she does take you back, just remember not to hurt her again. Better to stay away for good than to do that, no matter how hard it is on you.

Dear Martha:

I ALWAYS READ YOUR COLUMN and so often see letters from jealous daughters-in-law. I have a mother-in-law, too, and I love her. She bore my husband, reared him and worried about him through childhood days. I don't want him to turn his back on her just because he married me. When our children were small, I couldn't get out often but I still encouraged him to visit his parents, brothers and sisters, and his people loved me for it. Some women won't let their husbands visit their people alone or even be friendly to their neighbors. Women like this have a guilty conscience. I wonder what they hope to gain by driving their husbands' people and friends away. My mother-in-law lives with a daughter but we ask her for Sunday dinner and take her riding or to see old friends about once a month. Our children are married and often come home, too, and there is no jealousy among us. Jealous people need the help of a counselor, and I often wonder why men put up with such women and bow down to them constantly. There is nothing worse than jealousy or a husband who is afraid of his wife. Please print this, maybe it will help some hen-pecked husband.

Advice for Women

By Ruth Millett

WHAT every woman doesn't know:

That even though her husband claims he never wants her to change, he would be the first to grow bored with her if she didn't keep on growing and changing and becoming more of a person through the years.

That a wife can keep her husband closer to her through the years by giving him as much freedom as he wants rather than by trying to keep him constantly at her side.

That boredom is the worst threat to marriage. The wife who keeps things humming is doing a lot to keep her husband.

That even though a man knows nothing about feminine fashions he knows when his wife looks well-groomed and attractive. So her efforts to look her best aren't wasted on him even though she occasionally gets complimented on a "new dress" she has had for three years.

That most men are happier playing host than guest. The wife whose husband never wants to go anywhere can be made more sociable by plenty of entertaining at home.

That nothing does more for a man's contentment than the sound of a woman's laughter. The more a wife finds to laugh about good-naturedly the happier her marriage will be.

That taking care of the details of family living and straightening out minor crises are a woman's responsibility. The less she worries her husband about small matters the better.

That tears quickly lose their effectiveness if often resorted to. It is easier for a man to run from a woman's tears than to cope with them.

That no victory won by nagging is worth the price—which is being regarded as a nagger by the man who gives in.

Not every woman knows these facts about men and marriage. But lucky are the ones who do.

"MY SCALP feels tight and my hair is so dry. Can I do something to overcome this condition?—Mary."

Massaging the scalp will ease the tension and daily brushing and a thorough weekly shampoo will aid in stimulating circulation. You should massage the scalp with cosmetic oil and then brush the hair vigorously up and out.

"MY SON always introduces me to people thus: 'This is my mother. She's 60 but she tries to act young.' I always feel very self-conscious and foolish. Do you think that I should protest?—W.A."

Protest—! You certainly should. Put your foot down. Refuse to go out with him or to meet his friends at home. It may be that he is just thoughtless and thinks that it is merely a funny remark. It is very rude and very embarrassing.

Designing Woman Easy-to-Make Easter Egg Faces

By Elizabeth Hillyer

If you're really not an artist and don't pretend to be able to draw, it's still possible to paint a face that isn't your own. For an Easter egg face, there's more in knowing how to go about it than there is in skill with a paint brush. And considerably more in design ideas.

The design of these gay characters begins with the carton they come in, the one-piece molded kind. Turn the carton upside-down and snip off the tops of the inverted hollows that separate the eggs. Snip one sideways and you have the scoop bonnet at lower left. A slightly different cut produced the cap-like millinery of her neighbor. Cut up the carton various ways to produce a variety of hat shapes, and all of them fit because the carton was shaped to fit eggs.

IF THERE'S no white in the children's paint set, buy some to mix with the bright colors to produce pretty pastel shades and to improve the paint's coverage of the soft cardboard.

If there's a parakeet in the house, he sheds enough feathers to trim a hat or two and there are always small artificial flowers tucked away somewhere. Ribbon bows under the chin are secured there with the household cement that solves all the sticking problems involved. Hair here is yarn, in most cases crocheted into a chain stitch, dampened and then unraveled after drying to make the yarn look like curly hair.

Two points are important to remember. Don't let your creations become too complicated. Keep them on the simple side, especially the facial features. Eyebrows and noses aren't necessary. The placing of the eyes

IT'S THE POSITION you give the eyes and mouth that lets you get away with less than perfect drawing. The secret is to place the eyes in the middle of the egg or slightly lower. Those who haven't learned the difference it makes—and haven't noticed that eyes actually are that low on the head—always paint the eyes much too high up on the egg. The simplest representation of eyes and mouth has a much better effect when placed correctly than elaborate drawing misplaced.

shades make wonderful skin tones, usually the darker the better and sometimes it's possible to find them with a scattering of brown freckles.

For the Easter centerpiece, use a basket that fits the buncozy and stuff the basket with artificial grass to support the eggs.

The Dean Speaks Up A Threat on French Political Scene

By Adele Starbird

NOT all my wishes come true as quickly as my wish, expressed in this column, to know what Edmond Taylor thought of Mendes-France.

Soon after, the Reporter printed Mr. Taylor's profile of Mendes-France. This was followed in a few weeks by Mr. Taylor's analysis of the French elections. "How France Lost the Election" I have great confidence in Mr. Taylor's insight and sagacity. Few people understand France as he does. Few French people do!

Ten years ago, I hazarded a few statements about France: that it would not go Communist, that prosperity would be restored, that there was no apparent solution for the fiscal problem, and no solution, under the constitution of the Fourth Republic, for the political problem, and that the greatest danger that France faced was that both political ends would devour the middle. You could see the Right and the Communists nibbling away at the moderates, and trying to force upon the latter a false dilemma.

SINCE THEN the Communist vote has lost almost 20 per cent of its strength. It will lose more than half of its remaining strength, according to Robert Barrat, writing in the Commonweal, if ever the Government conquers the problem of housing and wages.

As to prosperity, France has produced more and exported more annually than at any time before the war.

The fiscal situation has held up better than I thought possible. There is indeed inflation, but it has not got out of hand. The franc is quoted officially now at exactly the price it brought on the black market 10 years ago—and the black market price is always the realistic one.

The political situation has remained reassuringly chaotic. The ends did not succeed in devouring the middle. The parties have not only been splintered; at times they seemed to be pulverized. However disturbing that might be to Americans, who prefer to tie their splinters up into two neat bundles each with its meaningless label, in France it did mean that there could be no dictator. It proved Mr. Taylor's contention that the French "have democracy in their bones."

Father George H. Tavard says that variety in unity underlies the life of the Fourth Republic. "Government by a coalition of minorities would be a good formula for it. It happens also to be a good formulation for a democratic ideal at a time when the distance is diminishing between majority rule and the police state."

BUT LATELY the political picture looks more grave. Is it possible that the day approaches when Americans will mourn the passing of the French splinter parties? When we shall be forced to deal with an ignorant little shopkeeper named Poudjate, as once we dealt with a housepainter named Hitler, and with a blacksmith named Mussolini?

Mr. Taylor does not go so far. He contents himself with pointing out the anti-Semitic and Fascist character of the Poudjate movement, the fact that it is well-financed, highly organized and ruthless, and that it joined with Communists in the last elections to break up through hoodlum tactics the meetings of the more moderate element.

Other writers are frankly alarmist; they think the future belongs to Poudjate. I do not quote them; I think that Mr. Taylor is right. The point I want to stress is that for the first time since the German occupation, I detect a note of fear in letters and articles coming from France. And that is not good. The middle must be preserved, even in its chaos. Neither Poudjate nor Duclos must come to power. That really would be the end.

Good Idea: Relax in The Country

By Josephine Lowman

LIFE seems set at a pace which is tiring. It seems that our days are complicated and our rest often interrupted.

Noise is one great source of fatigue in modern life. There are telephones, radios, television, lawn mowers, buses, trucks, fans, trains and airplanes.

That is why it is so blessedly restful to go into the country. In the quiet our nerve ends seem to limp and we experience a healing sort of relaxation.

THE DEMANDS of the modern family are greater than they were in the past. Social life has become more complex. Children indulge in more activity. Many mothers spend a large portion of each day acting as chauffeurs for their children and husbands.

An excellent idea is to take every opportunity to get out in the country as often as possible. Even if you only go for a few hours you will come back refreshed. The air and the sun and the breeze and the quiet can strip you of tensions.

WE REALLY SHOULD MAKE every effort to make life as uncomplicated and simple as possible. Constant hurry and pressure are potent factors in the fatigue which penalize modern man and woman.

If we would plan our day or week and drop those non-essential responsibilities, which actually mean little to us, we will have gone a long way toward better health.

Get out as often as possible by a quiet stream or lake or in the density of a forest and relax. The days are getting longer and there are some lovely weekends in store.

Spaghetti With Red Clam Sauce

Ingredients: One pound spaghetti, three tablespoons butter or margarine, one clove garlic (finely minced), two cans (eight ounces each) tomato sauce, 1/2 teaspoon dried crushed oregano, one teaspoon kitchen bouquet, one can (seven ounces) minced sea clams.

Method: Cook spaghetti in a large amount of salted water just until tender; drain in colander. Meanwhile melt butter in nine-inch skillet over moderate heat; add garlic and cook three minutes. Add tomato sauce, oregano and kitchen bouquet; bring to a boil. Add clams and bring to simmering. Serve at once over hot cooked spaghetti. Makes four to six servings.

Reversing The Role of Breadwinner

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

SINCE the beginning of time, man has generally been the breadwinner, woman the homemaker. Most people recognize this division of labor as natural and desirable. Not so, Mrs. McG.

"You always write as if woman's place is in the home supported by her husband," she reproaches me. "You are 50 years behind the times, Dr. Popenoe. There are many women who are not naturally adapted to be homemakers, not interested in housekeeping, and in fact, hate it. They are well-qualified to be breadwinners. They can hold their own in the business world. They marry men who are not of a competitive or money-earning type but who are perfectly happy to stay at home, do the housekeeping, and take care of the children. Husband and wife are both perfectly satisfied with this pattern. Anyone living in the twentieth century, not in the horse and buggy age, knows many ideal homes of just this type. If the husband and the wife are both suited by this reversal of the old-fashioned roles, why should anybody else object?"

IT IS QUITE TRUE, Mrs. McG., that on occasion one finds an arrangement of this kind which seems to satisfy the two persons immediately concerned. Frequently, it is due to some injury which the husband has suffered, which ties him down at home. I don't know of any survey which would justify the statement that households of this type are happier or less happy than the ordinary type. I do know that at the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, of which I am director, we have during the last 26 years been consulted by plenty of women who had been forced out of the home to become breadwinners and were desperately unhappy in consequence.

But there is another test which you must not overlook. If you will study from the point of view of the children, I believe you'll discover that sons and daughters alike may be greatly damaged in such an atmosphere. Neither of them has what the world considers a normal pattern of manhood or womanhood. And as a result, they go out into life very ill-prepared to get along with the great bulk of the population that has been brought up under ordinary circumstances. Neither the boys nor the girls can adjust themselves to the other sex, marry successfully, and establish happy and permanent homes of their own.

DOUBTLESS there are exceptional cases when the children have grown up to understand that their father is handicapped and has to make an unusual place for himself in life, and that their mother has been deprived of many of the normal satisfactions of family life. But in too many instances the children simply can't understand.

Any unusual pattern forced on a marriage by difficult circumstances, should be viewed sympathetically. But before you begin to think that the reversal of sex roles in the home is a step forward, you'd better stop and take another careful look around you.

Tipping

TIPPING is a means of expressing gratitude to a person for a service performed. It is customary even though the service may not have been performed very well and the gratitude is not very great.

The question is how much to give. One does not wish to give too much. For, if one person gives too much, then others will give too much. Soon the tip will cease to be too much and be just the right amount, thereby raising the cost of living.

On the other hand, one does not wish to give too little. For a person who gives too little will be looked upon as stingy and the next time service is needed he will be ignored while service is performed for persons who give more.

What, then, is the right tip? Thought must be given to the fact that the value of the dollar has declined, so that what used to be a generous tip 20 years ago is not a generous tip now. A study next should be made of the person to whom the tip is to be given. Is that person cheerful? Does the person look like one who enjoys performing the service and does not do it purely for financial gain? If so, perhaps the tip need not be so high.

On the other hand, does the person performing the job seem to be in a bad humor? Is the person unobliging? Does the person appear to be one who would look contemptuously at the tip and not even say thank you. If so, perhaps a larger tip is needed.

Thus the person who deserves a tip most is likely to get least, and the one who deserves it least is likely to get most.

It sometimes is said that tipping is un-American. How nice it would be if that were only true.

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP.

Patent Leather Accents

Patent leather accents give a crisp effect to spring costumes. These include shoes, handbags and millinery. Plain pumps that are cut low and have slender heels share attention with the open sandals. Handbags usually are large and stress the fashion for added depth. The sailor hat predominates among millinery types made of the gleaming leather.

Cream of Celery & Carrot Soup
 Ingredients: One can (10 1/2 ounces) cream of celery soup, one and one-fourth cups water or unsalted stock, one-half cup sieved cooked carrots, one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, pepper.
 Method: Turn soup into saucepan. Add water or stock a little at a time, stirring constantly. Add sieved carrots and Worcestershire sauce. Heat, stirring occasionally, to boiling point. Add pepper to taste. Makes three cups—enough for three to four servings.

Happy Chicken

Ingredients: One broiler-fryer chicken (about two pounds ready-to-cook weight), one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon ground ginger, one-fourth teaspoon ground cardamom, one-fourth teaspoon chili powder, one-half teaspoon tumeric, three tablespoons butter, one clove garlic (minced), two small onions (cut in thin rings and the rings separated).

Method: Have chicken cut so there are two wings, two pieces of breast, two legs, two second joints, two pieces of back. Wash in cold water, clean and dry. Reserve liver and giblets for other use. Mix together the salt, ginger, cardamom, chili powder and tumeric; spread over a piece of waxed paper. Roll chicken pieces lightly in spices; don't try to cover chicken completely. Melt butter in 10-inch skillet, add chicken pieces, placing legs and second joints in center of pan, and fitting bony back pieces at sides. Brown chicken well—about 10 minutes—over moderate heat. Sprinkle chicken with garlic and onion rings. Cover tightly and cook slowly until tender—about 25 minutes. Turn chicken once or twice during cooking, mixing onion rings with drippings in bottom of pan. Makes three servings.

Before turning on the water to a portion of the water system that was drained for the winter, be sure that the drop cock on the valve is closed. If left open, you'll have water leaking out of the valve when the pressure is turned off. Also check to be sure that no pipe joints were taken apart and left that way when the system was drained.

Love IN VEGAS!

It's a golden, glittering gold mine of entertainment! A romantic story of America's most fabulous playground! Rancher meets dancer... holds her hand for luck... mmmmm... how long will it last?

What a spot for romance! These are the dazzling darlings who sing the hit song "My Lucky Charm"!

Meet me in Las Vegas

Torrey and terrific! This is the dance climax to the sizzling rhythms of Frankie and Johnny! (Cyd-national!)

Kisses by moonlight! And hoedown at a barbecue... to the toe-tlingling tune "The Gal With The Yaller Shoes"!
